John V. Coggey, an inheritance Tax Appraiser affixed his signature yesterday afternoon to the completed appraisal of the estate of Col. John Jacob Astor, who perished on April 15, 1912, in the wreck of the Titanic. The appraisal fixes the gross value of Col. Astor's estate at $87,218,791.05, of which $63,124,321 was real estate and $24,094,470.05 was personal property. The appraiser's figures indicate that the net estate is $85,311,228.30.

The report shows that the $787,397.25 trust fund created as the ante-nuptial endowment of Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, Col. Astor's first wife, is taxed as a direct legacy to William Vincent Astor, her son. The reason for this, it appears, was that the trust was for Col. Astor's life, or during her widowhood. She was not his widow, however, in the eyes of the law when he died, as he left a second wife, Mrs. Madeleine Talmage Force Astor.

Col. Astor held at the time of his death, the report shows, a claim of $110,030 against Charles W. Morse, arising from a guarantee by Morse to hold Col. Astor free from liability on stock of a telephone company during its transfer. Morse was in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary when Col. Astor died.

$3,150,000 Paid on Tax.

Col. Astor's estate paid on Oct. 11, 1912, the sum of $3,150,000 into the State treasury as an installment on the inheritance tax due on his estate. This is the largest payment ever made in this or any other State as an inheritance tax. The payment was made to secure the rebate of 5 per cent. allowed for payment of the tax within six months after death.

Whether this preliminary payment of tax will cover the amount of tax to be fixed by the courts will depend on the outcome of an appeal by the State Controller now pending in the Court of Appeals. The State Controller is attempting to have it held that an entirely new method of computation of tax was provided by the amendment of the inheritance tax law of 1911, and, if he succeeds, some hundreds of thousands of dollars will be added to the tax. The Surrogate will be compelled to fix the tax under the present precedents, and an appeal will be taken as a matter of form as soon as the taxing order is entered.

Mrs. Madeleine Talmage Force Astor's ante-nuptial fund of $311,336.63 was not taxable, since it was made over to her outright, with power of disposition, during Col. Astor's life. In the larger trust fund it was calculated that she had a taxable interest of $1,094,199, and that Vincent Astor's interest, based on his expectation of outliving her, was $264,049. Her interest in her life estate in $5,000,000, left to her by Col. Astor's will, until her death or remarriage, was estimated to be worth $3,989,145, and Vincent Astor's interest therein was estimated at $962,712. The value of her life estate in the property at 840 Fifth Avenue was estimated at $1,974,627. The property is valued at $2,475,000, with a remainder interest to Vincent Astor of $476,546. In the contents of the house, valued at $629,459, her life estate was calculated to be worth $502,201, and Vincent Astor's remainder interest $121,198

The expired $787,397.25 ante-nuptial trust fund for Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, the testimony shows, included the Westminster Apartments, appraised at $300,000, and a mortgage of $100,000 given by Henry P. Whitney.

The larger ante-nuptial fund for Mrs. Madeleine Talmage Force Astor, created on Aug. 28, 1911, contains realty at 12-26 West Thirty-fourth Street, Ap-

ORLEANS SAILS, NOT ALONE.

His Companion "Countess de Saiverte," His Destination Buenos Aires

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, June 13.—The Corriere della Sera announces that the Duke of Orleans has embarked at Genoa on board the steamship Tomasso di Savola on a voyage to Buenos Aires, in company with a young woman with whom he has been spending a few days at the Hotel Miramare. The Duke's name appears on the passenger list as Phillipe de Villiers, aged 44, while his companion is registered as the Countess Jeanne de Salverte, aged 32. She was recently with the Duke at his retreat on Lake Como.

During the newspaper storm over the Duke's departure from Wood Norton, in England, in consequence of his squabbles with his invalid wife, which resulted in her bringing a lawsuit against him, the Duke's political agents tried to throw the public off the track by announcing that the Pretender was about to undertake a trans-Siberian journey. They resorted to similar manoeuvres in Italy, according to The Corriere, spreading rumors, first that he was going to New York and later that his destination was Barcelona.

Special precautions were taken by Maurice de Rémy, the Duke's gentleman in waiting, to screen the couple as much as possible from public notice during their transit from the hotel to the state cabins of the liner.

AGAINST ALL UNIONISM.

Schwab Not Sure of His Life and Property Fifteen Years Hence.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, June 13.—Charles M. Schwab has been expressing some novel and interesting ideas on the subject of labor and unionism, according to American friends who are now in Berlin. Mr. Schwab has arrived in Germany in connection with the gun and armor contracts which the Bethlehem Steel Works have for the Argentine and Greek vessels now under construction in German shipyards.

He is quoted as being for the total abolition of unionism. He confesses that he has no overweening desire to employ union men, though he has 20,000 hands drawing pay at Bethlehem. He thinks that labor is marching at such a pace in the United States that he will consider himself lucky, fifteen years hence, if his property is intact and his life spared. Mr. Schwab's greatest present concern, he says, is the welfare of the workingman, and he is devoting all his leisure time to clarify that problem.

SHELVES THE 13 HOODOO.

Twins Born Yesterday in Room 13 Weigh Together 13 Pounds.

Down on Third Street yesterday everybody was smiling, and no one had his fingers crossed despite the fact that it was Friday the 13th in 1913. The 13 hoodoo was on the shelf, and Mrs. Julius Hoffmeister helped to put it there.

Most of Third Street had gathered yesterday morning in front of 244, the plumbing shop of Alderman Frank J. Dotzler. In the midst of the gathering was the Alderman himself, as well as the man who runs the plumbing establishment in his absence, Julius Hoffmeister, Dotzler's brother-in-law.

Suddenly from out the doorway of the adjoining house, 242, ran Mrs. Maggie Dot. She whispered into the ear of Alderman Dotzler a request that Hoffmeister should be dispatched immediately to a room on the third floor of the building. Hoffmeister made haste to his room No. 13 on the third floor. There he found that Mrs. Hoffmeister had given birth to twins, a girl weighing 7 pounds and a boy 6—total another 13—at exactly 13 minutes after 10. And then it was recalled that Mr. and Mrs. Hoffmeister were married on Feb. 13, 1910.

The husband ran downstairs and told Third Street all about it, and 13 was then and there voted a lucky number. No one but Hoffmeister feels any doubt about it now.

FAMOUS FEUD ENDS.

Senator Tillman Accepts Gonzales as Minister to Cuba.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A famous South Carolina feud was officially ended to-day when President Wilson sent to the Senate the nomination of William E. Gonzales of that State to be Minister to Cuba. Senator Benjamin Ryan Tillman of South Carolina consented to the nomination. The Tillman and the Gonzales families have been bitter political and personal enemies for many years, and their differences were augmented by bloodshed.

The Gonzales brothers, of whom the new Minister to Cuba was one, were editors and proprietors of The Columbia State, a militant newspaper that fought Senator Tillman throughout his political career. The turbulence that marked the progress of Mr. Tillman's rise in the political world was due to a large extent to the hard fighting qualities of the Gonzales brothers. Their opposition extended to the Senator's nephew, James Tillman, and while he was serving as Lieutenant Governor of South Carolina he shot and killed N. G. Gonzales, a brother of the man nominated for diplomatic honors to-day. Feeling in the State ran high over this tragedy. In the streets of Columbia there stands a monument to the memory of Mr. Gonzales, on which it is recorded that he was "Murdered," near the spot where the monument is erected. This monument was paid for by popular subscription. Lieut. Gov. Tillman was acquitted.

Senator Tillman has recently shown a disposition to forgive his enemies and seek their forgiveness. He has been in precarious health for a long time and has expressed himself as desirous of making his peace with the world and all those with whom he has had differenecs.

Cuba Welcomes Gonzales.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, June 13.—The nomination of W. E. Gonzales as United States Minister to Cuba is favorably received in Havana, most of the papers commenting favorably. The newspaper Cuba, which libeled Minister Beaupre and Secretary Gibson, to-day published a retraction, declaring it recognized the uprightness of both.

EDWARDS IS OUT OF TO-DAY'S POLO GAME

F. M. Freake Will Replace Him at No. 2 in the Second English Line-Up.

IS A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER

Has Figured in Three Tournaments Abroad When Americans Were Playing for the Trophy.

F. M. Freake, a substitute in the English polo team, was named for the line-up of the invading forces which are to face the American champion four this afternoon in the second match for the international title on the field at Meadow Brook, the first of which was won by the Americans last Tuesday.

This nomination comes in the nature of a shakeup, as Freake will displace Capt. A. Noel Edwards as No. 2, the declaration being made by those in command of the challengers that Edwards's ponies have not "come back" after the furious riding to which they were subjected in the first contest on Tuesday.

This action is directly at variance with the announcement made Thursday night that there would be no change in the personnel of the challengers, such as was admittedly necessary if the English wanted to retrieve the prestige which was lost by their almost absolute lack of team play and hitting ability.

It also helps to throw a broadside into the camp of those who contended that under no circumstances would the lines of the military men who made up the team on Tuesday be broken. It has been stated time and again that the present invasion was to mark a triumph for regimental polo in England and India, and despite the fact that Freake and Lord Wodehouse were here as substitutes, they would have little or no chance to make the team unless something out of the ordinary were to happen.

The change apparently verifies the rumors which have been heard since the game on Tuesday that Edwards was far from being in his best form. Time and time again in Tuesday's match he overrode and made misses of shots which appeared to be particularly easy of hitting for counts, and immediately following the game it was stated that he seemed sure to be displaced for to-day's game.

Capt. R. G. Ritson, the field commander of the British team, sent the following cable to the Duke of Westminster, Grosvenor House, Chester, England, yesterday: "Edwards's ponies not recovered hard game. Freake will play instead."

Announcement of the substitution was made by Capt. E. D. Miller, manager of the English team, to William A. Hazard, Secretary of the Polo Association.

Freake is no newcomer in international play, having figured in the series in 1900, when England won the only match played; in 1902, when he showed in the second match of the three-game series, also won by England, and again in 1909, when the Americans lifted the cup at Hurlingham, which they have since defended ably, and have one leg on in the present tourney.

In all of these matches, and as a matter of fact in every tournament of any note in which he has played abroad, he has filled No. 2 position. Like his teammates in all of his preliminary work on the Long Island fields, he has shown wonderful hitting ability and remarkable keenness in the matter of anticipating plays, and he is expected to make ample amends for the poor work of the player whose place he takes.

Freake has played more frequently against the Big Four, whose aggressiveness proved so disastrous to his teammates on Tuesday, than any others of the latter squad, both in practice here and in cup matches. It is, therefore, conceded that he has a much better idea of the tactics of the American team than any of his associates, only one of whom, Capt. Cheape, has had any competitive experiences against them.

With the new line-up for the English which will show Cheape No. 1, Freake No. 2, Ritson No. 3, and Lockett back, the adherents of the challengers expect this afternoon a much more stubborn resistance and a stronger offense than was noticeable on the part of the English team last Tuesday.

Despite the wonderful showing of the Americans in the first match there is little or no betting on to-day's outcome, in which the quotations in the matter of price are even. It was said that one Wall Street broker "got down" $1,000 at evens, but aside from this there was a marked stringency in the Street when money was mentioned regarding the polo match.

The rumor to the effect that Louis E. Stoddard was to play No. 2 for the American team was denied last night by Secretary Hazard, who stated that he would be in at No. 1, as outlined in THE TIMES yesterday morning.

Allan Pinkerton will endeavor to check the effort of speculators of tickets in selling at the gates. It was said that he will attempt to have the holders of "choice" seats part with them at reasonable rates, and if his ideas along such lines are not concurred with summary action will be taken with the speculators, who are stated to have obtained possession of blocks of seats by subterfuge.

Both American and English players rested yesterday preparatory to the struggle, while the ponies of both encampments got what walking exercise was deemed beneficial for the strenuous work which is to come this afternoon. The game will begin at 4:30 P. M., and should a third game be made necessary by a victory of the English it will probably be played next Wednesday afternoon.

DISCIPLINE TWO AVIATORS.

Hild and Wood Suspended for Flying Over Polo Players.

Frederick C. Hild and C. Murvin Wood, the aviators who flew over the field of the Meadow Brook Hunt Club while the international polo match was in progress last Tuesday, were suspended by the Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America at a meeting yesterday afternoon. Hild was suspended until Jan. 1, 1914, and Wood until Aug. 1.

The committee met on an upper floor of the clubhouse at 297 Madison Avenue. At the close of the meeting Alan R. Hawley, Chairman of the committee and President of the club, gave out this statement:

> The Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America at its meeting this afternoon publicly censured Frederick C. Hild, aviation pilot No. 216, and disqualified him until Jan. 1, 1914, and withdrew his license for having violated the resolution of the Board of Governors adopted Nov. 13, 1911, by having flown over the polo games at Meadow Brook, Long Island, N. Y., on Tuesday, June 10.
>
> The committee likewise publicly censured and disqualified C. Murvin Wood, aviation pilot No. 209, until Aug. 1, 1913, and withdrew his license during his period of disqualificaton.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., June 13.—Because of the two flights by Aviators Wood and Hild over the Meadow Brook Club polo field last Tuesday, in the course of the international match, airmen are prohibited from flying over the Meadow Brook grounds, Belmont Park, or the Mineola fair grounds while they are in use. Notices to this effect were tacked up to-night on the door of every hangar on the Hempstead Plains aviation field.

SENATORS FAVOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Committee Reports Urging Constitutional Amendment Giving the Sex the Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The formal report of the Committee on Woman Suffrage favoring a constitutional amendment granting the ballot to women throughout the country was presented to the Senate to-day by Senator Ashurst of Arizona. The amendment, which was introduced by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, was ordered reported some weeks ago and Mr. Ashurst was selected to draft the report.

Mr. Ashurst said that "smug convention is a corrosive effluent," and that people should not "prefer turgid quietude to the boisterousness of liberty."

He then quoted some poetry warning the public not to "attempt the future portals with the past's blood-rusted key."

"In this Republic," said the report, "we are engaged in a struggle against fraud and violence, avarice and cupidity; a struggle in behalf of liberty and justice, and it will promote the success of this struggle to add to the present class of voters, another class (the women) in whom the materialistic is generally submerged for the idealistic; a class of voters which looks to all laws and movements as to how such laws and movements will affect her children; how such laws and conditions will promote morals, human health, and human progress, more especially, than as to how this or that particular law or policy will develop or serve material or property interests. Woman's sphere makes her the inescapable conservator of human life, and she ought to have the vote.

The committee's report also sets forth that the things to be considered in granting equal franchise are whether women as a class will "vote whenever full opportunity is offered, attempt to comprehend the questions upon which they vote, attempt to learn something of the character and fitness of the persons for whom they vote, vote against dishonest persons for office, oppose dishonest measures, refuse directly or indirectly to accept a bribe, and refuse directly or indirectly to give a bribe, place country above party, recognize the result of the election as the will of the people and therefore as the law, and continue to fight for a righteous, although defeated, cause so long as there is a reasonable hope of success."

"We submit," the report concludes, "that the class of voters sought to be enfranchised by this resolution answer each and every one of these interrogations with distinguished credit to itself, and that it fully, fairly, and in good faith measures up to these repuirements. We therefore, upon all grounds, conclude that the resolution should be submitted to the States for their adoption or ratification."

Senator Ashurst said he would use forceful energies to secure a vote on the resolution at the special session, but that he would not press it in such a way as to arouse opposition or interfere with tariff legislation.

ADELE RITCHIE DODGES 13TH

Weds a Day Ahead—Lawyer Seeks Bridegroom Bell.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., June 13.—Adele Ritchie, the actress, who had decided to defy the hoodoo of Friday, the 13th, 1913, and be married on the thirteenth hour of that day, changed her mind and was quietly married on Thursday to Charles Nelson Bell of New York. They left Applejack Farm here, where Miss Ritchie is spending the Summer, and, accompanied by her adopted sister, Mrs. Charles Boyd, and her pet Yorkshire terrier, Dot, 2d, they autoed to Stamford City Hall and were married by Justice Close. When the hoodoo day arrived Mr. and Mrs. Bell were motoring on their way to the Berkshires. They will return to Greenwich in two weeks.

Mr. Bell is the son of Col. John Bell of Allenhurst, N. J., a bank President noted for his liberality to his son in the past, and his son is a wine importer with an office on Fifth Avenue, New York. He has known Miss Ritchie nine years, and has followed her about on her travels. It is stated that his father made efforts to break up the friendship. Whether this had anything to do with the appearance in Greenwich this morning of a New York attorney, who started with Sheriff Finnegan in an automobile to the Ritchie place, is not known. Before reaching Applejack Farm the Sheriff and lawyer were informed that the wedding had occurred yesterday, and that Mr. Bell, whom they wished to see, was probably in another State. This may have been the thirteenth hoodoo which the bride and bridegroom escaped.

Famous "Beef and" Restaurant Yielded Him in 1911 a Bare $1,500.

The appraisal of the estate of John T. Meehan, proprietor of Dolan's restaurant at 33 Park Row, who died on Oct. 27, was filed yesterday, showing total assets of $22,253, which were reduced by debts and administration expenses to $19,782.

Although the restaurant was not regarded as profitable, on account of its owner's generosity, it was supposed that the pictures and relics used as ornaments had considerable value. Mr. Meehan's half interest in these furnishings, his brother, Peter J. Meehan, being his partner, was appraised at only $100, and the business itself escaped all taxation as an asset.

Peter J. Meehan testified at the hearings that the profits which his brother derived from the business in 1911 were only $1,500. The brother testified that no accounts were kept, and the partners drew out moneys as the need arose.

On the death of his uncle, Patrick Dolan, the founder of the restaurant, John Meehan was supposed to have received $450,000. Such a legacy was made in the will, but the appraisal of the estate failed to account for Meehan's receipt of any such sum.

Mr. Meehan died intestate and the estate under the State law passed to his immediate family, his wife, Mrs. Susan M. Meehan, receiving dower rights in the realty and one-third of the personalty, and the balance went in equal shares to his children, Grace J., John W., Suzette M., Elenor B., Francis D., and Vincent Meehan.

WILSON TO APPOINT MRS. J. B. HARRIMAN

President Selects New York Woman for Member of New Industrial Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Wilson has selected Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York for appointment as a member of the Industrial Commission, and probably will nominate her for that office, provided the two Senators from New York are agreeable. It was said to-day that no woman ever had been appointed to an office of the same character and importance.

Mrs. Harriman married a nephew of the late E. H. Harriman. She has been prominent as a social worker, and the President is well acquainted with her activities in that direction. In the last Presidential campaign Mrs. Harriman was in charge of the woman's section of the Democratic National Committee, her particular task being to impress on the women of the country the advantages to be derived from a reduction of the import duties on household necessities.

The Industrial Commission is to be composed of nine members, of whom three are to represent the public at large, three to represent capital, and three to represent labor. It is supposed that Mrs. Harriman will be one of the representatives of the people. The commission will undertake an exhaustive investigation of the relations between capital and labor and industrial and economic conditions generally.

At her country home in Mount Kisco Mrs. Harriman said last night she had not been notified that she was to be selected for the industrial commission, and that the Washington report was news to her. She said she could not discuss the subject as she had heard nothing from official channels about the report.

Mrs. Harriman, as Chairman of the Woman's National Wilson and Marshall organization, worked hard for the election of the National Democratic ticket. Headquarters were established by the organization in the Fifth Avenue Building, and Mrs. Harriman and other prominent women took an active part in the campaign. Mrs. Harriman, who has always taken an active interest in labor, became an admirer of the President because of the reforms he inaugurated when he was Governor for regulating the labor of men, women, and children in New Jersey. She believed, she said, he could do the same thing on a greater scale for the Federal Government.

Mrs. Harriman is a member of the National Civic Federation, the Child Welfare Association, and the New York Milk Committee. She is acquainted with all of the prominent labor leaders in the country.

$250,000 FIRE IN LIBERTY.

Business Section Wiped Out—Theatre and Church Destroyed.

Special to The New York Times.

LIBERTY, N. Y., June 13.—The business section of Liberty was destroyed this afternoon. Several large stores, the Opera House, and the First Baptist Church were among the many buildings burned. The total loss is expected to exceed $250,000.

The fire started in the rear of one of the stores and spread so rapidly that the local fire companies, fearing the blaze would prove too much for them, asked assistance from near-by places. A special train loaded with firemen and apparatus was dispatched from Middletown, forty miles away, but before it reached here the fire was under control.

Several buildings had to be dynamited before the progress of the blaze could be checked. In several instances after goods had been removed from stores the piled-up material was swept away before it was possible to get it out of the flames' path.

Several persons were injured, including Frank Schomacker, who fell from the roof of the Baptist Church.

Several New York firemen here on vacation gave valuable aid by supervising various sections of the fire, among them being Capt. Thomas Smith of the Brooklyn department.

The buildings destroyed were B. E. Misner's grocery, James Goodsier's dry goods store, B. H. Green's department store, Millspaugh & Co.'s drug store, Kniffin's music store, Rosa & Lancashire's grocery, O. B. Jafnel's drug store, James B. Mances's drug store, Freeholz's stationery store, Mauer's market, A. Hasbrouck's liquor store, New Lyric Theatre, and First Baptist Church.

HARD WORLD, SAYS GAYNOR.

"Partisan Vileness Here Is Something Dreadful," He Tells Sulzer.

Special to The New York Times.

> CITY OF NEW YORK.
> Office of the Mayor, June 10, 1913.
> Dear Gov. Sulzer: I thank you for sending me your speeches and other literature with regard to the question of primaries. I could not help reading your speeches with great sympathy. Their directness and lucidity impressed me strongly.
>
> Since I have been Mayor I have kept from meddling with matters outside of the City Government, and, on the whole, I think it better that I should continue to do that. You know the many things I have to meet here, and if I mix myself up in State politics my situation would be still harder than it is now.
>
> The partisan vileness down here is something dreadful. There are people here that purr around you and me only to betray us at the first opportunity. I suppose you have already perceived that. They are scoundrels of the worst kind. They have not an honest hair in their heads. They are not men for you and me to associate with or have anthing to do with. You have an honest purpose in view. They have not an honest thought.
>
> The better I do, or try to do, the better any head of a department here does, or tries to do, the more venomous become their attacks. They do not want any one to do well except themselves. And they are incapable of doing anything worth the while. They have neither the length, the breadth, nor the thickness to do it.
>
> Sincerely yours,
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

'BRIDGIE' WEBBER STABBED IN THE BACK

Gambler Who Testified Against Becker in Rosenthal Case Says a Boy Did It.

POLICE SUSPECT GUNMEN

Attack, They Think, Was to Punish Wounded Man for "Squealing" —He Is Not Badly Hurt.

"Bridgie" Webber, one of the four gamblers who testified against Police Lieutenant Becker and the gunmen convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, another gambler, was stabbed in the shoulder last night while walking with a companion in Eighth Street.

He said that he was attacked by a small boy, but the police do not credit this tale. They are inclined to think that Webber was stabbed by some one of his former associates in the underworld who sought revenge for Webber's having "squealed" in the Rosenthal case.

Patrolman Maher of the Mercer Street Station was on duty at Ninth Street and Broadway at midnight last night when two men approached him, one of them supporting the other, whose clothing was covered with blood.

The uninjured man told the policeman that his companion had been stabbed and asked him to call an ambulance. The patrolman did so, and Dr. McGuire of St. Vincent's Hospital responded.

The injured man gave his name at the hospital as Louis Harris and said he lived at 184 Rivington Street. He said he was a broker. On examination it was found he had a deep stab wound in the shoulder which was several inches long. The injury was dressed and the patient was assured that he was not in a serious condition and could quit the hospital soon. His companion said he was Joseph Michaels, living at the same address that his companion had given.

Meanwhile Detective Harvey of the Fifth Street Station had been assigned to investigate the stabbing. He learned from Patrolman Maher that the man who was wounded was not inclined to be communicative.

On arriving at the hospital he learned that the patient had changed the name he had given to Louis Webb. On going to the man's bedside to get information on which to begin his hunt for the stabber, he recognized the man as the gambler who had become notorious in connection with the Rosenthal case.

According to the detective, Webber told him that he could not account for the stabbing. He said he was walking through Eighth Street, and had arrived near Third Avenue on his way to the Subway station, when a small boy ran out of a house behind him and plunged a long knife into his back.

That was all he would tell the detective. The latter was not disposed to take this story very seriously.

Louis Webber, known to his friends as "Bridgie," before the murder of Herman Rosenthal had for a long time been the proprietor of gambling houses.

It was in Webber's poker rooms that Vallon, Rose, and Webber met before the murder of Rosenthal. Webber was arrested on the night of July 21, 1912, and charged with implication in the murder of Rosenthal.

He testified at the trial of ex-Police Lieutenant Charles Becker and at the trial of the gunmen that Becker, now in Sing Sing under sentence of death, had instigated the crime. After the trial Webber was released and went to Havana. On his return he announced that he had given up gambling.

MORE SLIDES AT CULEBRA.

One Practically Undoes a Month's Work by the Steam Shovel.

PANAMA, June 13.—There has been increased activity in the slides in Culebra Cut during the past twenty-four hours. A new movement took place yesterday on the slide on the east bank of the cut, precipitating a large mass of earth and rock into the canal, and covering all the tracks on the east side, choking the drainage ditch, and overturning a steam shovel.

This break now extends back to the upper terrace, and the level is cracked still further back.

The Cucaracha slide started a fresh movement this afternoon, filling the cut to the 67-foot level and bringing in more material than the steam shovels excavated from it for more than a month past.

Another slide which is likely to give serious trouble developed Thursday on the west bank of the canal, near Empire, where a mass of mud slid into the canal last year.

CHANGES IN HUERTA CABINET

Blanquet Succeeds Mondragon as Minister of War.

MEXICO CITY, June 13.—A general shake-up in the Cabinet of President Huerta occurred to-day. Gen. Manuel Mondragon resigned as Minister of War and was succeeded by Gen. Aureliano Blanquet, former military commander of the Federal District.

Jorge Vera Estanol relinquished the post of Minister of Public Instruction, Manuel Garza Aldape, Minister of Agriculture, taking his place. Several of the other Cabinet Ministers changed places.

CAUGHT UNDER THEIR AUTO.

Machine Overturns and Pins Two Real Estate Men Beneath.

Richard Altman and George Oswald, real estate brokers at 761 Seneca Street, Brooklyn, were returning in an automobile from a business trip to Valley Stream, L. I., last evening through the Highland Boulevard. As they were crossing the Vermont Avenue viaduct a tire on one of the front wheels blew out and the machine skidded against the curb and overturned.

Both the men were caught underneath, and it was not until other automobilists came up that they were able to get out. An ambulance took both men to the Bradford Street Hospital, where it was found they were suffering from nothing more serious than bruises. They will be out in a short time.

IMPERATOR REDUCES SPEED.

Has a Foggy Day, but Passengers Enjoy Freedom from Motion.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ON BOARD SS. IMPERATOR, (by Wireless via Crookhaven,) June 13.—The day's run was 323 knots, with a head wind. The weather is hazy and warm. There is no vibration and little motion of any kind. Everybody is on deck and in good spirits. The promenade deck is like Broadway.

Mrs. A. B. Wallace won the pool this morning.

The turbine engines developed 63,000 horse power this morning. From 2 until 4:30 this afternoon there was a heavy fog, which greatly reduced the ship's speed. The new system of three fog whistles—one forward, one amidships, and one astern, blown one at a time—was used.

At 8:30 this evening the fog closed in again.

According to the above dispatch the Imperator made 323 miles up till noon yesterday, and had to reduce speed on account of fog. She left Cherbourg at 9:30 P. M. on Thursday, which, allowing for the difference in time, would give her fifteen and a half hours steaming till noon at an average speed of 20 4-5 knots an hour.

A ROOSEVELT CAR SMASHED.

Guest of Colonel's Cousin Shaken Up on Way to Meadowcroft.

SAYVILLE, L. I., June 13.—One of the automobiles owned by John E. Roosevelt, a cousin of Col. Roosevelt, went out from the Long Island Railroad station here this evening bringing a week-end guest from Manhattan to Meadowcroft, the Roosevelt home in Sayville. As the driver was about to turn from the South Country Road to the private roadway winding toward Meadowcroft, a large touring car, in which two men were driving, ran into his machine.

The Roosevelt auto was tossed against a stone fence, and both the chauffeur and Mr. Roosevelt's guest were shaken and slightly bruised, but neither was thrown out. The second machine, which belonged to a Southampton resident, was only slightly damaged, and was able to go on its way, with neither of its occupants much the worse for the accident.

DIES FROM CIGARETTE BURN.

Got It on the Tip of His Nose and Erysipelas Came at Once.

As a result of a burn on his nose from a lighted cigarette, William Brown, 30 years old, a driver, who lived at 421 West Nineteenth Street, died at Bellevue Hospital yesterday. He was admitted to the hospital on June 4. He then had erysipelas.

He told the doctors that four days previous to that time he had burned the tip of his nose with a cigarette, and almost immediately erysipelas had developed there and had spread rapidly. The physicians at Bellevue had gotten to a point where they thought they could check the disease, when he developed lobar pneumonia, and from then on he sank rapidly.

WAGNER OWES $1,000,000.

Assets of Missing Philadelphia Lawyer Far Below That Sum.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—The liabilities of George M. Wagner, the lawyer who disappeared several weeks ago, leaving a trail of tangled affairs behind him, are estimated at $1,000,000 by the creditors. The assets were said to represent only a small fraction of that sum.

Application was made to-day to the Orphans' Court to have Wagner removed as executor of the estate of Esther M. Schmucker, his aunt.

The police, members of Wagner's family, and representatives of the score or more estates said to have suffered from his losses in the stock markets have been unable to solve the mystery of his disappearance.

BRYAN HAS A "DINNER PAIL."

Intends to Carry His Luncheon to the Office Hereafter, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Secretary of State poked his head through the open door of the White House press-room as he was going away from the Cabinet meeting to-day. A reporter was there negotiating a modest luncheon of crackers and milk. Secretary Bryan beamed.

"That's a good idea," he said. "I'm going to carry my lunch to the State Department every day hereafter and eat it there. Mrs. Bryan has bought a basket for me, and she is going to fix up a lunch for me every morning so that I can take it to the department with me. It will save me nearly an hour to eat it there instead of going out for it."

WHEATLEY IN WILKIE POST.

Designated Acting Customs Agent—Permanent Appointment Later.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Joseph Walter Wheatley, a special agent of the Treasury, attached to the New York Custom House, has been designated as Acting Supervising Special Agent, and it is understood that he will be permanently appointed to the office as successor to John W. Wilkie, who resigned recently.

Mr. Wheatley was largely instrumental in formulating the plan for the reorganization of customs districts, which was approved by President Taft, but which has not been put into operation.

HILL ROAD HALTS WORK.

Rate Decision Stops Improvements on the Great Northern.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, June 13.—In anticipation of the effect of the Supreme Court's rate decision, it was announced at the Great Northern general offices to-day that James J. Hill had issued orders to stop all work that was not absolutely necessary to maintain the present efficiency of the system.

Construction work in Montana was called off, and a report from Superior said that 300 men employed as track repairers on the Missabe division had been laid off.

DEATH LIST GROWS TO SIX

Conductor, Fireman, and Baggagemaster Corroborate Engineer—'Yellow Eye' Warned of Tragedy.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, June 13.—It came out at the Coroner's inquest here to-day that Charles J. Dougherty, a young and inexperienced engineer, gained his opportunity to take out the second section of the Boston-New York Express of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad yesterday because a veteran engineer had been laid off for failure to stop the great engine at the proper place. The veteran, when he was disciplined, asserted that the air-brakes were in bad condition.

It also was disclosed that Dougherty, whose locomotive ploughed its way through the Pullman car Skylark, on the rear of the first section, when that part of the express was standing in the Stamford yards at 5:03 o'clock in the afternoon, had reported on Tuesday that the brakes of the locomotive were in bad condition, and had been forced to lay off for part of Wednesday because of straining his back in attempting to throw a big engine of the same type into the reverse.

Dougherty told his story to the Coroner in a hoarse voice, which he struggled to keep under control. He frequently broke into sobbing as he was led by the kindly questioning through the details of the trip that ended in the rear-end collision of the westbound sections, in which six persons were killed and a score injured. The sixth victim, Gregory Humes of The New York World, died in the Stamford Hospital this morning.

When the story reached its climax in the narrative of what happened in the few tense moments just before the collision, Dougherty said:

Did All He Could, Says Engineer.

"I did every human thing I could to stop the train. I threw the air brake into the emergency. I pulled open the sand valve. I jerked the whistle cord till the train gave a long, shrill warning blast, and I waved from the cab window to the trainmen of the section ahead to go on—to get under way."

"And what else could you have done?" asked Coroner John J. Phelan, who was treating the witness a good deal after the manner of a kindly father.

"I might have reversed my engine," Dougherty admitted.

"And did you do that?"

"No, I did not. I tried to do it, but my back wouldn't stand for it. My back quit on me. I got the lever over three notches and I couldn't budge it any further. That was not a tenth far enough to cause a reverse. My back is in plasters from the wrenching I gave it Wednesday trying to reverse one of those big engines, and the levers are so stiff that it takes all two men can do to throw some of them over into the reverse."

Dougherty's story was told with every appearance of a man giving a simple narrative of the truth, so far as he could see and tell it. He did not shield himself or the railroad company, nor show any indication of concern over the consequences of what he told.

He said, in giving the case against himself, that every signal was set properly; that he was a greenhorn at engineering; that he never had taken out an express train until three days before the wreck; that he was not an expert on railroad signals; that his total experience with passenger trains covered less than seven days, and that his experience with the giant locomotive that caused the wreck was limited to three consecutive days just preceding the wreck.

Concerning the New Haven company, he told how it laid off engineers who ran past their stations because the brakes would not work, and did nothing with the locomotives. He asserted he was forced to stay off duty without pay after wrenching his back, and that he went back to work on the fatal run into Stamford because he needed the money so badly he couldn't afford to lie in bed. The engineer said he was put to work on the big locomotive without any instruction or any inquiry into his physical condition, and that he had serious trouble with his brakes for three consecutive trips preceding the wreck, one of the trips being made with the same engine that bored into the old wooden car Skylark.

Witness Guarded from Company.

Dougherty related his story standing between two men who warded off all railroad lawyers and refused to let him speak to any person except the Coroner. One of those men was an old engineer for whom he had worked when a fireman. The other was John H. Dillon, his brother-in-law, who had stood guard outside the young engineer's home in New Haven all last night to keep railroad agents away from him.

Dougherty gave his information in full to the Coroner, he said, because he believed the public was entitled to know all the facts. He had refused five different requests from the company, he asserted, "to come down to the office."

Although the Coroner gained from Dougherty all the evidence the engineer seemed capable of giving, the getting of other data needed at the inquest was a different story. Coroner Phelan wished to see the old wooden Pullman car Skylark, but he could not find it. He learned after much inquiry that the Skylark had been spirited away in the night to a remote sidetrack running through a gully into a gravel pit, and there burned to ashes. Agents from the Coroner's office who found the skeleton of the Skylark reported that men had made a great torch in the night in a spot that could not be seen from the New Haven tracks or from Stamford, and that the task of burning the car had been done thoroughly.

"Do you think the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad deliberately burned the car to destroy evidence?" Coroner Phelan was asked. He did not try to conceal the deep chagrin he felt that the car which he desired to inspect very carefully had been destroyed by a fire started supposedly under railroad orders.

"I do not like to express an opinion of the company's motives, but I know what tens of thousands of the people of this State will think," he replied. "They will think the company has wilfully destroyed evidence of importance to the State."

Skylark Rushed to the Flames.

The first story told by the railroad officials was that they burned the Skylark at 3 o'clock this morning because no request from the Coroner had been received to hold the car as evidence. Reporters got afterward from the railroad employe who fired the car his story that he obeyed the orders of the general manager of the railroad and burned it at 11 P. M. It then was admitted by the officials in charge that the car had been burned at that hour, but insistence still was put on the point that the Coroner should have made a demand that the car be kept.

"Do you mean that you consider five hours a long enough period to wait after a wreck for a demand to hold the evidence?" C. L. Bardo, the general manager, was asked.

"Yes," he insisted, "that is our view."

Mr. Bardo added that the locomotive which hit the Skylark was being held for the inspection of the Public Utilities Commission, and that the second section's cars involved in the wreck were being held for the Coroner.

When Coroner Phelan first heard that the Skylark had been converted into ashes he refused to believe it. He took from his pocket a letter which he said he considered a pledge from the railroad company to hold all cars involved in the collision. On examining the communication closely, he saw that it did not mention cars from the first section. The letter, which signed, "C. L. Bardo, General Manager," and dated "Stamford Yards," ran:

> We will have returned to Stamford the entire car equipment of the second section for such inspection as you may wish to make.

Coroner Phelan decided to lose no time, after convincing himself that the Skylark really was destroyed, in inspecting the cars offered by the railroad company. He went to the yards and to a track on which he had been told the cars would be placed. They were not there. A dozen locomotives were there, however, one of them seeming to have urgent business in shunting to and fro on every track which the Coroner attempted to cross. He rushed from the scene, finally, and sent Police Chief Brennan, who had hurried to Stamford from the Police Chiefs' convention in Washington on hearing of the wreck, to notify the railroad company that he had tried to make the inspection agreed on and had failed to do so because the cars could not be found.

The Coroner's inquest was little more than started in to-day's two sessions. It will go on again to-morrow, and after adjournment another attempt will be made by Mr. Phelan to inspect the cars of the second section.

The story of the engineer, Dougherty, which took most of to-day, was corroborated by the fireman who was with him, the conductor of Dougherty's section, the man in charge of the mail car, and by officials of the company, in the point concerning the laying off of a veteran engineer on Monday for failure to make the brakes work on the engine figuring in the wreck.

At to-morrow's session the engine dispatcher's complaint book, in which Dougherty said he wrote on Tuesday that the brakes would not work, will be produced, provided the railroad company's officials, from whom it was subpoenaed, are able to trace it. The engineer who was laid off on Monday will be present, provided subpoena servers are able to find him.

Dougherty was out to-night on $5,000 bail given by his brother-in-law, Mr. Dillon, on a technical charge of manslaughter.

The Engineer's Story.

The engineer's story was going to be an unusual narrative, it was clear from his manner when he entered the courtroom with railroad lawyers following him and his brother-in-law shouldering them out of the way.

"I live at 252 Spring Street, New Haven," said Dougherty, when he had taken his place in the witness chair. The Coroner noted the huskiness of the engineer's voice and asked if he could not speak more loudly. Dillon, the brother-in-law, answered for him.

"I wish to explain," said Mr. Dillon, "that the young man is doing the best he can and more than I expected from him. You will have to receive his answers and repeat them to the stenographers, and he will do all he can for you."

"I am 31 years old," the engineer went on. He appeared to weigh 140 pounds. His eyes were swollen and red—from crying all night, his brother-in-law explained.

"I have been an engineer for one year and three months," Dougherty testified. "I started to work for the New Haven road July 22, 1902, as a fireman. On March 16, 1912, I was set up as an engineer. That is, I was promoted. I was assigned to a switch engine in the Harlem River yards and to freight trains occasionally."

His Experience Small.

"What experience have you had as an engineer of passenger trains?" asked the Coroner.

"Very little," said Dougherty. The answer caused several railroad lawyers who stood near the witness to gasp slightly, while a tremor of expectancy of startling testimony to follow passed over the crowd in the courtroom. "I ran a combination train from New Haven to New London once and possibly I ran passenger trains on four other occasions."

"When did you first run an express train?"

"Last Tuesday."

"Was it the Boston-New York Express—the train that was wrecked?"

"Yes." My first express train experience was taking out the second section on Tuesday. My only other experience consisted of the trips I made on Wednesday and on the run that ended in the collision."

"Are you an expert on signals?"

"No, not an expert. Just a normal man."

"And how did you come to be selected to run this express?"

"Because the old engineer was laid off on Monday. He ran past his signals and gave as an excuse that the brakes wouldn't work. They suspended him and put me in his place."

Coroner Phelan demanded the name of that engineer. The witness said it was Harmon, and that the veteran lived in New Haven. At that point Benjamin Spock, a lawyer representing the railroad, interrupted the proceedings to explain that what the witness had testified was true, but that Harmon had not been "laid off" in the sense of being dismissed. Harmon was suspended, the lawyer said, pending an investigation into the reasons why he had run past the station platform at South Norwalk.

"Are you a regular engineer?" the Coroner asked of Dougherty.

"No," the witness answered. "I am an extra engineer. I am an extra on freight service also. My name goes on a board called a 'spare board,' and when it gets to the top through the selection of those above it for runs I get a run. My run may last a day or two or six weeks. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is responsible for the 'spare board.' It works on the principle of first come first served. The company had to take me when my name came to the top. The Brotherhood has an agreement to that effect."

Strained Back on Lever.

Q.—What trouble did you first notice after taking out the express train? A.—I tried to throw the lever to reverse and strained my back. I don't know what was wrong with the lever. The machinist figured it out. I know about machinery from books only—the books I studied for my examination as an engineer.

Q.—Do you know anything about the Pacific type of engine, such as you ran on the express train? A.—No, nothing at all. I never operated one of this type of engines till last Tuesday. I operated the mogul type on freight trains.

Q.—Did you feel peculiar or nervous on taking out an express train? A.—Yes. On Tuesday I felt nervous.

Q.—Why? A.—Well, it was something new in my life. Wednesday I also was nervous, but Thursday I felt all right.

Q.—Do you drink? A.—No, I am a teetotaler. The only drink I ever had was when I had pneumonia six years ago.

Dougherty traced the trip of the express on its way from New Haven, where he took charge of the cab, to the collision here, in which he sat in the cab with his feet braced, while his fireman braced himself on the other side.

"At Westport," he said, "I found the distance signal set against me and the home signal set against me. The first meant to run with caution and under control, and the second meant to stop. I was then about two minutes late. Just as I stopped, the home signal moved to fair, and I started again."

Q.—How fast does the railroad company expect you to run when you are late and trying to make up time? A.—As fast as you can make the wheels go 'round. I ran at from fifty-five to sixty miles an hour in the open to keep the schedule.

The Coroner inquired as to the minute details of the situation near Stamford. He wished to know what signal tower set the distance signal against Dougherty's train 2,100 yards out from the first section that was waiting on the track ahead. G. E. Wood, a signal-tower operator, volunteered a statement that he had set the signal from the tower in Stamford.

"What did you do when you saw that signal set against you—did you bring your train under control and proceed with caution?" asked the Coroner of Dougherty.

Collapses in Tragic Tale.

The young engineer had been struggling along up to that point. Now he broke down completely.

"I tried to," he sobbed, and for three minutes no one spoke in the courtroom, while the witness held his handkerchief to his eyes.

When the sobbing was interrupted, it was by a suggestion from Coroner Phelan that everybody retire for half an hour to let the witness regain his composure.

On retaking the stand after his respite, Dougherty was more composed.

"I called out to the fireman, 'Yellow eye!'" he said, "and the fireman answered me, 'Yellow eye!' That was a train length away from the warning signal that the track ahead was occupied. 'Yellow eye' is our expression for a signal that means caution. I shut off the steam and started to let her drift toward the home signal.

"It was straight track ahead. I could see the other train apparently right under the home signal tower. I gave her the air and saw she was not taking it. After going maybe a car length I gave her the air stronger. The air didn't take hold. When I was 200 feet away from the home signal I gave her the emergency. That put on the full force. I saw there was going to be a collision because she would not stop. I grabbed the sand valve string and the whistle.

"After one long blast," the engineer's dramatic narrative continued, "I let go of the sand valve and held to the whistle still, waving my other arm out of the cab window to two trainmen I could see in the rear of the first section. I was praying they'd move out. I was trying to warn them. The two men saw a collision was coming and stepped aside from the track.

"That was all I could do. My train broke in two. I tried to reverse the engine, but my back wouldn't stand for it. I got the lever three notches up, but I failed then."

"What did your fireman do?" asked the Coroner.

"He didn't say a word," Dougherty answered. "At first, he prepared to jump. Then he braced himself and stayed with the engine."

Child's Close Escape a Warning.

"In previous applications of the air, did you notice that anything was wrong?" was asked.

"Yes," Dougherty answered. "On Tuesday at South Norwalk I cut off the power to drift across a bridge, and on coming to the end of the station platform, drifting, I saw a little boy, maybe 5 years old, come out on the track. I threw the brake into the emergency. It should have stopped me in two or three car lengths; but I passed on clear to the lower end of the station platform before stopping.

"Some one heard my whistle and snatched the little boy away. My fireman asked me what I had used the emergency for, and I said I nearly ran over the little lad."

Q.—Where did you first see a flagman from the stalled first section? A.—Right at the rear of his train. He should have been twelve telegraph pole lengths in the rear.

Q.—And you are sure you knew your engine was balky about responding to the air brakes? A.—Yes. Besides the case at South Norwalk, on Tuesday I ran past the station at Bridgeport and had to back up two or three car lengths after finally stopping the train.

Q.—What did you do after that experience? A.—I used greater caution—put the air on earlier than usual.

Q.—And did you not think that situation serious enough to report it? A.—Yes, I reported it at Stamford to the engine dispatcher. I wrote it in the workbook. I wrote, "Brakes no good—won't hold."

Q.—And what happened? A.—Well, on the run back she seemed to work a little better. Maybe they fixed her up.

Q.—Did you speak about the brakes to any one? A.—Yes, to several. All the engineers were complaining. One engineer I recall that I spoke to was King. He said he knew about the trouble—that the air was no good.

Q.—Do you know how many cars went along with the engine? A.—No, I do not. Three or four came with the engine when we parted and three or four stopped back. We had eight cars in all.

Demands Death Engine's History.

Coroner Phelan expressed curiosity about the fatal engine, which was known as No. 1,338, Pacific type. He asked railroad officials to bring to the courtroom the engine's full history, with the names of the builders and all engineers who had operated the locomotive up to date.

"How did this engine compare in size to the engine in the Westport wreck?" the Coroner asked.

"It was much larger than that engine," said Dougherty. "It was a newer and much heavier type."

Q.—Do you know if anything could have been wrong with the cars—that is, with the air pipes? A.—No, I do not. I do not know where the trouble was.

Dougherty was excused, and Barry Smith, 22 years old, the fireman on the engine with Dougherty, was called. He corroborated Dougherty's story in full, recalling conversations about the bad air and the incident in which the child figured, as well as the occurrence of passing the Bridgeport station and having to back up. Smith told of his increasing nervousness as the home signal in Stamford was reached without the train showing signs of slowing down enough to stop.

Dougherty was recalled for further examination on the testimony of the fireman.

Q.—What happened when you tried to reverse the engine? A.—My back hurt, I couldn't get her over.

Q.—You are sure your back still is in bad shape? A.—Yes. It is in plasters now. That lever was very stiff. I hadn't steam enough in me—muscle power, I mean—to pull her over. I did the best I could to pull her over, but my back wouldn't stand for it.

Q.—Did you know when you went to work with a lame back that you'd get this powerful engine to work? A.—No one ever knows when he comes to work what engine he'll get.

Q.—But why didn't you report you had a lame back when this big engine was offered to you? A.—They'd tell you if you couldn't do the work they'd hire some one who could. You'd get fired.

Q.—Couldn't the railroad company work the levers in the yards in short runs till they limbered up? A.—No, it takes two months of service to limber up a new engine, and some new ones are mighty stiff. I didn't think I'd be called on to reverse. That's why I took this run. I couldn't afford to stay home to get well and be off the payroll.

Dougherty named Jerry O'Connor of Springfield as another engineer he had heard complaining about the new engines. O'Connor was sent for, and it was promised he should be present to-morrow.

Conductor Heard Air Go On.

Thomas H. Dunn, conductor of the second section, said he heard the air go on at the usual point as the express train neared Stamford.

William A. Wilson, baggage master, testified that the emergency break went on so hard that it threw him to the floor of the baggage car.

Dunn told that the train broke in two at the front end of the fourth car. The force was sufficient, he related, to throw him to the floor. He had just had time to get up when he fell again as the engine drilled its way into the Skylark.

The train at that time was going twelve miles an hour, he said, with the brakes set and the pistons vibrating from the pressure against the wheels. He said he looked especially to see if the brakes were set.

"I went forward after the collision," Dunn testified, "and I found Dougherty, the engineer. I asked him what was the matter, and he replied, 'I can't tell you. They wouldn't hold.' He meant the brakes. I worked for forty minutes helping lift the wounded out of the Skylark, and then went to the railroad station and filled out a report of the accident."

Dunn said his most important duty as conductor was to look out for the safety of passengers, but that the work of taking up the fares kept him so busy he seldom had time to think of safety matters. He sent a flagman back from the train, he asserted, with red fire and track bombs to warn trains behind about the wreck.

Although it was not brought out by the Coroner, it was stated generally in railroad circles that the cars in front of the Skylark on the first section were steel day coaches and that all of them escaped injury for that reason. Testimony on that phase of the wreck will be heard to-morrow.

Coroner Phelan said, after going to the scene of the wreck and estimating the distance between the home signal and the point at which all the testimony agreed Dougherty began to apply the air, that the brakes must have been at fault, as there was much more space than that required usually for a train to come to a full stop. The distance was about 2,100 feet from Elm Street in Stamford to Signal Tower No. 38, beside which the first section was standing.

At the close of the day's hearings, Mr. Dillon, Dougherty's brother-in-law, made this statement:

"Dougherty came to me as soon as he could after the wreck. He was at my home when it was said he had disappeared. He wanted my advice. I took him in charge and shall remain in charge of him.

"I think that an engineer's story, free and warm from the heart, has been told to-day for the first time. There was no advice that he misremember things or forget things. There was no previous rehearsing of his story. I saw that he came in contact with nobody until he faced the Coroner, and that all suggestions that he 'come to the office,' of which five or more were made, were turned down.

"He has a wife and two babies, and he will trust in them and nobody else."

In the Stamford Hospital to-night it was reported that all the injured passengers were resting comfortably.

DEFENDS BURNING OF CAR.

Droege Ordered It and Bardo Says It Is a Railroad Rule.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, June 13.—The man who ordered the old Pullman car Skylark converted into a big bonfire last night was J. W. Droege, Superintendent of the Stamford Division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. He who applied the torch was William Wirtle, an employe in the Stamford yards.

The whereabouts of the Skylark remained a mystery from the time the car was pulled away from the scene of the wreck at 6:30 o'clock last night until the charred wreckage of twisted steel and underpinning was found on a sidetrack belonging, it is said, to the Standard Oil Company, near Glenbrook, a mile east of Stamford, this morning.

General Manager Bardo of the New Haven Road received reporters this afternoon when he was informed that they desired to ask about the Skylark. Mr. Bardo was asked why no effort was made to salvage the car, how much it was worth, and what the view of the railroad was as to the question of the Skylark's use in evidence. All the questions asked were taken under consideration and a statement was prepared, which, it was announced, must be used as the official view of the company and not of any individual. That statement follows:

No Evidence in Car It Is Said.

> It is the opinion of the company that Skylark offered no evidence. The engine, which in our view offers all the evidence in the case, we have sent to the shops, where it will be held until the Public Utilities Commission and the Inter-State Commerce Commission view it, which will be to-morrow.
>
> As to the burning of the Skylark, it was necessary to remove it because of interference with traffic on adjoining tracks. It was removed from Tower 38 to the Elm Street bridge and from there to Glenbrook at 11:15 o'clock. It is an unwritten law of railroading that all debris must be removed from the right of way and destroyed before daybreak in the case of a wreck occurring at night. In keeping with this unwritten law, the car was cut from the locomotive and set on fire. This was determined upon only after there had come no request from the Coroner that the car be held.

Mr. Bardo added that he had been conducting an investigation all day at which Chief Inspector Elwell of the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission and Inspector Howard of the Inter-State Commerce Commission were present.

"Every indication at this time points to a complete disregard of signals by Engineer Dougherty," asserted Mr. Bardo.

"A further investigation will be conducted by the Inspectors of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and the Public Utilities Commission in New Haven on Monday next, and a public hearing by Chief Inspector Belknap of the Inter-State Commerce Commission at Bridgeport on Wednesday next.

"In the meantime exhaustive tests will be made by a board of experts appointed by the railroad to determine, beyond doubt, the efficiency of the brakes, which, from the testimony of engineers in charge of the train both before and after the accident, were efficient in all respects."

Commerce Commission Acts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission issued orders to-day for a rigorous investigation to determine the responsibility for the wreck at Stamford yesterday on the New Haven Road. That inquiry will be more important and far-reaching than the usual accident investigation, and is expected to result in remedial legislation in Congress.

The commission has three of its Safety Appliance Inspectors on the scene of the wreck making a preliminary inquiry. The Inspectors have been in frequent communication to-night with H. W. Belnap, Chief of the Division of Safety Appliances. They are H. D. Lyons of Poughkeepsie, who was in Stamford an hour after the wreck; J. S. Hawley of Boston, and F. A. Howard of upper New York State. They have reported by telephone. Chief Inspector Belnap would not disclose to-night the character of their reports. He will go to Connecticut soon to take charge of the investigation.

Commissioner McChord of the Commerce Commission will go to Stamford early next week to take charge of the official inquiry. The commission has arranged for hearings in Stamford beginning next Wednesday. The hearings will be conducted jointly by the Inter-State Commission and the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission.

Chair man Clark of the Commerce Commission called attention to-day to the fact that the commission in its annual report for 1911 recommended the adoption of steel cars for all passenger and Pullman coaches in inter-State traffic, and also that all inter-State trans be fully equipped with safety appliances. The commission also recommended universal adoption of the block system.

Members of the commission said to-night Congress had not followed up these recommendations with legislation. Congress provided last year for the installation of steel coaches for the protection of all railway mail employes in inter-State traffic. That provision requires the roads to install steel postal coaches by 1917, at the rate of 25 per cent. annually, beginning this year. But there Congress stopped.

Say More Power Is Needed.

Commissioner McChord and other members who investigated the Bridgeport wreck of 1911 on the New Haven road, and who will have charge of the Stamford hearing, believe these wrecks on the New Haven and other roads recently show conclusively that the Commission should have greater control. They think the laws regarding accidents should require all railroads to send telegraphic reports to the Commission immediately they hear of wrecks on their lines. That would enable the inspectors to be ordered to the spots before the departure of witnesses. The Commission shortly before the Bridgeport wreck required all roads to do that. Some of them refused to accede. Other roads sent long telegrams to the Commission collect, but those messages were not accepted by the Commission as no provision was made for their payment.

In the opinion of members, the most important thing is legislation giving the commission the right to compel the railroads to adopt its suggestions with regard to safety appliances and precautionary measures.

The commission, it was pointed out to-night, also emphasized in its reports the imperative necessity of ascertaining and improving the physical conditions of railways.

With the facilities placed at their command by Congress, the Commissioners say they are able to investigate only a few of the accidents that occur.

NEW HAVEN, June 13.—"We have no knowledge of the disposition of the Pullman car Skylark after the wreck at Stamford last night," was the only reply given out by the press department of the New Haven Road here to-day in response to inquiries made by newspapers.

MELLEN BLAMES ENGINEER.

Asserts Man Ran Past Signals and That Alone Caused Wreck.

A formal statement in regard to the wreck of the westbound Boston express at Stamford on Thursday afternoon was given out yesterday in this city by Charles S. Mellen, President of the New Haven Road. It follows:

> No man in this country feels more keenly sorrow and sympathy for the dead and injured than I do. Every precaution had been taken to prevent accidents of this kind and of any other character occurring on the New England lines which experience could suggest and human ingenuity devise. Dougherty, the engineer, ran past his signals, and that was the cause of the accident and no other cause.
>
> I have directed General Manager Bardo to co-operate with Coroner Phelan, the Public Utilities Commission of Connecticut, and the Inter-State Commerce Commission in making a searching investigation as to the cause for this accident. The Skylark was not one of our cars. It was a Pullman car. Half a dozen months ago the New York, New Haven & Hartford turned over its sleeping and parlor car equipment to the Pullman Company, that company agreeing to furnish all steel cars to replace the others, and it has been doing so.
>
> The locomotive was of the latest and best type of railroad engines, and was new. It was part of the $2,000,000 equipment ordered by me several months ago. This order included eighty-five locomotives, of which fifty were of the type to which this belonged.
>
> Vice President Whaley, General Manager Bardo, General Superintendent Droege, and all are co-operating with me earnestly in an effort to fix the exact responsibility for this sad accident. Again I cannot express the sympathy and grief I feel over this dreadful accident.

It was stated officially in the offices of the New Haven Road in the Grand Central Terminal last night that a statement concerning the progress of the investigation made by the company into the cause of the wreck at Stamford would be issued to-day. It also was announced that a full list of wooden and steel Pullman cars in use on the railroad would be given out.

The contract by which the New Haven Road recently turned over to the Pullman Company its parlor and sleeping car service, called for the payment of $3,300,000 to the railroad, according to a statement issued by President Mellen on April 23 last. In the same statement, Mr. Mellen said the sale to the Pullman Company was made because the road's equipment was becoming obsolete and the Pullman Company was willing to contract to supply $4,500,000 worth of steel cars, "the latest and best the Pullman Company can construct."

Concerning the car Skylark, the following statement was made in the offices of the New Haven Road:

> We are informed by a representative of the Pullman Company that the Skylark was not one of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad cars which was converted into a Pullman car. It is a standard heavy built Pullman car. It is not a steel car nor a steel underframe car, but what they call a modern heavy built parlor car, and cars of identical construction have been and are operated in trains on other roads.

O. P. Sauer, Assistant Superintendent of the Pullman Company, said at his office in the terminal that his company had supplied the New Haven Road with seventy-five Pullman cars since last January, and was supplying others as rapidly as they could be turned out. He added that the Pullman Company purposed to supply between 100 and 170 steel Pullman cars, and that at present between 150 and 170 parlor and sleeping cars were in use, all of them, except the seventy-five above mentioned, being of wooden construction.

General Manager Bardo, in speaking of Engineer Dougherty's career, made this statement:

> Prior to March 1 it was the rule to assign engineers on the spare board to trains other than limited trains, regardless of their experience as engineers.
>
> A modification of Rule 9 of the agreement was made, and is embodied in the supplement of the existing agreement, which provides that spare engineers having less than one year's experience will not be assigned to through trains.
>
> Dougherty was first promoted on March 16, 1912, and therefore he comes within the rule.

Supplementing President Mellen's statement, the following was issued from the New Haven Road's office in regard to the engine of the second section:

> The locomotive which was in the Stamford wreck was of the very latest and best type of railroad engine and was brand new. It was part of a $2,000,000 new equipment order placed by President Mellen some time ago. This order included eighty-five new locomotives, of which fifty were of the type to which this belonged, and were intended to pull both freight and passenger trains.
>
> These new locomotives began arriving from the locomotive builders on May 23, and were the best that money could buy for the purpose for which they were intended. They were built at Dunkirk, Ohio, and are of what is known as the Pacific type, super-heater locomotive. They weigh 112 tons and cost about $22,000 each. They are designed to haul a train of fifteen passenger cars or a freight train weighing about 2,000 tons.
>
> These engines were not only supposed to be the best that money could buy, but were equipped with every device which the ingenuity of locomotive builders could suggest to insure safety in operation.

Yonkers Hisses and Boos Senator Healy Off the Stage, Breaking Up Meeting.

ASSEMBLYMAN IN RETREAT

Governor Winds Up Whirlwind Campaign for Direct Nominations Here To-night.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, June 13.—After addressing audiences at Yonkers and New Rochelle, Gov. Sulzer wound up a whirlwind tour of Westchester County in the interest of his Direct Nominations bill with a speech before a crowded meeting here.

At Yonkers, where the Governor delivered his first speech to-night in the Warburton Theatre, the meeting broke up in a riot of booing and hissing as Senator John F. Healy, who represents this district in the upper branch of the Legislature, and whom the Governor had assailed in his speech as an enemy of the people, got up to speak in his own defense. Assemblyman Tracy P. Madden of Yonkers, who also occupied a seat on the stage and had been included in the Governor's denunciation, had come with a typewritten speech in his pocket which he intended to deliver. When he saw how the audience received Senator Healy he left the meeting hurriedly without making any effort to get a hearing. Two of the speakers on the Governor's side, former State Superintendent of Insurance William H. Hotchkiss, who more recently was State Chairman of the Progressive Party, and ex-Congressman William S. Bennet of New York, were prevented by the disorder which prevailed from delivering their speeches.

The theatre at Yonkers was jammed to the doors, and there were about 500 persons outside who could not get in. Former Supreme Court Justice Daly, to whom a renomination was denied by Richard Croker when he was leader of Tammany Hall, presided and was used by Gov. Sulzer as an object lesson in what a boss could do to an honest public official when the boss controlled the nominating machinery.

When Gov. Sulzer was finishing his speech at Yonkers he put to a vote the question of whether the audience desired direct nominations or not. The verdict was unanimously in the affirmative.

As the Governor was leaving, Senator Healy got up, advanced to the footlights, and raised his hand to demand silence from the audience, which was hissing and booing him fiercely.

"The Governor has told you that he loves peace," roared the Senator. "I love justice and fair play—"

This was as far as the audience would let him proceed. The hisses had never quite subsided, but now they were renewed with great vigor.

Senator Healy had his say at New Rochelle, where Gov. Sulzer invited him to rise and to explain his vote on the Direct Nominations bill.

Senator Healy said that he was in favor of direct nominations, but that he had voted against the Sulzer bill because he believed the Governor was trying to be Executive, Legislature, and judiciary; because the Governor's message on the bill had been insulting; becaus the Governor had threatened to veto bills of his if he did not vote for the Sulzer bill, and because he was not in accord with some of its provisions. He declared he would never vote for the bill in its present form.

As far as the Governor's proposed primary reform is concerned, this is the "enemy's country" in the sense that the entire delegation in both houses of the Legislature from Westchester voted against the Governor's bill at the regular session. Deputy State Controller "Mike" Walsh, the Democratic leader of this county, has taken sides with the organization and against the Governor in his fight on the present Democratic leadership in this State. For all that, the voters who turned out to hear the Governor greeted him warmly. Especially was that true of his audience at the meetings here and in Yonkers, which were under Bull Moose auspices. Still, there is no indication that his speeches to-night will change any of the five votes from Westchester in the Legislature when the Governor's bill comes before the extra session.

The Governor made his tour to-night under the auspices of the Westchester Civic League, composed largely of adherents of the Bull Moose faith. When he reached Yonkers, at 5 o'clock, he was received by Samuel Untermyer, who entertained the Governor at his estate, Graystone. While enjoying Mr. Untermyer's hospitality the Governor neglected an audience at Library Hall, in Yonkers, which he was scheduled to address. Finally, after a long wait, the audience went away in disgust.

The Westchester Civic League entertained the Governor at dinner at the Parkville Inn before he started out on his night of speechmaking.

There was a rally in the Murray Hill Lyceum last night in support of the Direct Primary bill, the speakers being Bainbridge Colby, John J. Hopper, James A. Allen, John Temple Graves, and Gilbert E. Roe, former partner of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. Mr. Colby said:

"The direct primary has been amply vindicated by practical experience wherever tried; it is not an experiment. Now, New York, which has always been the last among the States to accept progress or anything new for the public good, true to her traditions, lags behind the patriotic States of the West and says we must retain the State Convention in the face of the wisdom and wishes of a majority of its citizens. The little spoon-fed politicians who litter the Legislature with their presence say they doubt the sentiment of the people on the subject. Their position is good evidence that the direct primary is for the general public good."

Gov. Sulzer will wind up his direct nominations campaign in this city today. The extraordinary session of the Legislature summoned for the purpose of considering the Governor's proposed primary reform will convene at the Capitol on Monday evening.

The Governor is scheduled to address three meetings in this city to-night. His first address will be delivered at Bath Beach in the Avon Beach Casino. From there the Governor will journey by automobile to Congress Hall, at the corner of Atlantic Avenue and Vermont Avenue, in the East New York section of Brooklyn. The final meeting of the evening will be at Cooper Union, where William R. Hearst and Gov. Sulzer will both speak. Henry Morgenthau will preside at this meeting.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt had been advertised as a speaker at the Cooper Union meeting. Yesterday it was announced, however, that Col. Roosevelt would not be there.

DIES AN ACCUSED FORGER.

George A. Enell Charged with Defrauding Kendall Nail Co.

Through the filing of his death certificate in Jefferson Market Court, it became known yesterday that George A. Enell, President of the Kendall Nail and Supply Company, who was a prisoner in St. Luke's Hospital, had died there on Tuesday of bronchial pneumonia.

The Vice President of the company, Roy L. Brower, accused Enell of taking the books of the company from the Lincoln Trust Company to the Waldorf and having them burned there to conceal shortages. A warrant was issued for forgery, but Enell had left his hotel. He was traced last week to the hospital, where a revolver was found in his suitcase under his bed, so a charge of having violated the Sullivan law was also made.

Another official of the company, not yet arrested, is accused of complicity.

MONEY TIGHT IN CHILE.

Nitrate Market Not Good, Says New Yorker Returning on Adriatic.

The White Star liner Adriatic arrived last night from Liverpool with Capt. F. E. Beadnell, R. N. R., in command in place of Capt. Bertie Hayes, who is taking a vacation. Among her passengers was J. H. Bush, a partner in the firm of Wessel, Duval & Co. of New York and Valparaiso. Mr. Bush has spent eleven years in Chile and returns to live in New York. Mr. Bush said that he had sold out his nitrate interests in Chile, but would still remain in business here.

"Money is tight in Chile at the present time," he said, "and the nitrate market is not good, which naturally affects the commerce of the entire country. The present Government is not a particularly strong one, but Chile is a stable country commercially to-day and has a fine army and a fine navy. The people are hospitable and attend to their business."

When asked what he thought the opening of the Panama Canal would mean to Chile, Mr. Bush replied that it was developing the mercantile marine.

Another passenger on the Adriatic was S. J. Hall, a New York silk importer, who has been to Egypt for the Winter with his wife and daughter-in-law and two grandchildren. They spent some time in Cairo, which was full of Americans.

Acting on instructions received from Washington, the immigration officials detained a first-class passenger, Gustave Klein, who will be sent to Ellis Island to-day. He could not speak a word of English, and appeared to have plenty of money in his possession. John A. Pawson, another first-cabin passenger, was detained and will be sent to Ellis Island to-day on account of the contract labor laws.

CHASE IN SUBWAY TRAIN.

Sanzayi Persists Until Man He Says Robbed Him Is Arrested.

Charged with being one of three men who held up Eugenio Sanzayi, a jewelry salesman of Bellemead, N. J., in the kiosk of the Subway station at Bleecker Street last night, and robbed him of $97, Joseph Goldstein, a waiter, of 242 Broome Street, was arrested as he was running through Lafayette Street, by Policeman McCarthy and locked up in the Mulberry Street Station.

Sanzayi said he had drawn the money from the bank in the afternoon, and as he was entering the Subway station was held up by three men. Two of them, he said, held him, while the third went through his pockets. Then they jumped aboard a southbound train, Sanzayi in pursuit. In the car they separated. Sanzayi said he struggled in the car with Goldstein, but the passengers paid no attention to his cries for help. Goldstein left the train, Sanzayi said, at Spring Street, and he followed. At the station house the money was not found on Goldstein.

GAVE 'RAIN CHECKS' AT FIRE.

Moving Picture Theatre Proprietor Heads Off Possible Panic.

While a moving picture was being thrown on the screen at the Dixie Theatre, at 125-127 East 116th Street, last night, a spark caught the film and it flashed up in the operator's box. Nothing was apparent in the theatre, but one of the attendants walked out quietly and called policeman Lafferty, who ran to a fire box and sounded an alarm.

Before the arrival of the apparatus the operator and David Posner, the proprietor, had put out the burning film with sand and water. The lights were turned on and the manager mounted the stage and announced the moving-picture machine was out of order. He requested the audience of 250 men, women, and children to walk out and receive checks that would entitle them to attend another performance.

All the exists were thrown open and the crowd marched out. There was no sign of panic in the theatre, but there was a good deal of excitement outside when the fire engines arrived.

STOLE AND PAWNED GEMS.

Unable to Destroy Ticket, Florence Graham Confessed.

A stylishly dressed woman, who said she was Miss Florence Graham, 32 years old and a real estate broker, was locked up in the West 152d Street Station, last night, charged with the theft of a diamond bar pin containing eleven stones and valued at $700. Detective Donahue says that after a futile attempt to destroy a pawn ticket for the pin, on which a loan of $50 had been given, she confessed to stealing the jewelry.

Two weeks ago Miss Graham took a room in the home of a family named Sigel, at 3,600 Broadway. One of the family, Miss Mabel Sigel, owned the pin and wore it last Sunday. On Tuesday it had disappeared from her room, and she notified Donahue. Suspicion fell on Miss Graham, and last night Donahue went to the house and questioned her. After some grilling she asked permission to leave the room, and Donahue granted it, but suddenly followed her to another room, where he said he frustrated her attempt to destroy the pawn ticket.

The Sigel family know nothing of the woman, and she would answer no questions as to where she is in business or give any information other than her name and age.

SULZER TAKES HOLD OF COHALAN CASE

Calls on Bar Association to Send Him the Facts and Papers It Has.

ACTS ON JUSTICE'S LETTER

Satisfied That Politics Will Figure Now in Connolly Charges, Bar Will Demand Representation.

Gov. Sulzer wrote yesterday to the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association inclosing a copy of the letter Justice Cohalan had sent him informing him of the charges of John A. Connolly, and asking that they be brought before the special session of the Legislature. At the same time the Governor asked the Grievance Committee to forward to him all facts and papers it had bearing on the charges and such report and recommendations as it might feel inclined to make.

In these circumstances the Grievance Committee will hold a special meeting to-day or to-morrow to decide what it will do. The Governor's letter will then be before it, and it will know the exact terms of his request. The committee will decide whether it will send the papers it has in its possession directly to the Governor, or continue its investigation on its own account. It will, moreover, ask the Governor for permission to be represented before the Legislature by counsel. The letter Justice Cohalan wrote to the Governor follows:

> Supreme Court, Chambers Street,
> New York, June 12, 1913.
>
> The Hon. William Sulzer, Capitol, Albany, N. Y.:
>
> Sir: Charges have recently appeared in the public press of this city emanating from one John A. Connolly reflecting upon my conduct in my professional relations to him.
>
> If you deem it proper and compatible with the public interest, I ask that you direct the attention of the Legislature about to convene in extraordinary session to those charges for such action as it may deem proper, since in view of my judicial position the Legislature is the only body having jurisdiction to investigate and act in the premises. Respectfully yours,
>
> DANIEL F. COHALAN.

Gov. Sulzer, when he first received the letter, was not inclined to comment upon it, but later Valentine Taylor, his legal adviser, gave out the letter which he had written on behalf of the Governor to the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association. It contained this paragraph:

> Under the existing circumstances Gov. Sulzer requests that you file with him any and all exhibits and facts you have in your possession concerning this matter, together with your report, recommendations, and conclusion regarding the same, and upon the receipt of such information the Governor will take such further action in the matter as he may deem proper under the circumstances.

Under Article VI. of the Constitution, Section 11, a Supreme Court Justice may be removed by concurrent resolution of both houses of the Legislature if two-thirds of all the members elected to each house concur therein, or in proceedings of impeachment. Section 13, the Assembly shall have the power of impeachment by a majority vote. The court for the trial of impeachment shall be composed of the President of the Senate, the major part of the Senators, and a majority of the Judges of the Court of Appeals.

The carrying of the Connolly charges to the Legislature introduces into their consideration at once the element of politics. An important election is approaching, in which the power of Tammany in the city for the next four years will be decided. Rumors have been rife of a falling out of Justice Cohalan with Charles F. Murphy and surprise was expressed that the latter had made no move in aid of his old friend when the charges were first published, but it is not believed that now that they are to be tried publicly before the Legislature he will not do all he can to save the face of so prominent a member of Tammany Hall.

Surrogate Cohalan has also of late become a close friend of Gov. Sulzer, and his influence will undoubtedly be on the side of his brother. Consequently the Justice is likely to come before the Legislature with every disposition on behalf of the administration and the majority of the Senate and the Assembly to find the charges groundless.

The Grievance Committee of the Bar Association is, however, determined to press them if it finds, through its investigation, that they are well-grounded, and will send to Albany to represent it one of the most eminent counsel of the city. So, whatever may be the exigencies of politics, it appears likely that the charges will be fully ventilated, and enough evidence will be put on record to enable the people of the State to decide for themselves their opinion of the Justice's dealings with Connolly.

RINGS DOORBELL TO ROB.

Mrs. Nato Goes to Greet a Caller and Loses $250.

When Mrs. Magdalena Nato answered a ring at the door of her home, in Plateau Street, Corona, Queens, last night a young Italian sprang at her, seized her by the throat, wrestled with her, and wrenched away a bag containing $250 which she had concealed in the bosom of her dress. Neighbors who heard her screams came to their windows in time to see a young man run from her house to the street, where he was joined by two others. All three boarded a Flushing trolley car and escaped.

It was remembered afterward that yesterday morning Mrs. Nato had been making some purchases in a neighboring grocery store, and that any loiterers there might have seen her thrust her money bag into its place of safekeeping.

MILITANTS RESUME RAIDS.

Destroy Many Letters in Mail Boxes—Bomb in Railway Station.

LONDON, June 13.—The militant suffragette campaign was resumed in Edinburgh to-night with the biggest raid that had yet been made on mail boxes. Twelve of these receptacles from one end of the town to the other were attacked. Chemists' test tubes, filled with a colorless acid, which caught fire when the glass was broken, were dropped into the boxes, and many letters were badly damaged.

A bomb sewed up in an oil-soaked cushion was found to-night in the railway station at Eden Park, Kent. Attached to the bomb was a clock which was timed to explode it at 2 o'clock on Saturday morning. The clock had stopped when the bomb was discovered. Kerosene had been used to saturate the cushion inclosing the bomb.

The Judge of the Central Criminal Court found it impossible to conclude to-day the trial for conspiracy of the suffragette leaders, Miss Harriet Kerr, Miss Agnes Lake, Miss Rachel Barrett, Mrs. Beatrice Saunders, Miss Annie Kenney, Miss Laura Lennox, and Edwin Clayton, the analytical chemist, who acted as their adviser. The further hearings were, therefore, adjourned until June 17.

The Judge granted the defendants permission to attend the funeral of Miss Emily Wilding Davison on condition that they behave in an orderly manner. The funeral will be held to-morrow.

WELCOME FREED STRIKER.

Women Gather at the Tombs to Greet Miss Hinchey.

More than 200 women gathered at the Tombs Prison yesterday to welcome back to liberty Miss May Hinchey who finished serving a sentence of thirty days imposed upon her for assault in the garment workers' strike.

Most of the women were members of the Nurses' Settlement, in Henry Street, and when the released prisoner stepped from the Tombs she was cheered by the crowd. She was taken uptown in a large automobile.

Miss Hinchey was sentenced on May 1 after she had been convicted in Special Sessions of assaulting Miss Helen A. Miller, the floor woman in a shirt waist factory at Sixth Avenue and Ninth Street. Miss Miller said that as she was departing from the factory last March the defendant approached her and first begged her to go on strike and when she refused, struck her in the face. Many settlement workers were in court at Miss Hinchey's trial and testified in her behalf.

LEGISLATORS NEAR RIOT.

Illinois Member Knocks Down Another—Free Fight Threatened.

SPRINGFIELD, June 13.—The Illinois House of Representatives was at the riot point this evening when Representative Thomas N. Gorman of Peoria hit Representative George H. Wilson of Quincy, the "dry" leader, and knocked him down. The friends of Gorman and Wilson came near having a free-for-all fight before order was restored.

Wilson was in the rear of the hall talking to several Democratic "drys" when Gorman shouted:

"Get out of here, you piker; go back where you belong."

Wilson started back to his seat with some remark which angered Gorman, who let fly with his fist and stretched Wilson on the floor. In an instant the house was in an uproar. Members crowded into the aisles, shouting "Throw him out!" and "Expel that member!"

Gorman tried to get at Wilson a second time, and six men had all they could do to hold him. His second demonstration threw the House into turmoil again, and it was not quieted until the belligerent Representative left the hall.

AUTOISTS HONOR KAISER.

Hundreds Parade Before Him in Honor of His Jubilee.

BERLIN, June 13.—The festivities in connection with the completion on Sunday, June 15, of the twenty-fifth year of the reign of Emperor William opened this afternoon with a review of the Imperial Automobile Club, the Military Volunteer Automobile Corps, and other automobile organizations on the "Army Chaussee" in the western suburbs of Berlin. Headed by Prince Henry of Prussia, the commander of the corps, and the Duke of Ratisbon, President of the Automobile Club, a procession of hundreds of motor cars, decorated with flowers and bunting, defiled before his Majesty. The Duke of Ratisbon then presented the first of the innumerable addresses which the Emperor is to receive on his jubilee.

Joseph C. Grew, the Secretary, and Willing Spencer, the Second Secretary, of the American Embassy steered their own cars past the reviewing stand.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 13.—Lieut. Bellenger of the naval aviation camp here, beat the best previous altitude record for hydro-aeroplanes this afternoon when he climbed to a height of 6,200 feet. The best previous record at Annapolis was 4,460 feet, made last year by Ensign Herbster in a Wright biplane. Lieut. Bellenger used a Curtiss hydro-aeroplane, and made the actual ascent in forty-four minutes.

GLASSCOCK DEFENDS GUN RULE IN MINES

West Virginia Ex-Governor Says Martial Law Was Only Remedy in Strike.

FOUND COURTS POWERLESS

Senators Defer, Conspiracy Inquiry Because Labor Leaders Are Under Indictment.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 13.—Testifying before the United States Senate Committee to-day, ex-Gov. Glasscock offered a spirited defense of his order placing the strike zone under martial law.

"There was a reign of terror in the strike district," said the ex-Governor. "Twenty-five or thirty murders had been committed and no prosecutions had been held in the courts. I considered that martial law was an absolute necessity."

Gov. Glasscock said he had been reluctant to put the military in charge, but that parties to the industrial controversy had urged him to do so. He also said that the "mine guards," most of them employes of the Baldwin-Feltz Detective Agency, were the main cause of the trouble, and that one of his reasons for declaring martial law was his desire to rid the district of these men. After the guards had been driven out, he said, the question of the domination of the labor union became acute, and the trouble started afresh.

The Governor was unequivocal in his defense of the actions of the military commission.

"I considered that a state of war existed on Paint and Cabin Creeks," he said, "and that the will of the Commander in Chief, myself, was supreme in the affected territory. I regarded the proceedings by the military commission as strictly in accord with the law." He explained that the sentences imposed by the military commission which exceeded the penalties provided by the civil statutes, never were intended to be carried out. He said that he had an understanding with the commission that heavy sentences were to be imposed, but that he was not to allow the prisoners to serve the full terms. The moral effect of long sentences was sought, he said.

"I was determined," said the Governor, "to have peace and order restored."

He admitted having recommended some of the militiamen for places as mine guards in the pay of the operators. He said that he did not know how far these men had antagonized the miners in their performance of guard duty.

Representative S. B. Avis, who was County Prosecutor when the trouble began, testified that juries in the civil courts could not be depended upon to try cases arising out of the strike because of widespread prejudice.

Senator Borah ascertained from Mr. Avis that throughout the strike troubles the criminal courts and grand juries were proceeding without interference.

After this testimony the committee, to hurry along the inquiry, divided itself. Senators Shields and Kenyon and a score or more of witnesses went to a room in the Capitol and began the investigation of the conditions which led up to the strike. Senators Swanson, Martine, and Borah wound up the examination of the civil officers. Senator Borah started for Washington to-night, agreeing to return to Charleston if matters demanding his presence arose.

The committee decided to leave the matter of violations of immigration laws to be taken up in Washington. The big question of agreements and combinations "contrary to the laws of the United States" will not be taken up by the committee at this time, because officials of the United Mine Workers have been indicted on this charge.

ADVERTISING MEN'S CREED.

Baltimore Convention Adopts Strong Declaration of Principles.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 13.—The work of the ninth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs, which ended here to-day, is summed up in the following declaration of principles:

> We believe in truth, the cornerstone of all honorable and successful business, and we pledge ourselves each to one and one to all to make this the foundation of our dealings to the end that our mutual relations may become still more harmonious and efficient. We believe in truth not only in the printed word, but in every phase of business connected with the creation, publication, and dissemination of advertising.
>
> We believe there should be no double standard of morality involving buyer and seller of advertising or advertising material. Governmental agencies insist on "full weight" packages and "full weight" circulation figures. They also should insist on "full weight" delivery in ever commercial transaction involved in advertising. We believe that agents and advertisers should not issue copy containing manifestly exaggerated statements, slurs, or offensive matter of any kind, and that no such statements should be given publicity.
>
> We believe that the present chaotic multiplicity of methods of arriving at verification of circulation statements are not only confusing but inadequate, and that the time for radical revision of these methods and for standardization of statements is the present, and the opportunity for constructive work along these lines is given by the assemblage at this convention for the first time of representatives of all the different interests concerned in this vital matter.
>
> We believe in co-operation with other agencies now at work on this problem, especially in the plan of the Central Bureau of verification, which has already been initiated by some of the organizations represented in the convention, and request the Executive Committee to proceed therewith.
>
> We indorse the work of the National Vigilance Committee, and believe in the continued and persistent education of the press and public regarding fradulent advertising, and recommend that the commission, with the co-operation of the National Vigilance Committee should pass upon problems raised and conduct campaigns of education on these lines. We believe it to be the duty of every advertising interest to submit problems regarding questionable advertising to this commission and to the National Vigilance Committee.
>
> We believe that the elimination of sharp practice on the part of both buyer and seller of advertising and advertising material will result from the closer relationship that is being established, and that in place of minor antagonisms will come personal co-operation to the increased benefit of all concerned and the uplifting of the great and growing business of advertising.
>
> We believe in upholding the hands worthy to be upheld, and we believe that each and every member owes a duty to this association of enforcing the code of morals based on truth in advertising and truth and integrity in all the functions pertaining thereto.

The convention adjourned to meet at Toronto next year. William Woodhead of San Francisco was elected President, Walter B. Cherry of Syracuse, N. Y., Vice President; P. S. Florea of Indianapolis, Secretary, (re-election,) and T. D. La Quatte of Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

LONDON GREETS PICKERING.

Harvard Astronomer and Colleagues Address British Audience.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 13.—The Royal Astronomical Society, at its monthly meeting to-day, gave a welcome to Prof. E. C. Pickering and other American astronomers who are now visiting England.

Prof. Pickering, addressing the meeting, described the work of the Harvard observatory and the task which had been undertaken by Miss Annie Cannon, a member of the staff, who was making a classification of the stars according to their spectra. Miss Cannon, who was present, also spoke.

Prof. H. N. Russell of Princeton interested the audience by a description of his work in correlating the actual intrinsic brightness of stars with their spectra.

SUSPECT ABDUL'S NEPHEW.

Turkish Authorities Think He Financed Chefket's Murder.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 13.—Except in official circles, it is generally admitted here that the murder of Chefket Pasha was not an isolated criminal act, but part of a military plot to overthrow the present Government. Other leading Young Turks, among them Talaat Bey and Enver Bey, fear assassination and are taking elaborate precautions to guard themselves.

The authorities suspect that Prince Salah, a nephew of the late Sultan, helped to finance the plot.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 13.—A battle was fought here to-day between a police detachment and a man named Zia, supposed to be one of the assassins of the late Grand Vizier, Mahmoud Chefket Pasha, with the result that Zia was mortally wounded and a judge and a police officer received bullet wounds.

The detachment of police proceeded early in the morning to a house in Piraeus Street, where they had heard Zia was hiding. They surrounded the house and Zia immediately began shooting with a revolver, one of the bullets wounding Lieut. Hilmi Bey in the chest and another striking the foot of Judge Samuel Effendi, the examining magistrate accompanying the police.

The policemen returned the fire and soon afterward entered the house, where they found Zia suffering from a mortal wound.

The fighting, however, was not over, and it was found necessary to call troops to the assistance of the police in capturing the house. Some of Zia's companions had retired to the top floor, whence they maintained a hot fire upon the besiegers.

The soldiers and police eventually captured the house and arrested three of the wounded inmates, Capt. Kiazim, Lieut. Ali, a member of the fire brigade, and an unidentified man. Rifles and pistols were found in the house.

NAVAL AVIATOR KILLED.

Lieut. Kennedy of the Royal Flying Corps Fell in a Monoplane.

LONDON, June 13.—Lieut. James R. B. Kennedy of the naval wing of the Royal Flying Corps, was killed and C. Gordon Bell, another aviator, seriously injured in the fall of a monoplane near the Brooklands aerodrome to-day. Bell was driving the machine, with Lieut. Kennedy as a passenger.

The monoplane, at a height of about thirty feet, was flying at the rate of eighty miles an hour when Bell essayed a turn and banked the machine at too great an angle. The nose of the monoplane dipped suddenly, and a wing struck the ground, causing the machine to turn turtle. Both Kennedy and Bell were buried in the wreckage.

This is the second fatality in the Royal Flying Corps in less than a month, Lieut. Desmond L. Arthur of the Fifth Battalion, Royal Munster Fusiliers, having been killed near Montrose, Scotland, on May 27 while practicing aeroplane reconnoissance. Arthur fell with his machine from a height of 2,000 feet.

BARBERS AGAIN ON STRIKE.

I. W. W. Leader in Trouble for Having Signed a Contract.

In the upper section of Manhattan the barbers' strike engineered by the Industrial Workers of the World, which was supposed to have been settled some weeks ago, was declared on again yesterday. On the West Side above Fifty-ninth Street, and on the East above Ninety-third, the organizers declared, the barbers were out. The strike was brought about, the barbers say, by some of the shop owners failing to live up to the agreement with the union, whereby they were to close on Sundays and keep open week days only until eight o'clock at night. Joseph J. Ettor, the strike leader, said that the employers below the strike belt had kept their agreement. The strike is said to have followed complaints by boss barbers who were keeping the agreement, that they were put into unfair competition with others who did not.

Leonard Frisini, who led the Brooklyn barbers in their strike, is now in trouble with the I. W. W. on account, it is alleged, of making written contracts with employers. Charles Aversi of the executive committee said Frisini had violated the rule which forbids these contracts, or any that will prevent the I. W. W. from making new demands at any time it wishes. Frisini has had his credentials as a general organizer recalled and has been formally shorn of official power.

The strike leaders said yesterday that the boss barbers in the Bronx were reported to have decided in favor of opening Sunday forenoons, and that the strike would probably be extended to the Bronx to-day.

COME OUT FOR WHITMAN.

Queens County Republicans Favor Him for Fusion Candidate for Mayor

Among the first political organizations of importance in Queens to favor Charles S. Whitman as the fusion candidate for Mayor of New York is the Queens County Republican Club. At a meeting held in the clubrooms at 301 Steinway Avenue, Long Island City, yesterday resolutions were passed praising Mr. Whitman and recommending him to the political organizations of the city which are opposed to Tammany Hall.

John A. Porter, Secretary of the club, introduced a resolution, which was accepted, recommending to the fusion forces of Queens the selection of Theron H. Burden, the Republican leader in the First Assembly District, as their candidate for President of the Borough of Queens. It is expected that other Republican clubs in Queens will follow in indorsing the proposed nomination of Mr. Whitman for Mayor. The Bull Moose Party in that borough has not intimated who it favors for Mayor.

COL. ASTOR'S ESTATE IS $85,311,228

praised at $837,500; 28-30 West Thirty-fourth Street, appraised at $537,500, and New York City corprate stock of a par value of $300,000.

A Remarkable Appraisal.

One of the remarkable documents in the appraisal is the report of Robert E. Dowling, who appraised the downtown, Broadway, and Fifth Avenue property of the estate. This is heavily bound, and contains a complete description of every feature of the land and buildings appraised.

Representatives of the Astor estate said that while the estate had always kept complete accounts of all the estate's real property, no such detailed account of it had ever been got together as the appraisals by the four experts who prepared the tables of the Manhattan and Bronx property.

Among the interesting items in the report were statements concerning the Astor jewelry. It appeared that Col. Astor, when he went on his honeymoon trip in the Fall of 1911, bought his wife jewelry from Cartier in Paris to the value of $69,772. This was not paid for at the time and was listed among the debts of his estate, as was explained in hearings before Appraiser Coggey by Nicholas Biddle, Col. Astor's business agent and one of the executors of his will. The other Astor jewelry, most of which was held at the offices of the estate, was appraised at $161,920. The principal items were a diamond sunburst, $78,000; a necklace of diamonds, $60,000, and diamond earrings worth $12,000.

Appraisal of Art Objects.

Much interesting testimony was given by Edwin C. Holston of Durand-Ruel & Sons, who appraised Col. Astor's art objects. Mr. Holston said that art objects were subject to remarkable increases of value, in explaining why he appraised Millet's "Goose Girl," owned by Col. Astor, at $40,000. He told of the great values commanded by Millet's works, and said that "The Angelus" had brought $150,000. Concerning "The Woman With the Lamp," a remarkable Millet, Mr. Holston testified:

"We originally bought it for $300, and we had it for two years, and then sold it for $500. We bought it back a couple of years later for $10,000. Then we bought it back again at auction for $20,000. Years after that we bought it back for $40,000, and after that we bought it back again for $60,000. Every time we sold it at a profit. It brought in Holland two or three years ago $150,000."

Mr. Holston testified that he had appraised, among other great collections, those of Charles T. Yerkes, Mr. Donnelly, and Charles Senff, the sugar magnate. He characterized "Horses at the Watering Trough," by a Schreyer, as a characteristic example of that artist's fine work, and appraised it at $5,000.

Value of "The Goose Girl."

Of Millet's "Goose Girl," which Mr. Astor held, he testified:

"This is one of the most important examples of the artist's work, representing a girl driving a flock of geese across a pool. This picture is equal in quality to his most important works, and if it were a more important subject it would be worth a great deal more."

Mr. Holston said that his firm had dealt in more than 200 Millets, and added:

"We couldn't sell them for $200 apiece away back in the fifties or sixties." He said that Millet had not been popular during his life time except perhaps in his later years.

Mr. Holston characterized "Le Nid," by Corot, as one of the best paintings that artist had ever painted, and appraised it at $60,000. He described it as "a wonderful picture of Corot's best period." He said it had been painted probably in 1872 or '73.

Mr. Holston also praised Meissonier's "The Smoker," held by Col. Astor, fixing its value at $5,000. He said it was one of the finest paintings of its size and period.

Upon the picture called "Dans les Dunes," by Van Marcke, Mr. Holston fixed a value of $30,000. He said Van Marckes commanded very high prices at the present time, one having recently been sold to a Mr. Peacock of Pittsburgh for $35,000. He added:

"You cannot get any of the quality of 'Dans les Dunes' because you see the later pictures of Van Marcke are not so good. He became a potboiler in the latter end of his life, and some of his things were partly done by Marie Detrale, his daughter, who is painting now."

Appraising the Real Estate.

Robert E. Dowling, President of the City Investing Company, who appraised the greater part of the Astor real estate, was an interesting witness before Appraiser Coggey. He appraised property which had been assessed for purposes of city taxation in 1912 at $44,999,600 as worth $53,729,000, but in two particular districts he put his values far below those of the City Tax Department. These districts were in the Broadway business section, north of Chambers Street, and south of Fourteenth Street and in the West Thirties near the Pennsylvania Railroad Station. Of the latter district he testified:

"In my judgment the district in which these properties are located, particularly surrounding the Pennsylvania Station, has gone back in value in the past two or three years. There was a great speculation in this immediate neighborhood, beginning about the time the announcement was made of the Pennsylvania's intention to build a station. And, as has happened in many other sections of the country and city, the expectations were not realized, and values are much lower than the estimated values of five years ago. My recollection is that the assessed valuations in this neighborhood were raised very materially in the past six or seven years because of the temporary speculation that there was in that neighborhood, but the properties have not borne out that speculative hope."

Mr. Dowling also testified that values on Broadway south of Fourteenth Street had greatly depreciated because of the unfavorable situation of the district in comparison with other districts from the transportation point of view. In most cases, he testified, the value of property in this section was much below the tax assessments. He observed that in some cases on Broadway between Chambers and Bleecker Streets the Tax Department had reduced the assessments, but not to an equitable degree. He said that conditions in this district were such that it would not pay to replace twenty-year-old buildings with taller and more modern ones. He said that there had been a depreciation of at least from 20 to 50 per cent. in the value of realty in the vicinity of Prince and Crosby Streets.

Mr. Dowling also criticised from a realty point of view the use to which certain pieces of Astor property in the vicinity of Union Square were devoted. He said that loft buildings would be more profitable in that neighborhood.

Astor Had Some Worthless Stock.

Nicholas Biddle, one of the executors of Col. Astor's will, who for a number of years had been his chief business representative, was a witness before Appraiser Coggey. Mr. Biddle said that he had taken $3,817.86 in bills and silver from Col. Astor's body at Halifax after it had been recovered from the ocean following the loss of the Titanic.

Mr. Biddle explained all of the entries on the executors' lists of Col. Astor's property in reference to uncollectable debts and worthless securities. In each case his explanations were accepted. In fact, George T. Martin, examiner of values for the State Controller, testified that the executors had been very fair in giving the true market value of all securities and had split the difference even on five-point daily fluctuations in stocks.

Mr. Biddle testified that Col. Astor's 5,463 shares of the Allis-Chalmers Company, appraised as of no value, were about to be sold by the executors, who deemed it unwise to pay the $20 a share assessment fee to get stock in the new company. Because no complete inventory of the estate had been filed in the State of New Jersey, the Controller of that State would not release the stock for sale and the negotiations fell through. The executors then decided that it would not be worth while to pay $20 a share for stock in the reorganized company.

The Ampere-Electro Company stock of the par value of $20,000 appraised as of nominal value, Mr. Biddle explained, was worthless because the company's charter had been forfeited. Such was also the case, he said, with the Depew Improvement Company, in which Col. Astor held stock of the par value of $200,000. Mr. Biddle said Col. Astor had received the stock of the company's successor, the Lands Company of Depew, worth $40,000 in return for his worthless stock. Col. Astor also held stock of nominal value in many other ventures.

Mr. Biddle testified that Col. Astor at the time of his death held a claim for $110,030 against Charles W. Morse. Mr. Biddle explained that Col. Astor was a stockholder in a telephone company of which Morse was a Director, and that Morse made an offer to all of the stockholders to purchase their stock at a fixed price. Morse agreed, Mr. Biddle said, to hold the stockholders free from all liability for assessments, &c., and Col. Astor delivered his stock over to Morse. Before the transfer had been completed on the books of the company it went into the hands of receivers and Col. Astor had to pay $110,000, for no part of which could he obtain reimbursement from Morse.

COULD HAVE TIED UP BIG SUM.

Col. Astor Had Absolute Disposal of More Than $51,200,000.

Col. Astor's yacht, the Noma, which he bought in 1910 from the estate of William B. Leeds, was appraised at $90,000, because it had been extensively refitted since Col. Astor bought it. The refitting made up for the depreciation in the yacht's value through age.

The total value of the fittings of the Hotel St. Regis, some of which were in the Manhattan Storage Warehouse, were appraised by Hiram H. Knapp at $536,821.38. It appeared also that Col. Astor had leased the hotel for twenty years from Jan. 1, 1911, to R. M. Haan. Because of its failure to operate, the St. Regis Hotel Company stock held by Col. Astor was appraised as valueless.

One of the remarkable things about the appraisal was its disclosure of how much Col. Astor might have tied up under the Astor system of entail had he desired to perpetuate that system. He held, the appraisal showed, $51,261,388.73 in fee absolutely, and he might with perfect legality have tied that up for two lives in being.

The appraisal also revealed that after the birth of Col. Astor's posthumous son, his will originally probated May 22, 1912, was reprobated in accordance with law on Sept. 10 of that year.

In the hearings before the Appraiser some 500 pages of testimony were taken and several thousand pages of exhibits and statistics were filed.

APPRAISAL A JOINT TASK.

Expedited and Expense Lessened by Agreement with Controller.

The manner of appraising the estate of Col. John Jacob Astor was unique. For the first time in the history of appraising large estates, the State Controller and the executors of the estate stipulated to agree upon one set of appraisers and to be bound by their findings. This scheme was the device of John Quinn, special counsel for the State Controller, who was assisted in his work by Earle L. Beatty.

By this means the work of appraising the estate was expedited and the expense of two sets of experts, and possibly of a third set to act as umpires between the first two, was avoided. Considering the bulk of the estate the cost of the appraisal was remarkably low, attorneys remarked yesterday. It was $43,480, of which the State and the Astor estate will each pay one-half.

The appraisers selected were Benjamin H. Herts, to appraise furniture and personal property not objects of art; Edwin C. Holston, appraiser of art objects; Robert E. Dowling, to appraise the downtown, Fifth Avenue, and Broadway realty; Clarence W. Eckhardt, to appraise the estate side property; Joseph P. Day, to appraise the Harlem and Bronx realty; Hiram H. Knapp, to appraise the personalty at the Hotel St. Regis; Clarence J. Ramsay, to appraise the west side realty, and Bryan L. Kennelly to appraise the Rhinebeck realty.

Their fees were $6,500 for Herts, $2,500 for Holston, $15,000 for Dowling, $9,000 for Day, $6,500 for Knapp, $2,500 for Ramsay, and $750 for Kennelly. Mr. Dowling was occupied with his task for six months. Mr. Eckhardt spent twelve days at various intervals. It took Mr. Ramsay three periods of examination to complete his work. Mr. Holston was busy with the art collections for a little more than a month. Mr. Herts was occupied six weeks. Mr. Knapp was busy for three months at the Hotel St. Regis, and Mr. Kennelly made one trip to Rhinebeck. All the appraisers were examined carefully when their values were less than the appraised values of realty, and all personal property values were the subject of close inspection on the appraisers' hearings.

APPRAISERS' REPORT ON COL. JOHN JACOB ASTOR'S ESTATE

REALTY OVER $63,000,000.

Values of the Astor Real Estate Holdings in Manhattan and the Bronx as Fixed by the Appraisal.

The appraisal of Col. Astor's realty showed that it had been valued for inheritance tax purposes at about 20 per cent. more than the assessment for city taxes in 1912. The real estate was divided into five parcels, for appraisal by experts whose appointment was agreed upon by the State Controller and the Astor estate.

The total combined Manhattan and Bronx appraisals showed that the real estate of Col. Astor, held by himself in fee and as a life estate in trust was valued at $62,596,821. This same property was assessed in 1912 at $52,154,300.

MORRIS PARK SALE NETS BANKS LITTLE

Northern and Carnegie Trust Got About All They Will Get When Deal for Sale Was Made.

PROCEEDS TO BE DIVIDED

Assets Realization Co. Gets 50 Per Cent., Banking Department 25, and Fidelity Stockholders 25.

Whether the depositors of the failed Carnegie Trust Company and Northern Bank will benefit in any substantial amount from the sale of the Morris Park property is somewhat problematical, aside from about $150,000 which has already gone to their credit through the agreement under which the sale was held and their relief from taxes and interest.

The Morris estate holds a mortgage of $2,500,000 on the property. With this the liens against the property and the expenses of the sale will aggregate, it is estimated, about $3,600,000. If $3,700,000 is realized the net proceeds will thus be about $100,000. Of this the Banking Department will receive 25 per cent., or $25,000, for distribution to the depositors of the two institutions.

The sale of the property was brought about through an agreement with the Assets Realization Company, which will receive 50 per cent. of whatever net profits there may be. The other 25 per cent. will go to stockholders in the Fidelity Development Company, other than the two failed banks, which held stock as collateral.

The Fidelity Devolpment Company, one of J. G. Robin's promotions, had the title to the property. The Carnegie Trust Company lent $230,900 to Robin and his associates, for which they gave collateral including 4,500 shares of the preferred stock of the Fidelity Company. The other collateral is now worthless. The Northern Bank similarly lent about $250,000 to Robin and his friends, receiving as collateral 2,500 Fidelity Company preferred shares and other securities now worthless.

The Banking Department was therefore dependent on the stock of the Fidelity Company and the property it owned—the Morris Park race track—for the payment of any part of the amount of the Robin notes. In order to preserve this equity it was necessary to pay taxes on the property every six months and interest on the mortgage of $2,500,000. The other alternative was to sell it. At first the taxes and interest were paid by the Fidelity stockholders, including the two banks. When Supt. Van Tuyl came into office he found that about $80,000 of the assets of the Carnegie Trust Company had been expended in this way and about $60,000 of the assets of the Northern Bank.

Mr. Van Tuyl felt that this was a speculation in the future value of the real estate that should not be carried further. On the contrary, he was anxious to find some way in which he could get the $140,000 back and make sure of that much for the depositors, whether the property eventually yielded any further proceeds or not. He was also determined that not another cent should be put into the property by the Banking Department on behalf of the depositors. After looking around for some outside interest that would assume the carrying charges and the expense of selling the property he came to an arrangement with the Assets Realization Company. An agreement was made under which the stock held by the failed banks and most of that held by others was deposited. This agreement, so far as it concerned the Banking Department, was submitted to the Supreme Court, and received its approval.

Under its terms the Assets Realization Company refunded to the Banking Department, for the depositors, the $140,000 paid in taxes, with interest, aggregating about $150,000. It was also agreed that the Banking Department should have an equity of 25 per cent. in the property, the Realization Company 50 per cent., and the other Fidelity shareholders 25 per cent.

The original intention was for the Assets Realization Company to form a new corporation, which should furnish capital to develop the property and dispose of it gradually over a period of several years, but the carrying charges proved so burdensome that this plan was abandoned, and arrangements were made for the sale of the property at one time.

The Assets Realization Company guaranteed to advance the money to pay Joseph P. Day for his services as auctioneer and for advertising the sale. It was agreed that $100,000 should be spent on the advertising, the Banking Department checking the bills and the Assets Realization Company paying them.

This relieved the Banking Department of paying out anything in disposing of the property, and the sale, being held at this time, will obviate the necessity of paying taxes on it this Fall.

SALE BRINGS $3,924,650.

"Rummage" Auction Expected to Increase This to $4,000,000.

Although the twelve days' auction sale of Morris Park lots closed officially with the session last night, a "rummage" sale continued until early this morning. Up to midnight 3,194 lots had been disposed of in the twelve days for $3,924,650, or an average of $1,227 a lot.

C. F. Leng paid the highest price of the sale for a plot on the south side of Pelham Parkway, between Hone and Lurting Avenues. The parcel consisted of fourteen lots, and was sold for $52,000. John C. Tomlinson paid $23,900 for nine lots on the northwest corner of the Esplanade and Lurting Avenue, and was one of the youngest buyers of the sale. For the southwest corner of Pelham Parkway and Hone Avenue J. Romaine Brown & Co. gave $4,500.

Brian G. Hughes visited the sale yesterday and purchased an irregular lot next the Morris Park Station of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad for $1,600. He also paid $1,000 for a parcel on the northwest corner of Sacket and Lurting Avenues. Last night John C. Tomlinson was the highest bidder. He gave $8,350 for three lots on the southeast corner of Pelham Parkway and Mathews Avenue. It was thought that nearly $4,000,000 would be obtained by the time the sale finally closed.

The last lot was sold a few minutes before 1 o'clock. It was in Barnes Avenue, between Brady Avenue and the Westchester & Boston Railroad, John W. McKinnon obtaining it on a bid of $2,800. Some 400 persons were present when the sale closed.

TRANSATLANTIC WIRELESS AND CABLE DISPATCHES TO THE TIMES

A RECORD FOR ENGLAND

Highest Price Ever Paid for Any Object of Art at a London Sale.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, June 13.—Two big prices were reached at Christie's to-day in the course of the auction of pictures belonging to various owners.

In the Oppenheim collections the paintings and drawings went for small prices until Hobbema's "Wooded Landscape" was reached. After a spirited contest Mr. Emerson became the owner of it for $78,750. A David Teniers—"The Interior of a Guard Room"—went for $10,500. Another picture by the same painter, "The Interior of an Ale House," brought $6,300.

Prices soared higher at the sale of pictures of the early British school, from various sources. The Duveens paid $206,850 for Romney's "Portrait of Anne, Lady de la Pole," the property of Sir Frederick Arundell de la Pole.

The price paid by the Duveens for the portrait of Lady de la Pole is not only a new record for a Romney, but for any object of art in an English sale, or, indeed, anywhere, if the French acution price of $200,000 for Rembrandt's "Bathsheba" be reckoned without the 10 per cent. commission subsequently added.

The bidding opened with a sensational offer of $100,000 from Agnew, and a protracted duel between Agnew and Duveen followed, in which the latter was victorious.

The English record up to this time was $105,000 given last year by Duveen for a Raeburn. The previous Romney record was $55,125, given by Agnew in 1902 for the "Portrait of Sarah Radbard," and the same price was given by the late Charles Wertheimer in 1896 for the portraits of Caroline, Viscountess of Clifton, and Lady Elizabeth Spencer.

To-day's high prices are accounted for by the presence of foreign dealers in unusual numbers. The Hobbema brought only $18,500 in 1890, and the two Teniers sold in 1890 for $7,000 and $3,500, respectively.

The total of the day's sale was far ahead of any previous record at Christie's.

Scott & Fowles acquired Raeburn's "Portrait of Francis Horner" for $5,775. "Sir Joshua Vanneck and His Family," by A. Davis, went to Knoedler for $9,710. It belonged to the late Lady Dorothy Nevill, being the portrait of one of her ancestors. Hoppner's "Portrait of a Lady" brought $5,570; Hogarth's "Portrait of the Westers Family," $18,900, (sold to Agnew;) Sir Thomas Lawrence's "Portrait of the Duke of Wellington," $6,560, (Wertheimer;) Gainsborough's "Portrait of Dr. Mars," $19,950; Romney's "Portrait of Gen. Hartley," $35,175, (Wertheimer;) Hoppner's portrait of his wife, $48,835; Raeburn's "Portrait of Mrs. Grant," $21,000, and Romney's "Portrait of Col. Clitheroe," $13,675.

The fifth day of the Alma-Tadema sale brought in a total of $7,500.

The portrait of Lady de la Pole, which is full length, is regarded by collectors as one of the finest examples of Romney's work. It shows the subject facing the front, with her head slightly turned to the right. She is seen in a white satin dress with puffed sleeves of white muslin, and a pale green silk sash with gold fringe is about her waist. Her hair is powdered and bound with a white veil. She is standing in a landscape, leaning her left elbow on a stone pedestal. Her right arm is brought before her so as to rest the tips of her fingers on the edge of the pedestal. The portrait was painted in 1786. It is ninety-four inches in height and fifty-eight inches wide.

Lady de la Pole was married to Sir John William de la Pole, sixth baronet of his house, in 1781, and died in 1832. The portrait was the property of Sir Frederick Arundell de la Pole, of Shute House, Axminster.

A representative of Duveen Brothers at 720 Fifth Avenue said yesterday that the portrait had been purchased for stock purposes, and would be offered for sale by the firm. There is scarcely a well-known collector here or in Europe who is not the owner of at least one specimen of the work of Romney. In the collections of J. P. Morgan and Henry C. Frick are several fine examples.

It was said yesterday that no new pictures were being added to the Morgan collection. Mr. Frick is out of town for the Summer.

SUIT OVER AIR COLLISION.

Two Aviators Sue Each Other for $20,000 in a French Court.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 13.—A collision between two aeroplanes during the aviation meeting in October, 1910, was the cause of a lawsuit heard before a Paris court to-day.

The Antoinette monoplane of an aviator named Thomas, after flying two hours over the course, came into collision with the aeroplane of Capt. Davis, who, although he was not taking part in the same race as Thomas, was a participant in the meeting. The two aircraft fell and were partly destroyed, and the airmen were injured.

To-day Thomas and the Antoinette firm sought $19,100 damages from Davis, holding him responsible for the accident. The Captain demands $20,000 damages from Thomas and the Antoinette firm. The expert appointed to decide the question of responsibility declared that Thomas in a minor and Davis in a major degree were responsible for the accident.

The court will give its decision next week.

REPORT ABSOLVES BRITISH CABINET

But the End of the Marconi Complications Has Not Been Reached.

HINTS AT RESIGNATION

Sir Rufus Isaacs Called Upon by Liberal Weekly to Shoulder Responsibility.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, June 14.—The storm of political passions over the Marconi scandals is not likely to be stilled by the report of the Parliamentary Committee of Inquiry which was given to the public yesterday. The committee consisted of nine Liberal and six Unionist members, and while the report officially adopted by the committee as a whole exonerated the Ministers concerned on charges which it described as vile slanders, Lord Robert Cecil presented a draft report which, while concurring in the findings of the majority report that the Ministers were not guilty of corruption and had not used undue influence, censured them on the grounds that they failed to treat the House of Commons with frankness and were guilty of grave impropriety in dealing in American Marconi shares.

Chairman Spicer, who represents old-fashioned Liberalism, also expresses the opinion that Sir Rufus Isaacs would have been well advised if he had decided to have nothing to do with the purchase of American Marconis.

It is evident, therefore, that the findings of the committee will not be accepted as a judicial decision settling a debated question. Partisan politics played an important part in the proceedings of the committee, the Unionists charging that Liberal members, like Booth Falconer, kept the witnesses off dangerous ground, and the Liberals on their side asserting that Lord Robert Cecil's questions were designed to make innocent acts take on a guilty aspect. Political partisanship appears to have actuated the members of the committee in their votes upon the three draft reports put before them by Falconer, Spicer, and Lord Robert Cecil.

Mr. Falconer's draft was that adopted by majority; and when it is remembered what were the charges the committee was appointed to investigate, the Liberal contention that the Falconer report covers the whole ground seems justifiable. The Liberals point out that charges were made against the honor of the Ministers, and that these charges vanished into thin air.. It might almost be said that nobody in England now believes that the Marconi contract was the result of a corrupt bargain between the Postmaster General and the Marconi Company, or that Sir Rufus Isaacs and Mr. Lloyd-George took advantage of the knowledge they possessed as Ministers to invest in the shares of a contracting company to make money; but that would be stating the case too broadly, for a good many people are quite convinced of it. Still, none of these doubting Thomases can find their justification in any of the three reports before the committee.

The matter, however, has gone much beyond that stage. Many Liberals, as well as Unionists, agree with Lord Robert Cecil's accusation of Ministerial impropriety. The nation admits that a section of the Liberals believe that Sir Rufus Isaacs should resign, that Lord Murray should be repudiated, and that Mr. Lloyd-George should apologize. Such a consummation, sensational as it would be, would not satisfy the Unionists, except as a means to an end, i. e., the overthrow of the Asquith Cabinet, and particularly of Lloyd-George. Predictions are, of course, made of such an eventuality, but a more immediate probability is that the debate on the report in the House next week will be the occasion of as bitter a Parliamentary wrangle as St. Stephen's has ever seen.

"Liberal opinion," says the weekly, "is that the withdrawal of so great a personal force and so rare a genius in politics as Lloyd-George would be undue expiation of the fault of making unwise investments. No such feeling exists in the case of Sir Rufus Isaacs, who may be a great lawyer but is not a great politician and to whom belongs the initiatory blame. Sir Rufus's advice was disastrous, and, though its motive was generous, it is incumbent on him to shoulder the full burden of the error and of the responsibility which in its origin and essence is attached to him, however rudely it bows his own back."

MOORS AMBUSH FRENCH.

Kill 64 and Wound 109—63 Saved from Spanish Warship.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 14.—The situation in Morocco is generally thought to be critical. After the disquieting reports from the Spanish zone comes the news of fighting on the part of the French. The Chronicle's Paris correspondent telegraphed last night:

"A French force has been ambushed and seriously cut up in Morocco. The column under Col. Mangin, which has been operating in the Tabla region, about 100 miles, from Marrakesh, was surprised by a large force of the enemy near Kfiga, and before the column could extricate itself it suffered a loss of 64 dead and 109 wounded. Col. Mangin had for some time established his headquarters at Madal."

The latest news regarding the stranded Spanish warship General Concha, which was fired upon by natives, is that the gunboat Lauria rescued sixty-three of the crew, including thirteen wounded. Three men are missing and nine have fallen into the hands of the Moors. The commander of the vessel fell dead on the bridge, shot through the eye. The cruiser Reina Regente bombarded a group of natives for two hours. Negotiations have been begun for the surrender of the captured sailors.

The Spaniards have taken the offensive with a combined movement from Tetuan, Alcazar, and Arzila. Fighting has occurred at Alcazar. Reinforcements from Spain are being sent.

The Illinois will visit Muerwik, the German Annapolis, on the Baltic, where athletic contests will take place between the American and German middies.

THE DOG'S TAIL

One of the crying evils of average building methods is, that the general contractor performs only a small percentage of the actual building, a horde of sub-contractors doing the most of it.

Besides making economical results highly improbable at all times, this state of affairs is as fundamentally wrong as the tail wagging the dog.

We do most of the building direct, and thereby control the activities of the tail.

A "VADE MECUM" ON IMMIGRATION

THE IMMIGRANT
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Author of "The American Government"

The wide-spread attention focused on this theme makes this book especially timely. No other work of this kind gathers into itself the consideration of so many phases of the subject. In brief, lucid replies it answers like these: "Why do the immigrants come?" "How do they come?" "How are they treated at ports of entry?" "What helps and what hindrances meet them?" "Where do they go?" "Who is the padrone?" "What is peonage?" "How does the new immigrant live?" "What of the future?"

SENATORS IN A TILT ON WILSON'S 'LOBBY'

Gallinger Condemns Threat to Hang Political Foes "as High as Haman."

REED DEFENDS PRESIDENT

Senate Row Promised — Lodge's Frank on Sugar Literature—Aim to Broaden Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Wilson's part in tariff legislation was again the subject of lively discussion to-day before the Senate Lobby Committee. Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, the Republican leader of the Senate, became irritated by questions from Senator Reed of Missouri, and finally said that a man who threatened to "hang as high as Haman" men who differed with him politically was "about the worst legislative influence" he had seen.

The retort spurred the Democrats to a storm of protesting questions, while Senator Nelson of Minnesota and Senator Cummins of Iowa, the Republican of the committee, chuckled. Mr. Nelson, with a twinkle in his eye, asked Mr. Gallinger what he thought of "a public official who gets up a scare about an insidious lobby?" Mr. Gallinger replied that he thought such an official was trying to influence public opinion.

"Would you regard it as a species of lobby?" asked Senator Nelson.

"From my own inability to define the term to my own satisfaction, perhaps I would not like to say. It was a species of lobby influence," said Mr. Gallinger.

"It was an intimation that men are afraid to use their own judgment lest the people suspect them of lobbying?" persisted Senator Nelson.

"It so impressed me," replied Senator Gallinger.

"You think, then, that members of Congress can be intimidated?" asked Chairman Overman.

"I have no disposition to criticise public officials for cheap partisan purposes," returned Gallinger. "I still am forced to the belief that the influence used in behalf of free sugar or free wool or free anything else is as objectionable as anything else."

"The sugar men were represented," said Senator Reed; "don't you think the President had a right to use his influence?"

"The President has a right to make his statement in messages to Congress."

"You do not want to charge that the President of the United States has brought any kind of coercion to bear on any members of Congress?"

"I would not undertake to do so. I have no disposition to criticise him unfairly."

Mr. Gallinger added that he did know that many Democrats were complaining because more offices were not filled and more nominations not sent to the Senate.

"You don't mean to intimate that the President is holding up appointments to compel them to vote for legislation they do not desire?"

"I make no charge."

The colloquy became serious when Mr. Reed, pressing Mr. Gallinger with increasing anger, tried to draw a distinction between the work of the President in the interest of the whole people and the work of lobbyists in their own behalf. The protective tariff he referred to generally as "private graft," and that made even Mr. Nelson angry. He demanded what Mr. Reed meant, and the Senator from Missouri explained that he meant merely a law giving protection to special interests. Later he said that he regretted the words he had used. Mr. Gallinger intimated that he would bring up the subject on the floor of the Senate.

Truman G. Palmer, head of the Washington offices maintained by the beet sugar interests, testified further to-day on how the Senate document, "Sugar at a Glance," was added to and changed after the Senate ordered it printed. The document contained much of the data Senator Lodge had used in a speech on the sugar tariff and was widely circulated as a tariff argument by the beet sugar bureau under his frank.

When the Senate granted Mr. Lodge's request that certain charts and other data be printed as a document, said Mr. Palmer, many of the charts were not completed. He finished the work and submitted a completed dummy form to Senator Lodge. The latter wired him from Boston that he would "forward the dummy to the Public Printer with my approval." Palmer produced letters and telegrams.

Senator Lodge also wrote Palmer, telling him the completed document was a "fine piece of work." In forwarding the document to the Public Printer Lodge wrote that it "meets with my entire approval in its present form."

The letter from Lodge to Palmer, upon the strength of which the latter told the committee yesterday that he felt he was authorized to "act for Senator Lodge" was also produced from the Government Printing Office.

Chairman Overman asked Senator Gallinger for his opinion on the changing of a public document after it had been ordered printed by the Senate.

"I would consider that absolutely indefensible, if not criminal," returned Senator Gallinger.

In executive session to-night the committee decided to submit to the Senate the question of a further broadening of the scope of its inquiry. The investigation has taken so much time that some Senators on the committee thought that it might be well to limit its activities to a complete inquiry into lobbying for and against sugar and wool, but after a half hour's session Chairman Overman was instructed to lay the whole matter before the Senate.

PAPER DUTY TO HIT CANADA.

Senate Committee Makes Tentative Change in Tariff Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The print paper section of the Tariff bill proved a stumbling block to the majority side of the Senate Finance Committee today. When the committee rose, Chairman Simmons said that a tentative modification of the House bill had been adopted, but that the vote might be rescinded to-morrow or any succeeding day.

What the committee did was to strike out the House provision free-listing paper worth not more than 2½ cents a pound, and replace it by a general provision embodying the princile of the aper section of the Cadadian Reciprocity bill. This means that paper worth not more than 4 cents a pound shall come in free from any country or political subdivision which does not impose restrictions on the export of the raw material.

Although the word "Canada" is omitted from the amendment, it would operate against Canada, because of that nation's restrictions on exports of wood and chemical pulp. Senator Simmons said that other restrictive provisions, or countervailing duties aimed against Canada, which had been proposed, had not yet been acted upon by the majority, and that the matter would be taken up again to-morrow.

Senator Simmons stated that he believed the committee could conclude its work by next Wednesday, and that the Democratic caucus could then be called to meet immediately.

Senator Newlands, whose vote might jeopardize the Tariff bill in the Senate, told his Democratic colleagues that the Tariff bill might go down in history as maintaining the Atlantic Coast and Middle Western States on a protective basis, while drifting in the Southwest and the West to a free trade basis.

The duty on wool as well as sugar needed a gradual, rather than a total reduction, extending, perhaps, over five or ten years.

By MARIE LOUISE VAN SAANEN.
WILD GRAPES
12mo. $1.35 net. Postage, 12 cents.

The book is written with simple and direct force. The type of woman painted in "WILD GRAPES" is one fortunately in the minority among American women, but one whose demoralizing influence must be reckoned with. Men often treat her as a child until it is too late. But the ever-absorbing problem of marriage is not the only interest in the book. There is the action of a man working among men, making his way shoulder to shoulder with other fine men. A human story, humanly told.

HARD COAL NO SMOKE COMFORT

NOTT DRAGS TO LIGHT DUFFY JUROR'S PAST

Finds Whaley, Who Held Out, Was Arrested for So-Called Joke on Night and Day Bank.

PRESENTED RAISED CHECK

Duffy Gives Bail Pending His Retrial, Which Will Probably Be Moved in a Short Time.

Police Sergeant Peter J. Duffy walked out of the Criminal Court Building yesterday at noon with a smile on his face. He had deposited a bail bond of $5,000 to cover the bribery indictments against him, and he wasn't worrying about any future prosecution, he said.

In another part of the city, at about the same time, there was a man who did not feel quite so comfortable. This was Harry L. Whaley, the Duffy juror who caused a disagreement by holding out to the last for acquittal against eleven other jurors who voted to convict. Whaley was uncomfortable because Assistant District Attorney Nott had unearthed the events of a certain May day in his career when in the course of a carouse he got into serious trouble. The developments yesterday caused Assistant District Attorneys Nott, Clark, and Groehl, it was said, to regret that they had not fully investigated Whaley before accepting him as a juror in the Duffy case.

Mr. Nott's investigation showed that Whaley, at 3 o'clock in the morning on May 4, 1906, drove to the Night and Day Bank in a cab. He went to the receiving teller's cage and produced a warrant issued by the City Controller. The warrant was for $359,000, and Whaley told the teller that he wanted to open a check account with this deposit. The warrant was dated June 14, 1905. Night Manager G. L. Wilmerding was stunned when he saw the size of the warrant. After he recovered his composure he issued a receipt for the paper and told Whaley to call again in the morning.

What happened after 3 o'clock on that morning was never cleared up beyond the fact that it required two cabs to take Whaley to his home at 205 West 102d Street. Here, it was said, his wife upbraided him for coming home at such an unseemly hour. Later in the day two detectives arrested Whaley and took him to the Tombs Court, where he was held in $10,000 bail. He expressed surprise, it was said, when he was told that he had presented to the Night and Day Bank a warrant which had been raised from $3 to $359,000.

Mrs. Whaley, who testified for her hupsband in the police court, explained that Whaley had been in the supply business, and that long ago he had sold to the Department of Correction $3 worth of harness soap or something like that. The check was so small, she said, that the family forgot all about it. It lay around the house and the children used it for a plaything. Then, on the night of his carouse, she said, her husband put the check in his pocket. Some friends met him, and after they had partaken of much wine, doctored up the old check, thinking it a joke. The case was not pushed in the police court and Magistrate Wahle discharged the prisoner.

"For Heaven's sake!" Mrs. Whaley exclaimed yesterday when reporters told her that Mr. Nott was investigating her husband's career. "Are they going to haul out that old story against the poor boy again?"

Mr. Whaley, she said, was not at home.

"But it isn't necessary for you to see Mr. Whaley," she continued. "I'm the commanding general in this house. What I say goes. Anyway, I know more about the case than Mr. Whaley does. Goodness, he was in no condition to remember anything. Why, he didn't even know that he had been to the Night and Day Bank. His friends were to blame. You see, the Night and Day Bank had just come into being, and it was a good joke at the time."

Whaley is employed as a salesman with the Harris Granite Quarries Company, at 303 Fifth Avenue. He returned home soon after Mrs. Whaley had given her version of the old story. He admitted that it was true, and then talked about the Duffy case.

"Whether I thought that Duffy was guilty or not guilty had nothing to do with my stand," he said. "I voted on the evidence. I didn't care whether Duffy was trailing Sweeney or whether he had deposited $67,000 in the bank. Those things had nothing to do with the case. I was there to try the case on the evidence, and I never in the world would have convicted the man on the uncorroborated evidence produced against him."

In the absence from the city of District Attorney Whitman it had not been decided yesterday when Duffy would be put on trial again. It was thought probable that the trial would be recalled before the end of the month, so as to accommodate Justice Seabury, whose term has closed, but who has expressed willingness to sit longer, if necessary, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

After Duffy's retrial it has been planned to try David Maier and Charles Dubelier, alleged keepers of disorderly houses, who were arrested on Dec. 21, 1912, for attempting to bribe Charles Muller, janitor of the Marlboro Apartments, at 360 West Fifty-eighth Street. Muller testified before the Grand Jury that Maier and Dubelier had offered him $50 to testify that Mrs. Mary Goode had paid him for corroborating her testimony concerning the visits of policemen to her establishments. Both of the men are out on $7,500 bail.

RESORT LEADER DISAPPEARS.

Sawiner Jumps Bail on Seeing Array of Witnesses Against Him.

Louis Sawiner, who, according to Assistant District Attorney Smith, is one of the most notorious disorderly house keepers in the city, walked into Part I. of Special Sessions yesterday at 1:50 o'clock in the afternoon with his brother, Max Sawiner. Louis Sawiner had been summoned to appear at 2 o'clock to defend himself against the charge of running a disorderly house. In the courtroom at the time were parishioners of St. George's Church and clergymen who had come to testify against Louis Sawiner.

When the Clerk called the case, Assistant District Attorney Smith announced that he was ready. He glanced about the courtroom for Sawiner, but Sawiner had disappeared. His lawyer, Abraham Gottlieb, announced that he did not know where his client was.

"I brought him here," he said to the Justices on the bench, "but now he has gone."

Mr. Smith told the Justices that he believed Sawiner had fled because of the array of witnesses against him he saw in court. Gottlieb moved to try the case in the absence of the prisoner, but Mr. Smith said that he would not consent to this under any consideration. Justice Collins then declared the $500 bail in which Sawiner was held forfeit and issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

Sawiner, for whom the police and the District Attorney's detectives are searching in all parts of the city, has a criminal record which reaches all over the world, according to Mr. Smith. The Assistant District Attorney said that he was the chief of the so-called "independents" who operated thirteen disorderly houses in the lower Tenderloin. He is a fugitive from St. Louis, where he was arrested several years ago for running disorderly houses. He ran disorderly houses in South Africa, and was arrested in Johannesburg, where he received 100 lashes on the back. He was driven out of the country immediately after the Boer war. He began operating in the Tenderloin some five years ago.

Sawiner, it was learned, figured prominently in the report on vice conditions made under the auspices of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Much evidence against him was gathered by social workers.

WANT KIOSKS REMOVED.

42d Street Association Shows Danger at Madison Avenue Corner.

The Forty-second Street Subway Association is circulating for signatures a petition to the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission asking for the removal of the kiosks at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue.

In doing so the association says that it understands that both the city and company are willing to do this, but that delay has been caused by a difference over the cost, the Interborough contending that it would take $100,000 and the city insisting that it should only cost $75,000. The association urges that an improvement of the importance of this one should not be held up by such a difference of opinion.

Forty-second Street, east of Madison Avenue, the petition points out, has not been widened, although it has been widened beyond the Belmont Hotel and Vanderbilt Avenue, and the street car tracks at the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street have been moved over close to the curbline, in anticipation of the widening. The result is that, although the opaque glass on the side of the kiosk has been replaced by plain glass, passengers leaving the Subway kiosk are exposed to danger through not seeing the approach of street cars. This risk would be eliminated if the kiosks were removed and some other sort of entrance to the Subway substituted.

SAVES WOMAN BY HER HAIR.

She Was Sinking in North River When Another Woman Grasped It.

A woman in Fort Washington Park last night was throwing pieces of driftwood into the river for her dog to recover when she heard a scream and saw a woman struggling in the water of the cove near Fort Washington Point. She ran there and, leaning out from one of the rocks, managed to grasp the hair of the woman in the water.

She held on until three young men in a boat came to her aid, and brought the woman ashore. She was removed unconscious to Washington Heights Hospital, a prisoner on a charge of attempted suicide. The police found a doctor's card in her pocketbook, and on telephoning him a description of the woman, he said he thought he recognized her as one of his patients.

ROBS GIRL CASHIER COMING FROM BANK

Thief Watches as She Gets Cash for Payroll and Attacks Her in the Street.

TEARS ENVELOPE FROM HER

After Choking Her to Keep Her from Calling for Help—Eludes Pursuers After Long Chase.

Dorothy Daniels, Assistant Cashier of the Confectioners' Trading Company at 101 Varick Street, went to the Greenwich Bank, at Clarkson and Hudson Streets, this morning, according to her usual custom, to draw the money for the payroll of her company. Having received the cash, $128 in bills, she put it in an envelope with a certified check for $1,000, which also belonged to the company.

While she was waiting for the money to be counted she had looked out of the open door of the bank and had seen a young Italian watching her intently. "He looked so much like a rogue," she told Capt. McKinney of the Macdougal Street Station, "that I had a premonition something was going to happen."

When she departed from the bank, the young Italian followed her. She noticed it and began to hurry, thinking that she could outdistance him. She was, as she thought, a safe distance ahead of him when she arrived at Vandam and Hudson Streets. Then her pursuer suddenly ran forward and thrust his foot in front of Miss Daniels, in an effort to trip her.

He failed in this and closed the fingers of his right hand about her throat, while with his left arm he encircled her waist, trying to drag her backward to the street. Again she defeated him by tearing herself free.

All this time she had not been able to use her hands, because she feared to lose the envelope that held the money and the check. The Italian then tried to get this away from her. In the tug-of-war that followed, the envelope parted in the middle. The thief saw that he had the half that held the money, and ran away with it.

Then the young woman screamed, and truck drivers and others hearing her cries started in pursuit of the thief, who kept to Hudson Street. They chased him for four blocks, but he eluded them by running into an alley. When the pursuers got there and searched the surrounding buildings, he could not be found.

Miss Daniels is of slender build. She lives at 12 Locust Avenue, Evergreen, L. I., and has been in the employ of the Varick Street concern for two years. She has been making the trip to the bank, for the payroll for more than a year. The police sent out a warning to the banks to arrest any one who attempted to cash the check. It was made out in favor of the Hudson Trust Company.

NEW LIQUOR RULING.

Banks Not Punishable for Collections in "Dry" States.

ST. PAUL, June 13.—A bank which collects a sight draft representing the purchase price of liquor shipped in inter-State commerce into a prohibition State does not violate the law prohibiting a carrier from acting as agent, according to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The opinion was delivered by Judge Sanborn in reversing the decision of the District Court of North Dakota, in the case of the First National Bank of Anamoose, which had been convicted and fined $300 in the lower court.

Judge Sanborn holds that the law excludes "banks, ordinary collectors, and all persons who are not members of the general class of carriers."

In a dissenting opinion, Judge Triber says the statute clearly includes not only all common carriers and their employes, but "any other person who is connected with the transportation of intoxicating liquors in inter-State commerce, who shall collect the purchase price thereof, before, on, or after delivery, from the consignee or any other person."

Ocean Travel Increasing.

The first cabin passenger traffic to Europe has shown a big increase this week, and all the liners are going out with well-filled cabins. The Olympic has 650 to-day for Southampton; the George Washington 500 for Bremen, and the Zeeland for Antwerp, Caledonia for Glasgow, and the Minneapolis for London have another 700 between them.

KNICKERBOCKER HAS NEW SITE FOR CLUB

Buys the Princess del Prago and Other Property at 5th Ave. and 62d St.

NEW BUILDING TO GO UP

The Club, an Offshoot of the Union, Has Been at 32d Street and Fifth Avenue Since 1871.

The Knickerbocker Club, which almost since its foundation in 1871, has occupied the building on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-second Street, bought a site for a new home yesterday a mile and a half further uptown.

Through its building committee, which has been considering various sites for several months past, the club bought from Robert E. Dowling, President of the City Investing Company, the former residence of Princess Josephine Schmid del Drago at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Sixty-second Street, known as 806 and 807, and the adjoining house on the south, 805, from William Lanman Bull. Combined, the two parcels, which are assessed at $780,000, have a frontage of 75 feet 10 inches in Fifth Avenue, and 125 feet in Sixty-second Street.

Plans are now being prepared for a handsome structure, to cover the entire site. The Del Drago house, which is to be demolished, is one of the most picturesque on the avenue. It is of the French type of architecture, and is an adaptation from the chateau style, with a large round tower at the Fifth Avenue corner, surmounted by a cone-shaped top. The Princess del Drago, who was the widow of August Schmid, the proprietor of the Lion Brewery, sold the property to Robert E. Dowling in February, 1912. The Knickerbocker Club, which was founded in 1871, was an offshoot of the Union Club. Its membership was limited to 450. At that time Thirty-second Street and Fifth Avenue was considered pretty well up in the country, but since then the centre of clubland has moved much further uptown. One feature of the present Knickerbocker Club house is a large bow window, similar to the one at White's in London, made famous by Thackeray.

The New York rummage sale of the union was so successful that another will be given in Brooklyn within a few days.

COULDN'T QUIT THE SHOPS.

Joy of Buying Things Nearly Caused Young Women to Miss Their Ship.

The fact that nine attractive young women from California and their chaperon sailed yesterday on the Philadelphia for a European trip was not any fault of theirs. H. W Nash, the European representative of the Hotel McAlpin, deserves the credit for their departure. His trials and tribulations in the two hours before the ship sailed left him on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Those young women simply would take their time, and they would spend the last possible minute shopping.

Eight of the young women are from Los Angeles. They are the Misses Mary L. and Julia O'Donoghue, G. A. and Lily Olshausen, Ruth Wolfskill, Mary and Rose Bernard, and Sylvia Moore. Then there is Miss Betty Storrow of Pasadena. In charge of the party is Mrs. J. C. Everding of Los Angeles. The party arrived here on Monday, and since that time, according to one of them, they have been sightseeing, shopping, and going to the theatre without cessation. Even yesterday morning they were in no hurry to get to the ship, but started out after breakfast to visit the neighboring shops.

The ship was due to sail at 10 o'clock, and when 9 o'clock came and there was no sign of any of them Mr. Nash began to tear his hair. He had visions of reaching the pier just in time to see the steamer scooting down the North River. It was not until 9:30 o'clock that the last of the party came back to the hotel, and even then all the shopping was not finished, for one young woman said she simply had to go across the street and buy something else. It seems there had been accident. When she returned it lacked just twenty minutes to 10, and the taxicabs had all they could do to get the fair travelers to the ship in time. The party expects to travel in Europe for three months.

BATTLE OF BAGSAG FORCED BY FELONS

Expected by Men Familiar with Conditions in the Moro Province.

OUTCOME OF FANATICISM

Army Officers Here Surprised by Statement That Sultan of Sulu Led the Rebels.

Army officers in New York who have served in the Philippines were interested tremendously in the dispatches from Manila yesterday telling of the battle at Bagsag, in the Island of Jolo, where the intrenchments of rebellious Moros were taken by American forces. One thing that surprised them was that the Sultan of Sulu, head of the Mohammedan Church in the extreme Orient, should have been mentioned as leading the rebels.

The Moros of Jolo and the Sulus generally are a fanatical lot, and are taught by their chiefs and the priests of the Mohammedan Church that to die killing Christians makes them candidates for the Seventh Heaven, and insures their sitting in the presence of Allah with any desired number of wives. For the last 300 years those people have been the pirates of the Eastern Seas, and for more than two centuries the Spaniards found it impossible to control them and were able to hold only a few isolated forts in the Sultan's domain.

After the introduction of steam navigation into Far Eastern waters the Spaniards were able to check the depredations of the pirates to some extent, and the American Government, by using small and well equipped mosquito craft, has kept down piracy, though even at the present time it is unsafe for a small sailing craft to wander around among the islands of the Sulu Archipelago without an armed escort. The fighting qualities of the Moros are pronounced by officers who have served against them as equal to those of the Apaches, the Yaquis, or the Sioux in their best days.

When a TIMES representative was in Jolo on March 5 last the situation in the island even then was regarded as acute. The Moros of Mindanao had become peaceable, yet in that little island to the westward rebellion of a sort still raged. It was not insurrection in exactly the sense in which the word had been used in the Philippines, but it was a fact that in an extinct crater at Bagsag, or Buntad, were gathered men, women, and children, estimated to number about 3,000, who were defying authority, and behind intrenchments were daring the American soldiers to come up and take their arms.

The nucleus of that hostile camp was composed of outlaws and cattle thieves. In the whole of the Moro country, it is against the law to have arms in one's possession except by authority from the Government, which seldom is granted. It is a standing order that any Moro who owns weapons must go to a military post and give them up.

By some persons the situation in Jolo, particularly at Buntad, was regarded as similar to that which existed several years ago when Gen. Leonard Wood, then commanding the Department of Mindanao, after exhausting all peaceful means, surrounded a large force of renegade Moros who had fortified themselves in the extinct crater of Bud Dao and practically exterminated the lot.

An American Army officer serving in the Philippines has to be not only a soldier but also a diplomat. The storm kicked up by Boston and other sentimentalists over Gen. Wood's action never has been forgotten by army officers in the Philippines, who almost fear to act as an emergency demands, for fear they will outrage the sensibilities of those at home who do not know what a Moro can be. In the present case Gen. Pershing has delayed summary action while exhausting all means of pacifying the renegades. To that end, when THE TIMES representative arrived at Jolo, the commander just had brought over from Zamboanga Datto Mandi, one of the most influential chiefs among the Moros, and twenty of the Datto's men, who Mandi himself that day informed THE TIMES correspondent even then were up at Buntad, mingling with the renegades and trying to persuade the more peaceably inclined of them to leave the ringleaders, go home, and give up their arms.

The last fight of importance with the renegades occurred on Jan. 23, when Capt. Patrick McNally of the Philippine Scouts was killed and one constabulary company lost a third of its strength. That engagement was fought at Sahipa's Cota. Sahipa, leader of a band of cattle thieves, had fortified himself in an old mosque forty-five minutes' march from Taglibi. The mosque had been surrounded by a trench seven feet deep, which was covered with cocoanut logs. Below the level of the ground the outlaws had placed tubes of bamboo at such an angle that a man had only to raise his rifle above his head, stick the muzzle into the tube, pull the trigger, and hit full in the abdomen the average constabulary soldier who came up on the attack. The whole intrenchment was surrounded by a high bamboo fence. Only eleven Moros escaped from the stockade.

BAGSAG FIGHT WAS FIERCE.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—"Probably no fiercer battle since American occupation," is the description by Brig. Gen. Pershing of the battle with the Moros yesterday at Bagsag, in his report by cable to-day to the War Department. The Moros made desperate attempts to rush the American lines, but were beaten back and overwhelmed. Their leader, Amil, and several other noted outlaws were reported killed, but the total loss of the Moros is not known.

One American officer, Capt. Taylor A. Nichols of the Philippine Scouts, was killed. First Lieut. Edwin H. Rackley of the Scouts was wounded slightly, and three Philippine Scouts of the Fifty-first Company, all natives, were killed. Gen. Pershing's report follows:

"On June 12 the Moros' resistance at Bagsag was formidable, and their fort and trenches on the precipitous side of the crater not only supported each other strongly, but were defended with modern arms. The Moros fanatically and continuously tried to rush the American lines, but the careful disposition of our force held the American loss to a minimum. Probably there has been no fiercer battle since American occupation.

"Major George C. Shaw of the Philippine Scouts commanded the right wing, with Company M, Eighth Regiment, United States Infantry, and the Fortieth Company, Philippine Scouts. Capt. Taylor A. Nichols of the Philippine Scouts commanded the left wing, with the Fifty-first, Fifty-second and Twenty-ninth Companies, Philippine Scouts. A mounted gun was with each wing, and proved of great assistance. At the close of yesterday, Capt. Patrick Moyland of the Philippine Scouts, with two companies, was supporting the gun on Mount Bunga, and the American force occupied a controlling position on the rim of the crater.

In a cablegram Major Gen. Bell not only explains the reason for the attack on the Moros' stronghold, but also assumes responsibility with Gen. Pershing. Gen. Bell's report runs:

"The fight at Bagsag was incident to the disarmament policy of the Governor General (Cameron Forbes) and the Governor of the Moro province, adopted after many months of patient, but fruitless, negotiations and marked by promises disregarded by the Moros. A situation arose that, I believe, left no alternative.

"Amil and a relatively small following occupying one ward of the island of Jolo were the only Moros who refused to give up their arms peacefully. Disarmament was generally desired by the Moros themselves. All of the rest surrendered their arms months ago without resisting. Under the circumstances it was impossible and unjust to the disarmed Moros to permit a few of them to retain arms."

REACH AGREEMENT ON CURRENCY BILL

McAdoo, Owen, and Glass Smooth Differences as to Its Scope.

LIMIT TO FEDERAL CONTROL

Reserve Banks to Conduct Fiscal Reorganization Under Government Supervision.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Substantial agreement has been reached between Secretary McAdoo, Senator Owen of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, and Representative Glass, Chairman of the corresponding House committee, on the proposed banking and currency legislation. There are now no essential differences as to its scope, though minor changes may be made before the draft of the measure is submitted to their colleagues on the Congressional committees.

Until lately there was one phase of the matter not definitely settled. That was the question whether the Federal Government should have a more direct control in the proposed reorganization of the national banking situation, or whether the original plan of having the reserve banks thus empowered under the supervision of the Federal Government should be adopted.

It has now been decided that the latter proposal was better understood by the country, and that it would be wiser to stand by the essentials of that plan, which would involve the creation of regional reserve banks and a Federal Reserve Board at Washington. The idea of vesting the Federal Government with more direct control has therefore been discarded. This action leaves the draft of the proposed bill practically ready for the consideration of members of the Senate and House Banking and Currency Committees.

In connection with this agreement, the statement was made to-night that Secretary McAdoo had withdrawn from his position regarding currency reform so as to make such a settlement possible. In an authoritative quarter it was said that this statement of the case was unfair to Mr. McAdoo, and did not correctly represent what had been done; that Secretary McAdoo could not have withdrawn from "his position," because he had not occupied a position in favor of the alternative plan for vesting the Federal Government with more direct control in the proposed banking reforms.

The facts of the matter, it was explained, were that a suggestion for such control had been made to Secretary McAdoo by Senator Owen, and had been considered by the Secretary, but that nobody had been finally committed to the idea, not even Mr. McAdoo or Senator Owen, who had talked it over with some of his colleagues in the Senate, both Democratic and Republican.

In drafting the bill, which was based on the three measures proposed by Messrs. Glass, Owen, and McAdoo, concessions were made here and there in an effort to agree upon some concrete basis for legislation. It is not the purpose of the Administration, it was said to-night, to force this measure upon Congress.

Both the Republican and the Democratic members of the banking committees will be taken into the confidence of those who have been preparing the tentative draft, and they will be urged to make suggestions for the improvement of the measure. These conferences may result in some important changes in the bill, which will then be made public.

The plan for more direct Federal control contemplated the issuance by the Federal reserve board of the proposed additional currency which may be authorized by the bill.

An animated controversy in the House Committee on Banking and Currency is certain to arise over a report to be made by a sub-committee of five members unanimously recommending that the new Monetary bill be considered in sessions open to the press and public. The recommendation is opposed by Chairman Glass, who proposes that a caucus of the entire Democratic membership of the House be held to consider this radical innovation.

Representative Bulkley of Ohio, Chairman of the sub-committee, is trying to induce Chairman Glass to accept the view that on so vital a question as the framing of a new banking law there must be the widest publicity if the confidence of the country is to be retained.

It is asserted by Congressmen in favor of open sessions that a rejection of the recommendation will probably end whatever hope there is for currency legislation at the present session of Congress.

A Romance of the Real Lincoln.

FOR the first time in fiction, a dramatic web has been woven around the life of Abraham Lincoln, revealing him as the MAN. One Woman Says:

"What a gift of expression she has! I know of no other woman and very few men who can equal her on this one point.

"Chesterton does the same thing, with a champagne sparkle and bubble, but I would hesitate to say that even he surpasses her, for while he is bubbling and sparkling on the surface, charming, alluring, holding one, she is down among the fibres of the heart, her bright brain and keen wit cutting right and left with the precision of a skilled surgeon. Not so witty, but fully as wise.

Leading Fiction that has Quality

A New Novel by ELIZABETH DEJEANS

"A writer to be reckoned with."—Chicago Record-Herald.
"She has advanced into the foremost rank of novelists."—Hartford Courant.

THE HOUSE OF THANE

A vital portrayal of the modern pirate, a subtle study of the emotions, an even more absorbing story than "The Far Triumph."

By ELIZABETH DEJEANS, Author of "The Winning Chance," "The Heart of Desire," "The Far Triumph," etc. Illustrated in color by F. C. Yohn. 12mo. Cloth. $1.25 net. Postpaid, $1.37.

Freshness of viewpoint and a power of revealing the true inner emotional life of men and women have won for Elizabeth Dejeans an important place in American Letters. Her last novel, "The Far Triumph," published in 1911, definitely placed her in the forefront of American writers whose works show a deep study of human character.

In the new story the character of John Thane is remarkably well drawn and readers will be impressed by the truthfulness with which his passions and emotions are described and their effect upon his life brought out. From the moment when Thane realizes the shallowness of his wife until the climax, the story is a succession of dramatic and thought-stirring scenes. The gradual awakening of this strong, dominating man to the true values in life through the devotion of Mary Kelly, a lovely young girl, child of the streets, is exquisitely done.

"LO MICHAEL!"

By GRACE L. H. LUTZ, Author of "The Mystery of Mary," "Marcia Schuyler," "Dawn of the Morning," etc. Illustrated in color by Gayle Hoskins. 12mo. Cloth. $1.25 net. Postpaid, $1.37.

Novels dealing with the clash of social classes and the problem of the poor are very often unpleasant reading, but this strong sociological love story is one of exquisite charm and sentiment.

"Mikky," the little newsboy, saves the life of Starr, the baby daughter of a rich banker, from an angry mob. Through the banker's help and his own indomitable energy, "Mikky" rises to power, and not the least of that which makes him so appealing is his remembrance of the poorer class from which he arose. The story of how he and Starr eventually struggle through class prejudice to happiness is developed through a series of absorbing incidents. Mrs. Lutz handles all her characters sympathetically, and as the story grows in intensity, the social differences which separate Michael and Starr are brilliantly contrasted. The story is free from any suggestion of socialistic motives and is a most absorbing human chronicle.

THE UNFORGIVING OFFENDER Second Printing

"John Reed Scott has shaken off the ghastly cloth of tradition and comes forth into the open to hazard a novel in which a woman who errs recovers her lost place among women who are good women, not merely anointed saints. That a woman should be given her chance to moral rehabilitation only thin-lipped, skirted puritans will deny. Such books as this do more good for the cause of woman than the most sulphurous preachments."—Minna Thomas Antrim, in the Philadelphia Record.

GAYNOR SNEERS AT INVESTIGATORS

Makes in a Letter to Clarkson Cowl Another Defense of Police System.

WALDO BEST OF ALL HEADS

Mayor Says He Does Not Believe in "Setting a Thief to Catch Another Thief."

In a letter to Clarkson Cowl, President of the Central Mercantile Association, Mayor Gaynor made yesterday another vigorous defense of his police administration. Mr. Cowl had written to the Mayor that he had sent a message to Alderman Nicoll, commending Police Commissioner Waldo for the way in which the latter had discharged his duties in the retail dry goods district. The Mayor said that the whole town now perceived that Mr. Waldo was an honest man; that most people had seen that all along notwithstanding the "investigators and the clamorers," and that he, the Mayor, had felt safe with Mr. Waldo, because "I knew that he was honest." The Mayor went on:

"Some come and tell me that it needs a thief to catch a thief, and they want another Byrnes, or another Devery, or some such person at the head of the police force. Out with such people! The investigators and the clamorers have not been able to put their finger on a single wrong thing that Mr. Waldo has done. And during all the noise he has stuck to his duty with the force under him like a man. He has not flinched once.

"Of course, the scent and the cry of the whole pack has been pointed against me, and they wanted to make Waldo the victim. But they have miscarried. How pitifully little they all look to-day. All they are able to say is that a few grafters were found in the police force. And what of it? Did we not all know that there were some grafters in the force, and that there had been grafters there for more than a generation? And are there not grafters in the London police force and in every police force? Are they not from time to time found out and convicted?

"But who caused the recent graft disclosures except Mr. Waldo? He closed up gambling houses and worse houses under the law of nuisance, on a legal basis which we established, with the result that the debased men and women proprietors, seeing that they were put permanently out of business, came forward and made disclosures of graft for twenty years back. The Commissioner caused these disclosures by the performance of his duties, and yet an attempt was made to raise a hue and cry against him on account of them as though he had done something wrong.

"The first was the case of Rosenthal. He opened in succession twelve gambling houses, and each one was promptly closed up, one after another, and when the last one was in the actual possession of the police, who stayed there day and night, and he saw his occupation was gone, he revealed that a police Lieutenant was his partner.

"The same was the case with Sipp, and his beastly houses, and the equally beastly houses of the two women, Goode and Hertz. When they were put out of business they came forward with their stories of graft, running back for a generation. They had corrupted policemen for that length of time. And the fellow Purcell was also called to defile this town with his ancient story. And a few days later he murdered his child and attempted to kill his wife.

"But there was no halt in the attempt to degrade the police force and this grand city. And these are the sources of all the revelations of graft. And now, when the police put these infamous places out of business, the proprietors shake their fingers and threaten to go and tell their tales, and they are told to go ahead and tell everything.

"Every one is now perceiving the truth. Not a wrong thing has been disclosed against Mr. Waldo. He is an earnest, hard-working man. I expect other revelations of graft, and I hope they will come. We want to get at all the grafters. We have got rid of the old timers one after another. Of the nineteen Inspectors that were there when I became Mayor only six remain. In one way and another we have edged them out.

"The young men who are coming up to take their places are the finest in the world. No body of men anywhere, military or civil, is selected so carefully and with such severe tests. They have to be of a certain height and weight and muscle, and their hearts and lungs and organs have to be perfect. And when they pass that examination they have to undergo a mental examination which excludes every one not of good intelligence. When I saw 5,000 of these young fellows swing by in the recent parade it made me tingle from head to foot. No such number of perfect men was ever seen in line before anywhere in this world. And all the while I kept saying to myself:

"'Just think of the way they have been outraged for a year by corrupt scamps and little, pitiful investigators!' They have been denounced in every way because there are a few grafters in the force, as though that was anything extraordinary. Every profession and business calling has as large a percentage of grafters, if not larger, than exists in the police force."

SCHOOL VENTILATION FOUND DEFECTIVE

City's Committee Condemns Open Window and Finds Substitute System Worse.

SCHOOLROOMS TOO WARM

Germs Free to Enter That Could Be Excluded—More Money for Investigation Suggested.

Serious defects in the means and methods of ventilating the public schools were pointed out yesterday in a preliminary report to the Committee on School Inquiry of the Board of Estimate by Charles G. Armstrong, consulting engineer, and Profs. Charles Baskerville and C. E. A. Winslow of the City College. Bacteriological analysis was made of the air in several schoolrooms, and experiments were made upon the sterilization by ozone of the air.

The committee finds that "the open window system of ventilation is not conducive to health or proper regulation; that the present mechanical system of ventilation is harmful, even more so than the primitive open window method; that the latest mechanical ventilation systems should be installed in new school buildings; that where ducts cannot practically be installed, individual ventilation devices be used to sterilize, humidify, wash and temper the air, and that more money and time be applied to carry on the investigation."

The vital faults disclosed by Mr. Armstrong in his report are:

"The forcing of dirt-laden air, unwashed and unscreened, from the street level into the classrooms; the absolute lack of proper air-conditioning apparatus and the contamination of the air by antiquated sweeping and cleaning methods."

Some of the other conclusions arrived at are these:

"Overheated and overmoist air is the principal cause of discomfort and injury to health in ill-ventilated rooms.

"In four of the five schools studied the average temperature was over 70 degrees, indicating a distinctly undesirable condition of affairs.

"In the three new school buildings, not in crowded districts, 15 per cent. of the records showed comfortable conditions outside and overheating within, while in the two old buildings located in tenement districts the percentage rose to 54 per cent."

The analysis for bacteria showed that the germs taken at comparatively minute proportions of the entire room area were largely harmless. This, however, according to the experts, does not necessarily indicate the absence of harmful ones. They argue that the very fact that germs of any kind may freely enter into the schoolroom shows a faulty and insanitary condition inherent to the open window and other unfiltered systems of ventilation.

PRESSBURG FIRE LOSSES.

Jewish Homes Worth $500,000 Burned—$250,000 Insurance Paid.

The American Jewish Committee of this city has been informed that 2,700 Jews lost their homes in the recent fire in Pressburg, Hungary. Their loss was estimated at $500,000. Of this amount $250,000 was covered by insurance. These details of the fire were given in a letter received from the Israelitische Allianz at Vienna:

"The Jews comprise an overwhelming majority, almost 80 per cent. of the persons who have suffered from the fire. As in Hungary there is no occasion for the organization of relief work by large Jewish organizations in the case of a great catastrophe, and as in Pressburg itself the Jewish community, in complete accord with the municipal authorities, has taken the necessary steps for the relief of the fire sufferers, our organization has not been called upon in this instance. We have, nevertheless, organized a special Jewish relief committee under the Chairmanship of our President, Dr. Alfred Stern, which welcomes all contributions for the benefit of the suffering Jewish population.

"An international relief committee organized under the auspices of the Mayor of Pressburg has received some $30,000, and further contributions are expected from Hungary and Austria. For the moment the necessary aid is provided. Later we will have to concern ourselves with the problem of rehabilitating the many persons who were ruined by the fire."

SUNDRY CIVIL BILL GOES TO WILSON

Measure with Labor Union Exemption Clause Sent to Him by the Senate.

HE PROBABLY WILL SIGN IT

Likely, However, to Say That There Is Other Money to Prosecute Labor Combinations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The long fight on the Sundry Civil bill, which contains a proviso directing that a certain fund of $300,000 shall not be used for the prosecution of labor unions or agricultural associations, came to an end to-day, when the Senate, by a non-partisan vote of 48 to 12, yielded to the House on an unimportant amendment. This vote sends the bill to the President, and it is expected that he will sign the measure.

In the closing days of the last session President Taft vetoed the bill in the precise form in which the Senate re-passed it to-day because the proviso, in his opinion, constituted a "piece of vicious class legislation," but the debate to-day scarcely touched on that subject. The one difference between the two houses during these weeks of delay has been over a House provision reducing the controlling board of the Soldiers' Home to five members. The discussion to-day hinged almost entirely on the merits of that provision.

In signing the bill President Wilson probably will accompany his signature with a message to Congress that may go far toward nullifying the political effect of his acquiescence in the partial exemption of labor unions and farmers' leagues from prosecution.

The President will indicate, it is said, that the proviso does not bar the Government from prosecuting either of the exempted classes. The Department of Justice has funds other than this item of $300,000, and they are adequate for any prosecutions that may be necessary.

It is thought that the first light on the President's real attitude toward this kind of exemption will come when the Administration makes plain the course it intends to pursue in regard to the indictments against labor leaders in West Virginia.

Those indictments caused great surprise in Washington, because they seemed to contradict all inferences drawn from the known fact that the President had acquiesced in the re-introduction of the Sundry Civil bill with the proviso retained. Attorney General McReynolds said that he knew nothing of them, and certainly had not directed the prosecution. If, later, the Department of Justice directs that the indictments be dropped it will be inferred that the President approves of the principle of the proviso's exemption and merely objects to its having been included as a rider to an appropriation bill.

LIFT MIDDLEMAN BLAME.

Statistics Show He Doesn't Cause All the High Prices.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The middleman, frequently charged with much of the responsibility for the increased cost of living, escapes that indictment in a report issued to-day by the Department of Agriculture. The report says that during the last twenty years of advancing prices the margin between the producer's and the consumer's price has not widened much, if any.

Comparing the average of prices for the last ten years, 1903-1912, with the preceding ten years, 1893-1902, it appears that wheat advanced 32 per cent. The wholesale price of flour advanced 29 per cent. and the retail price only 28 per cent.

Hogs advanced about 33 per cent., the wholesale price of hams 24 per cent., and the retail price of hams about 32 per cent. Steers advanced 24 per cent., the wholesale price of beef advanced 23 per cent., the retail price of sirloin steak 19 per cent., and rib roast 23 per cent.

Harrison Descendant Presents Chinaware to White House Collection.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—An interesting addition was made to-day to the historic chinaware collection at the White House by the presentation of a cup, saucer and plate from the table service of William Henry Harrison, ninth President of the United States, by Miss Mary Reynolds, a great granddaughter of that President.

Only five administrations now lack representation in the collection, those of Presidents Van Buren, Tyler, Taylor, Johnson and Taft.

RIGID TRUST CURB IN LA FOLLETTE PLAN

Senator Proposes Sherman Law Amendment Enlarging Definition of Trade Restraint.

ENDS "RULE OF REASON"

Onus Placed on Corporations of Proving Reasonable Restraint —Combinations Classified.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The most complete and sweeping definition of the phrase, "unreasonable restraint of trade," yet proposed was offered as an amendment to the Sherman Anti-Trust act to-day by Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin.

Mr. La Follette's amendment begins by throwing upon any combination, even in the slightest restraint of trade, the burden of proving that the restraint is reasonable. But in many cases, under conditions set forth in the proposed amendment, unreasonableness is established as a matter of fact, and the corporations are debarred from presenting evidence of the smallness of their holdings to show that the restraint is reasonable.

Mr. La Follette's amendment, if adopted, would put an end to the famous "Rule of Reason" announced by the Supreme Court in the Tobacco Trust and Standard Oil decisions. But it would not end it by the radical proposal often mentioned shortly after the two great decisions came down—that all restraint of trade, even the most incidental, be considered illegal. Mr. La Follette adopts a more moderate view, admits the distinction between reasonable and unreasonable restraint, and attempts to define what makes restraint of trade objectionable.

Mr. La Follette defines the word "combination" as "including any contract or combination in the form of trust or otherwise." Restraint of trade, according to Mr. La Follette's bill, means "any restraint in any respect or to any extent."

Nine Classes of Combinations.

Mr. La Follette's bill describes nine classes of combinations which, regardless of their size or condition, would be held unreasonable:

First—A combination that prevents the purchase from another source of an article which it manufactures.

Second—A combination which discriminates in prices by offering lower rates where the purchase is in large amounts.

Third—A combination that refuses to sell to some of its would-be customers.

Fourth—A combination that seeks to increase its business by offering better terms in one territory than in another.

Fifth—A combination which contracts among its members as to a division of territory.

Sixth—A combination that seeks to promote its business under an assumed name, or by disguising in any way the controlling interests behind it.

Seventh—A combination that artificially stimulates its sales at the expense of competitors by selling below the cost of production.

Eighth—A combination that spies on the business of its competitors or by bribing inspectors or other officers of the United States.

Ninth—A combination that controls a raw material necessary to the manufacture of any article, and seeks to prevent competitors from making this article by holding the raw material at an unreasonable price.

In addition to these definitions of combinations in restraint of trade, the bill provides that any member of a combination of which another member has already been adjudged guilty, upon the establishment of his participation in the combination, is to be held guilty of restraint of trade in an unreasonable degree. A rebuttal supposition of unreasonable restraint would also lie against any combination shown to control 30 per cent. or more of the total output of any article of manufacture. Mr. La Follette carefully provides that in addition to the stringent provisions of his own act other provisions now in force shall remain effective.

Mr. La Follette's bill derives much of its importance from its provision easing the way for the participation of individual sufferers at the hands of combinations in suits brought by the United States, either criminal or civil, against the combination. In order to simplify procedure, the bill provides that the facts established in the successful prosecution of a combination shall be considered as proved in other similar suits affecting the same conspiracy. Any injured party may intervene for damages in suits brought by the United States, and provision is made that this intervention shall not be used to delay the settlement of the original suit.

Extends Statute of Limitations.

The statute of limitations, according to the provisions of this bill, shall not run against the intervention of injured parties, or their institution of original suits in the same cause, if such suits begin within three years after the entering of the final decree in the suit brought by the Government. The only exception to this rule is in case of claims already barred when this bill goes into effect.

One of the most radical provisions in Mr. Lafollette's measure authorizes the court, upon preliminary or final establishment of the existence of an unreasonable combination, to fix the price at which the monopolized article shall be sold. If, however, the combination has made its monopoly oppressive by contracts favoring certain customers with low prices, the lowest price fixed by those companies shall be made generally for the benefit of the public. The bill seeks to avoid conditions arising under the Supreme Court's interpretation of the patent laws in the Dick case by forbidding the use of a patent for incidentally monopolizing any article not protected by the patent. If this provision is violated, the patent shall be forfeited to the United States and annulled.

The bill makes it a complete defense to any suit involving a contract, or to any suit involving infringement of patent, if the plaintiff is shown to be in restraint of trade. Pending the settlement of a suit involving unreasonable restraint, the bill prohibits any department of the Government or any official of the United States from purchasing supplies from the defendant corporation.

OLD BROTHER NOAH may be held accountable for IT all. He was the CHAP who put BIRDS IN THE ARK.

Then Daniel Defoe came along and conceived the IDEA of putting these feathered CREATURES to WORK and when the TIME came to assign the RÔLES in his Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, HE gave a speaking PART to one Paul Parrot, Esq., whose SQUAWK has been heard by GENERATION after GENERATION with renewed DELIGHT.

Followed the REVOLUTIONARY WAR—and when the AMERICAN EAGLE finished with the British LION Uncle Sam was so well satisfied with the PERFORMANCE that HE put an EAGLE on EVERYTHING of VALUE in the COUNTRY.

Edgar Allan Poe wrote a POEM about a big black RAVEN he found perched up on his STUDY DOOR one NIGHT which caused such a STIR that IT found its WAY into every fifth READER in the LAND.

Edmond Rostand next acquired the HABIT, and like Woodrow Wilson stepped into the LIMELIGHT to the clarion ACCOMPANIMENT of the CHANTECLER.

Maurice Maeterlinck introduced the BLUE BIRD to the playgoing PUBLIC, making IT the HARBINGER of PEACE and HAPPINESS in his successful PLAY.

Not to be outdone, C. M. S. McLellan created a CRACKER-EATER more canny even than Defoe's particular PET, and has used IT successfully as a MIRTH-MAKER in "Oh, Oh, Delphine!"

James S. Wadsworth of Geneseo
The First Life of the Great War Hero of New York State
By Henry Greenleaf Pearson

This book comes appropriately in this year that is marked by the fiftieth anniversary of Gettysburg;—for some of those gray waves of men that rolled across that valley to mark the high-tide of Confederacy, broke upon Wadsworth and his command.

The narrative covers the career of General Wadsworth as philanthropist, anti-slavery partisan, volunteer general, military governor of the District of Columbia, candidate for Governor of New York against Horatio Seymour in war time, and, pre-eminently, as the general who commanded the First Division of the First Army Corps, distinguished himself at Gettysburg, and later commanded the Fourth Division of the Fifth Army Corps until his soldier's death in the Wilderness.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JUNE 14, 1913.

PEACE AND PROSPERITY.

Director of the Mint ROBERTS, addressing the New York bankers at Ottawa, turned the sentiment about peace between nations to a new use. It was just as necessary, he argued, that there should be industrial peace as military peace, and peace between classes as between nations. Bankers know that the classes are so blended that there can be no struggle between classes. The conflict is of economic interests, not of social classes. Capital competes with capital rather than with labor. New capital is constantly warring with old capital, and, except land values, nearly all the capital that existed in the United States fifty years ago has been "scrapped." Yet capital increases faster than population. In the United States capital doubles in twenty years, and population in about thirty-five. But every dollar of new capital creates a demand for labor to keep it employed, for capital abhors idleness for itself.

It is to the interest of labor that capital shall accumulate for the sake of the employment that capital gives, and it is to the interest of capital that labor shall increase in both quality and quantity, for otherwise capital must be unemployed itself. Each has a necessity for the other, and the one which is increasing the faster is at a disadvantage compared with the one which is increasing more slowly and for which there is, therefore, a scarcity demand. To Mr. ROBERTS it seemed unnecessary that "labor should liquidate," in the language of those who are most cheerful when thinking and declaring that the worst is yet to come. In Mr. ROBERTS's words:

> Labor will never be liquidated as long as capital grows faster than population. But if capital accumulations fall off; if our earnings fall off, or if our savings fall off; if we become inefficient in production or wasteful in expenditure—then there will be danger that everybody will be "liquidated."

There never was a time when capital worked harder or more efficiently, but how is it with labor? Is labor working longer hours, or producing more? Capital never contributed more to the common good and more for the poor than for the rich. Wage earners are not busy supplying the wants of the income taxpayers, a mere fragment of the population. Wage earners are busy supplying the wants of themselves, and they never could do it without the assistance of capital. It is the wants of the millions that keep the millions busy. Every worker who keeps other workers out of work decreases the buying power which supplies wages for all. The labor organizations which fight for the decrease of working hours in proportion to the increasing capacity of machinery struggle for deficiency of supply, for scarcity, for reducing the employing power of capital. Horse power in manufactures increased four times as fast as population in the last census decade. Railway tonnage increased also fourfold, and coal consumption doubled. Factories were producing and railways were distributing faster than consumers increased, and out of all proportion to the needs or the possibility of consumption by the rich.

These conditions are eloquent of good for the multitude, and both labor and capital should co-operate in continuing such conditions, rather than in fighting each other. Labor is getting its pay in its consumption, as well as in its pay envelopes. It will lose both in its consumption and its pay envelopes if it obstructs capital in its activities, and if it does not give a fair day's work for a fair day's wage. There are inconsistencies in prices and inequalities in wages, and there is friction in these adjustments. It would be well if there were no friction, but its existence is proof of readjustments tending in the right direction. The real workers with their wits and their hands will profit by these fluctuations, and it is in vain that organizations of the inefficient seek to profit at the expense of the efficient.

THE MAYORALTY.

Mayor GAYNOR's situation, politically, is by no means so desperate as he paints it. "I have no party back of me," he says, and "I do not suppose "there is any party or organization "that would nominate me." It might be said that his cheerfulness in the circumstances gives proof of the high quality of his philosophy, but we prefer to believe that he knows very well that a very great part of the people of the city have a good opinion of him, and that they would like to see him renominated and re-elected.

There are two candidates conspicuously qualified for the nomination and the office. They are pointed at by the unerring finger of availability. They are GEORGE MCANENY, President of the borough, and WILLIAM J. GAYNOR, Mayor of the city. A political party or fusion organization that left the names of both these men off its lists would show a very defective knowledge of the state of public opinion. The city administration, as a whole, has been efficient and satisfactory, and the Mayor and the Borough President have done much to make it satisfactory. In the Board of Estimate these two men, with their colleagues, have toiled with great industry and intelligence to bring forth the works of good administration. Their triumph in carrying the dual subway plan through to execution was an achievement of distinction, a public service of which it would be impossible to appraise the value to the City of New York. Mr. MCANENY's tireless patience and fertility of resource in overcoming obstacles and in breaking prolonged deadlocks, and the Mayor's lucid statements making the truth about the subways perfectly clear to the people of the city, made this result possible.

Criticisms have been heard, they always have been and will be made, but with a record of substantial achievement and good service before them, men of sober judgment take little account of the faultfinders.

Mr. WHITMAN is doing very well where he is. Why should not he and his friends be content with his continuance in that office? But to make up a Mayoralty ticket that contained the name neither of the Mayor nor of the Borough President would be a weak and foolish procedure. The people recognize merit where it exists, and they expect it to be recognized by those who represent them in nominating conventions.

THE NEW LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT

Mr. CARL T. PILAT, the newly appointed Landscape Architect of the Park Department, was chosen through the persistence of Commissioners HIGGINS of the Bronx and ELIOT of Queens instead of a gentleman who is credited with planning "some recent Central Park improvements." The public is to be congratulated. No person who has planned any recent "improvement" in Central Park ought to be employed as Landscape Architect. Mr. PILAT is a young man who has the backing of the American Society of Landscape Architects and is the nephew of one of the assistants of OLMSTED and VAUX in the work of laying out Central Park.

He seems to be well qualified by education and experience, and, indirectly, by inheritance, for his new duties. What he needs, most of all, is backbone. He has the power, if he will exert it, to prevent destruction in Central Park, to forbid ill-advised changes. His immediate predecessor was competent as a Landscape Architect, but seemed powerless to prevent the sort of work which tends to park destruction. If Mr. PILAT sticks firmly to his rights he will succeed. If he is weak enough to let others decide for him he will fail.

THE MINISTERS EXONERATED.

The exoneration by the Parliamentary Investigating Committee of the Cabinet Ministers accused of using knowledge obtained officially for private profit, in connection with the contracts between the British Government and the Marconi Wireless Company, was a foregone conclusion. It has been obvious from the first that the charges were inspired by political opponents and enemies of Sir RUFUS ISAACS, Mr. DAVID LLOYD-GEORGE, and Mr. HERBERT L. SAMUEL, and that they could not be sustained after any serious investigation. Naturally, the Opposition denounces the committee's report, but the denunciation will not be taken seriously in Great Britain.

A great deal of clamor has been raised for very little cause. The heedlessness of the three statesmen in buying shares of the American Marconi Company after the Government of which they are a part had undertaken negotiation with the English company has already been sufficiently punished. It is poor policy for Government officers to deal in shares of any enterprise, but such action does not necessarily imply corrupt intent or evil influence. In this case the innocence of the persons chiefly involved has been perfectly clear. The scandal which was increased by malice, and for political effect, has now reached its climax. Nothing remains to be explained, and no suspicion of any wrongdoing rests upon any of the managers of the Marconi companies.

THE STAMFORD DISASTER.

The engineer, DOUGHERTY, who has been blamed for the latest disaster on the New Haven Railroad, makes out a very good case in his own favor. He did not run past the signals without heeding them. He declares that he applied the air brakes at the proper moment, but could not stop the train. He made a desperate effort to stop it by throwing the air brake into the "emergency," sanding the tracks, and trying to reverse the engine. This resulted in parting the train in the middle, the brakes being most strongly applied on the rear cars. The engine and forward cars rushed all the more swiftly toward the standing train.

This failure of the brakes to work properly suggests that the employment of automatic contrivances to stop a train at danger points might not always prove effective. But the most deplorable fact in connection with Thursday's disaster is that the engineer was physically incompetent for the heavy task imposed upon him. He is a small man and not very strong; moreover, he had injured his back so badly two days before, trying to stop his engine by applying the reverse lever while his train was running past a station, that he had been compelled to rest on Wednesday. He tells a clear and plausible tale, which the railroad company, and perhaps the union which has much to say about the assignments of engineers, will have some difficulty to explain to the satisfaction of the injured and bereaved.

This engineer was not only unsuited to the heavy task imposed upon him, but his unfitness had been clearly proved. The New Haven Railroad has added to its terribly discreditable list of avoidable disasters another which reveals a new set of dangers to which the traveling public is daily subjected. The investigation now in progress will bring out all the facts in detail, so that further comment may be reserved. But it is only fair to say that the glib charge of carelessness against the engineer does not seem to hold this time.

THE SAN FRANCISCO SCANDAL.

There are two "ends" to the collapse of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway combination, and it may be hoped that both of them will be uncovered. Prince PONIATOWSKI uncovered the American end the other day, in an interview well expressing the shock to French confidence in American railway management. The French end was hinted at in a Paris cablegram at about the same time, in these words:

> French bankers are greedy. That is the entire trouble. They are not satisfied with small commissions, and consequently they accept more or less sound propositions that will furnish high commissions. It should not be surprising if the St. Louis & San Francisco affair should lead to one of the worst scandals of recent years in French banking circles.

To-day precision is given to these obscure hints by The Railway Age Gazette, which gives the particulars of the French flotation. Neither the French nor the American bankers were under any illusion regarding the dangers which threatened the property, and they dealt with each other on terms of equality in information and profit and loss:

> The American bankers sold the bonds to the French bankers at a very small margin of profit, less than 1 per cent. The French bankers, knowing all the time the exact status of the bonds, sold them to their customers at a profit, it is safe to say, of over 10 per cent. If any one was not made aware of the risk taken in buying these bonds, it was the small customer of the French bankers. It would seem, therefore, that it is disingenuous, to say the least, for the French bankers to allow the blame for any risk which their customers have unwittingly taken to rest either on American railroads or on American railroad bankers.

Is it too much to hope that these explicit statements may meet the eye of Prince PONIATOWSKI and receive his attention, as well as of the American investigators? There seems to be an equality of necessity that both American and French investors should be protected on both sides of the ocean. Yet there is no need of an investigation to show that they had the material for self-defense if they had chosen to use it, and the fact should qualify their resentment against their advisers.

KNOW WHAT YOU ARE BUYING.

A manuscript Book of Hours of the fifteenth century was sold in London on Thursday for $10,000. It was sold in 1864 for less than $785. Facts like these too frequently impel persons utterly ignorant of the value of rare books to speculate in this field. Mr. WILLETS of this city has recently learned that books which looked valuable to him are worth about one-fifth of the price he paid for them. The buyers at the Huth sale knew what they were buying. Mr. WILLETS did not know what he was buying. It is dangerous to buy books, pictures, gems, real estate, or securities unless you know how to do it. That is the only lesson to be derived from the sad experience of Mr. WILLETS.

There are comparatively few ways to increase your capital by buying and selling. Experience can teach you a great deal, but unless you are born with the faculty of commercial judgment or are able to secure an adviser with that gift you do well to hold fast to what you have, and let others reap what profits they may. Your consolation may be that while a few may get richer thousands who are tempted to buy things of the real value of which they are ignorant will get poorer. If Mr. WILLETS had known enough about the business of buying and selling rare books to hire a reputable expert to help him exchange his money for literary treasures he might to-day be upon the road Mr. HUTH, Mr. HOE, and so many others successfully traveled. On the other hand, if he had bought lands, or stocks and bonds, as recklessly as he bought books his losses would have been as great, if not greater.

JESTER AND POET.

The Hon. JOHN GORDON SWIFT MCNEILL, member of the British Parliament for Donegal, is not often a borrower of other men's ideas, and never before, until Thursday, had he stooped to borrow an idea from his sovereign. Mr. SWIFT MCNEILL, to whom British sovereigns are things of naught, must have forgotten that it was King GEORGE V. who first said that a Poet Laureate was as out of date as a Court Jester, or he would not have repeated the assertion in the House of Commons. Mr. ARTHUR LYNCH, formerly, we believe, a Brigadier General or something in the Boer Army, but now a member of the British Parliament, having asked for information touching a Poet Laureate's wages, (something less than $500 all told,) Mr. MCNEILL gravely suggested a revival of the post of King's Jester.

So experienced a humorist as Mr. MCNEILL knows well that the office of jester was rendered useless by the development of national humor. The King now has Punch, (which is a comic publication,) the humorists of the theatrical stage, and the humorists of the House of Commons, who serve every purpose a Court Jester could serve. In the old days Parliament men were grave, and there was not a gleam of humor in the realm except that supplied by the official jester. A Poet Laureate, on the other hand, is particularly needed by royalty and the State in an era when poets are so generally tending to radicalism. Mr. SWIFT MCNEILL ought to see the point.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Jest Easily Answered.

Professing to be unafraid of woman suffrage, the avuncular CANNON, humorous and agile ghost of departed power, says in his latest speech, "now that we have it in Illinois it will be a good time for an awfully handsome man to run for office." This jest, coming from another, might pass as fair to middling good, but it will not enhance the ex-Speaker's reputation as a keen observer and shrewd judge of human nature.

For a joke to be really funny—for it to be funny to the thoughtful as well as to the thoughtless—it must be based on a truth or a fact, and there is a foundation of neither in the contention that many women of voting age are more likely to bestow their electoral favors on awfully handsome men than on those who are awfully ugly. Certainly it is a matter of commonest knowledge that they show no such discrimination in allotting the greater boon of themselves, for the number of ugly men who get married shows that the great majority of women have appreciation for other masculine qualities than beauty. It would not be impossible, or even difficult, to support the direct opposite of the Cannonian theory—the theory, namely, that noticeably good looks hinder rather than help men in the attainment of any ambition whatever. For there is a widespread belief, fully shared by women, that in men strength and ability are not to be expected from those handsome enough to excite comment by that characteristic.

Had Mr. CANNON said that now is the time for awfully handsome women to run for office in Illinois he would have done greater credit to his judgment, for the beauty of women is an argument to which most men concede a whole lot of force, whatever may be the question at issue. The suffragists themselves are well aware of the superior effectiveness of their young and charming speakers, and in these later and wiser days they do not hesitate to enhance natural beauty by all the arts of toilet that purse can command and taste suggest. No longer do they try to exemplify "dress reform" in their own garments; instead, they follow the fashions carefully and successfully, and Mr. CANNON would be rash indeed were he to deny that the vote of the Illinois Legislature was largely influenced in this very way.

Fine Idea, Even if Impracticable.

So clearly is the regulation of automobiles within the domain of "home rule" that to make it the subject of a Federal law, covering the whole country, is something not to be expected and hardly to be hoped for. That is what the Governors of the Travel Club would like, and they even suggest uniformity of restriction and privilege wherever automobiles are used. That is an ideal which every automobilist will declare magnificent, and it is sensible, too, for of course there is a best automobile law—best for everywhere and making due allowance for all sorts of urban and rural conditions.

For all the world, however, or even for all of any one country, to agree upon what the provisions of the best law should be—that would require a making over of human nature not to be accomplished till the millennium comes. Meanwhile every country, and most parts of every country, down through big cities to little villages, will probably insist on making variations in the automobile law, each to suit its own fancies and interests.

This is most inconvenient for the drivers of motor cars—a fact not of the highest importance, indeed, but still not negligible—and it is not to the real advantage of the several communities that inflict the annoyances upon the stranger on their roads.

Automobiling, unfortunately, both is and is not a neighborhood activity. The man who does most of his riding within his own town or county is likely at any moment to start off on a tour that will take him through half a dozen States, and as soon as he is ten miles from home, hardly the best of intentions will save him from becoming a lawbreaker, involuntary but none the less amenable to fine or imprisonment or both.

Though the Travel Club's ideal probably cannot ever be attained, nevertheless it is a good one, and continuous efforts at its slow approximation will be commendable. Progress will be the faster the better and more considerately automobilists on their travels behave themselves. When they succeed in making themselves loved and respected by all they will have none except mechanical troubles—which are as many as anybody really needs.

Obstinacy May Be Heroism.

When one juryman stands out against eleven to the bitter and expensive end of a dismissal for unconquerable disagreement, theoretically, of course, he is not only within his rights, but he is doing exactly what is expected from him under a long-established system that demands unanimity and will accept nothing else or less. Also of course in doing this he may be nobly, even heroically, conscientious, deserving of the highest praise.

On the other hand—without touching on the most obnoxious of possibilities—he may be merely a pig-headed fellow, who mistakes obstinacy for firmness. On any supposition, he assumes a heavy responsibility, and either explicitly or by implication he makes all the charges against his eleven associates that they make against him.

The chances that they are right and that he is wrong are large—just eleven to one, other things being equal. That conclusion, however, is not inevitable, for majorities even greater than this have been known to make mistakes much more than often enough to disprove any claim on their part to infallibility.

That such an ending to a long or important trial is irritating cannot be denied, and naturally most of the irritation is against the man who hangs the jury instead of inflicting that or some less punishment on the prisoner at the bar.

Disagreements, perhaps fortunately, are not frequent. If they were, the demand for unanimity would presumably be mitigated—to whose detriment is a somewhat dubious question.

EAST SIDE STREETS CLEANER

Removal of Litter at Night Has Worked Successfully.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The matter of cleaning the streets in the congested tenement section of the lower east side, which comprises the district lying below Twelfth Street, is one which has been a matter of considerable study by the many who have interested themselves in conditions as they exist in this part of the city. No one has given the matter more thought and shown more interest than Commissioner Edwards of the Department of Street Cleaning. While the pushcart markets interfere with proper day cleaning, and impede the work to a great extent, the real problem has been caused by the fact that after dark there is a considerable littering caused principally by the householders throwing out bundles of all sorts of household wastes, instead of placing them in the proper receptacles for removal.

Commissioner Edwards arrived at the conclusion that a campaign of education would be the best for remedying the defect. To carry out this idea the Commissioner asked the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for a sufficient force to permit of doing the work by gangs instead of by individual patrol and to do the work at night, leaving the patrol squad to do their work during the daytime. Although the number of men allowed was a considerable reduction from the number requested, the system has been installed. At 6 o'clock each evening a gang of ten sweepers now goes on duty and sweeps the litter into piles and later on a force of carts follows, removing the accumulation. Piles are made at the corner only, and this prevents the piled material being spread before removal. This work is followed by a gang of sweeping machines and sprinklers, and the street is then fully cleaned. The carts are taking away on the average between six and seven loads apiece nightly.

From the standpoint of cleanliness, health, and comfort the new idea has operated successfully, and the comment of those who live in this section on the beneficial result is such as to assure the Commissioner that he has been successful in his efforts to greatly improve living conditions in this quarter. ANNOYING RAILROAD RULES.

Escorts Not Allowed to Pass Gate at Grand Central.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why is it that the management of the New Haven Railroad seems to delight in making petty regulations to annoy its passengers?

At present there is a drastic rule by which no one without a ticket may pass the gateman at the Grand Central terminal. A man escorting a lady to the train is not allowed to go through, though, of course, the one ticket in evidence shows clearly that they are headed for the right train. Instead of seeing his wife comfortably seated in the car he must leave her to walk the several blocks from the gate either herself carrying her hand baggage or paying a porter to take it.

This rule seems to be annoying and entirely unnecessary. The Lackawanna road, with its enormous passenger traffic, often dispatches several trains, local and express, at about the same minute. There are always plenty of courteous officials on hand to guide the puzzled passenger, but there is no such silly, hampering rule requiring tickets to be shown and punched.

If the Lackawanna successfully handles its passengers without such regulations, why should not the New Haven road be able to do the same? IRVING PUTNAM.

Park Orchestras or Bands?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been attending the Park concerts ever since Capa's famous band played on the Mall, not speaking of the bands under the excellent leadership of Fanciulli and Humphreys. And to my mind, never in the history of Park concerts was music fully appreciated until the Commissioner installed in recent seasons the Symphony Orchestra, under Franko, Volpe, and Kaltenborn, respectively.

Never has there been such an attendance as that of last season, for instance, with seven concerts a week of superb programmes rendered by the orchestras of Volpe and Kaltenborn.

I don't think the people of this city need to be educated up to the present music being rendered in Central Park. They have been attending these concerts too long for that, and I feel sure that, with the exception of a very few, every one is more or less thoroughly familiar with the works given. Beautiful effects can be obtained only from a stringed orchestra.

Why rend the Summer nights with the harsh tones of a brass band?

NORMAN MONTFORTE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Little or nothing has been said about the music on the recreation piers. Last year it was generally admitted that the bands provided on the piers were better than ever before. The reasons for this were:

First—Because better bandmasters were selected. Commissioner Tomkins consulted some of the leading musicians of the city before making any appointments.

Second—Each band was given a contract for the entire season of ten weeks. In former years the band situation was entirely governed by politicians, and there were any number of bandmasters appointed, some for only one or two weeks and others for only one or two concerts. Let us hope that the new Commissioner will keep up the good work of his predecessor.

AN EDUCATIONAL TRUST

Seen at Work by Dr. Gray in Flexner-Hodgson Controversy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES's article on the controversy between Mr. Flexner, as representing what we call "The Educational Trust," and Dr. J. H. P. Hodgson, the representative of the University of the South at Sewanee, on the other hand, a totally false idea of the issues at stake is given. This is not because THE TIMES has in any way misrepresented facts, or because Mr. Flexner has said anything that is not perfectly true. The trouble is that both the newspaper and the eminent educator fail utterly to see what is behind it all.

It is really a question as to whether, just because they have millions in their control, a self-perpetuating board shall be able to say what an educational institution in this or that part of the country may or may not do. It reminds me exactly of the case of a very good friend of mine who lived in a small city in this country, and who, being an Englishman, desired to sell certain English goods rather than the regular American material. No pressure of any kind was put upon him, but he very soon found that if he tried to do anything different from what was in accord with the plan of the big New York corporation which controlled the sale of the American goods he dealt in, he would be quietly and by methods which were entirely within the law put out of business. He had to give up, therefore, his desire for English goods. This is, of course, a very old story, but people fail to realize that these enormous New York corporations, organized for educational purposes, are moving quickly in the same direction.

Take a hypothetical case, forgetting Sewanee and the Church: Suppose that Jones University of Jonesville, in the Middle West, wishes to organize a law school in the City of Lafayette; and then suppose that the Educational Trust, having heard of it, should write to Jones University and say: "We think you are making a mistake and advise you not to establish a law school in that district; all who wish to study in that district should go to the law school in Cairo." Suppose some contingency of this kind, and then imagine that Jones University refuses to hearken to the voice of Mammon and goes ahead with its law school and suddenly finds that the trust is throwing a million into another law school in the same place. What will result? Why, what generally results when a dollar tries to fight a hundred-dollar bill. Suppose some contingency of this kind, and then suppose it repeated one hundred times, does it not show that before long no Board of Educational Trustees in the United States will dare move until they have asked permission of New York's high-priced experts? This is no wild fancy; it is a cold-blooded statement of exactly what is developing in the educational world. The point is that, if Sewanee has made a mistake in establishing a medical school in Nashville, it is for the Sewanee Trustees to decide, and not for high-priced New York specialists. I will not even deny that the New York specialists are the more competent judges in this particular case. I merely assert that if it goes through it is a case of doing good that evil may come.

By my inversion of the old phrase I mean that even if we grant that Dr. Flexner knows better in this case as to what is advisable, we do not grant that it is American or wise that he should prevail, and this because it will be the opening wedge which will, in the end, destroy the independence of American educational institutions. His position may be secure as to detail on this point, but the principle upon which his board's action is based is vicious. It is a dastardly act when any man throws in his millions to help him establish control over institutions which do not come within his proper sphere of influence.

ARTHUR R. GRAY,
Educational Secretary of The Domestic and Foreign Protestant Episcopal Missionary Society.

Not Afraid of "13."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to THE TIMES's editorial article of this morning on the "thirteen" superstition, I wonder how many people know that the absurd notion that thirteen is an "unlucky" number in any connection has developed enormously within fifty years or less from the old idea that if thirteen people sit down at a meal together one of them will die within a year.

When I was a student in Williams College, graduating in 1867, I occupied for a year a room numbered 13, and my home was at 13 Washington Avenue in this city. Also for one term during that period I was at a boarding house in Williamstown where there were 13 persons at table when all were present. I was asked, over and over again, as were the other boarders, whether we were not afraid of the imagined fate that threatened persons so eating; it was a regular jest at the table, and it was with some exultation that we were able to point, later, to the fact that all the thirteen were in good health more than a year after the arrangement was broken up.

Canal Work Much Cheaper.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in THE TIMES to-day that Col. Goethals says that excavating on the Panama Canal costs 3 cents per cubic yard with suction dredges, and about 6 cents with steam shovels. In 1881 I made a contract with the American Dredging Company for excavating with marine bucket dredges for 32 cents per yard, which was the lowest price bid here. The same contractors went to Paris and obtained $1 per cubic yard.

Comments are unnecessary to show how matters have been improved with time and by honest and able management.

Nerve-Racking Street Venders.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is it lawful for venders to parade the streets calling out in strident, unmusical tones their various wares, fruits, &c.? "Strawberries!" vie with "Old clothes!" all day long, repeated in varying tones and guttural accents hundreds of times, making day (not night) hideous. Many people work all night and try to catch a few reasonable hours of rest in the daytime. Each house has its nervous invalid, or perhaps some one just lingering on the shores of Time, and why should they not have quiet and peace? In the name of equity, law, and order, cannot this nuisance be abated? S. C. C.

THE ONLY WAY.

What stuff folks fill the papers with!
Why, now, they even say
One can't engage a good, plain cook,
And get that cook to stay.

I've had her now these thirty years,
My stewer, broiler, baker,
A first-class cook, and just as plain
As smallpox scars can make her.

Yes, thirty years have now elapsed
Since I this helper took;
I married her in '83,
My priceless, good plain cook.

PLANS A MODEL LAW FOR CIVIL SERVICE

Catherwood Would Have Commissioners Themselves Appointed After Examination

AND GIVE THEM MORE POWER

Gallagher Describes Advantages Gained by Investigation of Records of Candidates for Appointment.

Many papers were read at yesterday's sessions of the National Assembly of Civil Service Commissioners at the Waldorf-Astoria. President C. E. Buell of Madison, Wis., and nearly 100 other Civil Service Commissioners from all parts of the country were in attendance. Papers were presented at the morning session on "Investigation of Character and Experience," by Frank Gallagher, President of the Municipal Civil Service Commission of New York City, and on "Impressions of a Novice Examiner," by Joseph J. Reilly, Chief Examiner of the Massachusetts State Commission.

Samuel H. Ordway of the National Civil Service Reform League at the afternoon session delivered a paper on "The Need of Independence and Permanence of Tenure of Commissioners," and Robert Catherwood, President of the Cook County, Ill., Civil Service Commission, addressed the assembly, taking as his subject "The Widening of the Area of the Functions of Civil Service Commissions." The reading of papers was followed by informal discussion.

Mr. Gallagher in his paper told of the development of the civil service regulations in this city. The commission, he said, investigated the character or employment record, or both, of candidates on the eligible list. He said in part:

"The importance of the work is plain, for it assures in the first instance the entrance of none but persons of good character and industry to the service and bars those whose characters are not good, whose habits may be dissolute, and whose employment record shows them to have been failures in private employment because lacking in the essentials which ought to make for the desirable employe in the service of the City of New York.

"The work of investigation has the additional advantage of lifting up the standard of the city service by giving to it in the way of new blood persons with whom it will be agreeable and profitable to associate, while serving notice on the delinquent class that to them the operation of entrance to the service will be as difficult as the proverbial way of the camel through the eye of the needle."

Mr. Gallagher then described in some detail the examination of would-be police patrolmen, and told how the investigation of the records of applicants tended to keep undesirables out of the city's employ.

Mr. Catherwood told the Assembly that Civil Service Commissions should be empowered to dismiss employes in the civil service after a proper hearing. Department heads, he said, often failed to dismiss delinquents from fear of political consequences, especially where the inefficient employes had built up powerful political "fences" and could bring strong pressure to bear. This political factor, he said, could not influence Civil Service Commissions. He then outlined what he considered would be a model statute regarding civil service matters.

"The first requisite," he said, "is that the Civil Service Commissioners or the Board of Experts, which administers the law, shall come into office like other high executive experts, through a competitive examination, and while in office shall be protected fully from political influences, particularly the political influences which may be brought to bear upon them through the Chief Executive.

"The law should give any citizen, the Chief Executive included, the right to file charges for the removal of a Civil Service Commissioner before a designated superior court, where the case may be heard with the public looking on. The commission is not an arm of the Executive, but a body established by the people to see that the public service is kept efficient, and that the democratic principles of the merit system are intelligently enforced.

"The second requisite of an adequate civil service law is that the commission shall have power to make its own rules and shall have simple and direct means of enforcing them. The power to prevent the payment of any payroll item by withholding its approval is an effective remedy vested in each of the Illinois Commissions. In practice, the payroll section is far more effective than all the penal sections put together.

"The third requisite is that the commission shall have power to establish and maintain a uniform scale of pay for each grade of the service so that should the Finance Committee raise or lower the pay of a position, such action will operate automatically to raise or lower correspondingly the pay of every other position in the same grade."

The session of last night was devoted to a "round table" meeting presided over by James Creelman, former President of the Municipal Civil Service Commission of this city. There was a general discussion of a proposed civil service law which had been prepared by Mayor Fesler of Cleveland, Ohio.

Officers for the ensuing year were also elected as follows: Frank A. Spencer, Secretary of the New York City Commission, President; Thomas F. Boyle, Boston, Mass., First Vice President; A. R. Robinson, Springfield, Ill., Second Vice President; W. C. Keough, Cleveland, Third Vice President; John T. Doyle, Washington, D. C., Secretary and Treasurer; John C. Birdseye of Albany, Philip J. Coffey of New York, and Alton A. Lower, members of the Executive Committee.

The delegates will go on a sightseeing trip this morning about the rivers and harbors on the municipal ferryboat Manhattan. In the afternoon they will inspect the exhibits at the gymnasium of the New York City Commission, 54 Lafayette Street, and later will inspect the buildings of the College of the City of New York, as guests of President Finley.

To-morrow night the convention will end with the annual dinner at the Waldorf.

PAINTING FOR WHITE HOUSE.

Consul General Topakyan Gives View of Harbor by an Armenian.

President Wilson, in a letter received yesterday by H. H. Topakyan of New York, Consul General of Persia, accepted for the White House a beautiful painting of New York Harbor by C. Calusd, an artist from Constantinople.

Mr. Calusd is an Armenian and was brought up on the shores of the Bosphorus. He makes a specialty of marine views, and has many beautiful ones of his native land. The White House picture he has entitled "Welcome." It shows the Goddess of Liberty at sunset, enveloped in an opalescent mist, "her arm raised in welcome," as the artist says, signaling to an ocean steamer on its way in from the sea. A many-toned sunset sends a ray of golden light across the water, and in the background an indeterminate mass of many colors is Staten Island.

The artist studied in Paris and Venice as well as in Constantinople. He has won diplomas from the Government of Bulgaria where he took refuge at the time of the Armenian massacres. Later in Bucharest he sold several pictures to the Rumanian Government, and the Queen, Carmen Sylva, became one of his patronesses.

Mr. Topakyan has already made several gifts to the White House. A rare jewel rug, which he presented during the term of President Roosevelt, is now framed in the library of the White House. Another fine silk Persian rug was presented while Mr. Taft was President.

MISS COSTER IS WED TO SUMNER GERARD

FEW PRESENT AT CEREMONY

It Is Performed in Grace Church Chantry — Bride Is Unattended and There Are No Ushers.

The only wedding of social prominence in town yesterday, which proved to be an almost brideless June day, on account of it being Friday, June 13, 1913, was that of Miss Helen Coster, second daughter of Mrs. Charles Henry Coster, who defied superstition and became the bride of Sumner Gerard, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gerard, at 8:30 o'clock, in Grace Church Chantry.

The ceremony was marked with great simplicity, and only the immediate families and a few intimate friends were present. The Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery officiated.

The chancel was banked with palms, the dense green being broken by a profusion of white peonies. There was a brief musical programme while the guests were arriving.

The bride walked to the altar with her brother-in-law, Henry Lewis Morris, who gave her in marriage. She was unattended, and wore a walking length costume of taupe charmeuse, with a panel in the back of dark blue moire, which extended below the girdle to a broad band of the same material, and a low and very broad-rimmed hemp hat of taupe, trimmed with wide ribbon a shade lighter than her gown.

Justice Gerard was best man for his brother, and there were no ushers.

Mrs. Coster, the bride's mother, who came down from Tuxedo yesterday returned to Tuxedo directly after the ceremony, as there was no reception. She appeared in a white and black striped satin gown with draperies of black chiffon and lace, and a black straw hat, massed high with black chiffon.

Others present at the ceremony included the bride's sisters, Mrs. Henry Lewis Morris and Miss Maude Coster, her brother, Charles Henry Coster; her aunt, Mrs. Thomas G. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Pell, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence C. Pell, Dr. and Mrs. George Draper, Mr. and Mrs. Amos R. E. Pinchot, Miss Mary M. Hare, H. C. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan A. Smyth, and Mrs. Leonard Thomas.

MISS McLEAN A BRIDE.

She Weds in Paris Major Ravenscroft of the British Army.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, June 13.—Miss Helen McLean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McLean, was married here this morning to Major Herbert Valentine Ravenscroft, son of the late E. W. Ravenscroft of Far Forest, Worcestershire.

The ceremony took place at the American Church, in the Avenue de l'Alma. The wedding breakfast was given at the Hotel Meurice. The beautifully decorated church was crowded with a fashionable congregation, representative of the American and English colonies.

The bride, magnificently gowned in white satin trimmed with old lace, was attended by Miss Ethel McLean, her sister, who wore a white satin dress beneath a tunic of black tulle. Masters Edward Tinker and James McLean Tinker, the bride's nephews, in white sailor suits, made picturesque little pages. The bride was given away by her father. The wedding breakfast was attended by distinguished guests, among whom were the American Ambassador and Mrs. Herrick, Prof. Ravenscroft, Aston Knight, Mrs. Couch Stuart and the Misses Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Andrews, and Mr. and Mrs. James McCoy.

The honeymoon will be spent in Switzerland, for which the newly wedded couple left this afternoon. They will go to London in July, and will leave England for Egypt in November.

The bridegroom is in the Government service at Khartoum.

Miss Stryker Weds T. E. Schanck.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, June 13.—Miss Sarah Garretson Stryker, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Allen of 26 Morris Street, New Brunswick, was married yesterday afternoon at their home to Thomas Ely Schanck, cashier of the People's National Bank of this city and a son of K. H. Schanck of Freehold, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Schanck will sail on Saturday on the Anchor liner Caledonia for a European trip.

Miss Dorothy Kent Is Engaged.

The engagement was announced at East Orange yesterday of Miss Dorothy Anne Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Kent, who is just finishing her freshman year at Wellesley College, to Dr. John Andrew Freese. Dr. Freese is a member of the home office staff of the Prudential Insurance Company in Newark and a Captain in the Medical Corps of the New Jersey National Guard.

The bride was attended by Miss Rose L. Breitung as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Caroline and Katharine Allison. Miss Doris E. Snyder acted as flower girl. A. N. Gitterman was the best man and the ushers were F. Alrick L. Muller, Martin C. Ready, Frederick C. Ringer, and Daniel W. Nye.

Mr. and Mrs. Nye after a tour through the Great Lakes will reside in New York.

MISS POWELL IS ENGAGED.

She Will Marry John A. Logan, 3d, Early in September.

The engagement of Miss Margaret Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Powell, Jr., of St. Joseph, Mo., to John A. Logan, 3d, only son of Mrs. John A. Logan, Jr., of Youngstown, Ohio, and this city, has just been announced. On May 28 the engagement of Mrs. Logan's second daughter, Miss Edith Logan, to Dewees W. Dilworth of New York and Pittsburgh was announced.

Miss Powell attended a private school in this city and went to Paris last year to complete her education. Mr. Logan's father was Major John A. Logan, who was killed in action in the Philippines in 1899, and he is a grandson of the late Gen. John A. Logan.

The wedding will probably take place at the home of the bride's parents, in St. Joseph, Mo., early in September, and the couple plan to spend their honeymoon in Europe.

Miss Wyeth to Wed A. D. McLean.

VIOLENCE RENEWED IN PATERSON STRIKE

Sixty-eight Rioters Arrested Within a Few Hours After Others Were Sentenced.

WANTS CHILD PICKETS

Police Will Be Mild to Them, Miss Flynn Says—Sinclair Denounces Scott's Conviction.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., June 13.—Early this evening, a few hours after heavy sentences had been imposed here on men arrested for the strike disorders, renewed violence was reported in the Paterson strike. On the Prospect Park side of the Sixth Street Bridge forty deputies had taken charge of as many strikebreakers who had been guarded that far on their way home from the silk mills by the Paterson police.

At the bridge a large crowd was waiting and at the sight of the strikebreakers and their guard a fight started. Stones and bricks were thrown and the deputy sheriffs responded by firing their pistols into the air. The strikers ran at the sound of the shots, but the deputies succeeded in taking sixty-eight prisoners who were carried to Police Headquarters.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, in addressing a small crowd to-night in a lot in Water Street, urged the strikers to send their children to the Sixth Avenue Bridge to act as pickets. She said the police would not be harsh with them. Even the mothers with their children at their breasts should be on the picket line, she asserted, to show that they were in earnest. She said this would train the children to act as pickets, so that they would know how to do the work when grown.

Haywood, Tresca, and Lessig also spoke. Their speeches were mild and contained few references to the arrests made to-night.

Judge Kleinert disposed of eleven convicted strikers this morning and thirty-eight other strike prisoners who had been awaiting sentence were remanded for two weeks. The Judge intimated that the payment of the fines imposed would probably lead to the remission of the prison terms to which the men were sentenced.

Five men who were convicted of having assaulted Patrolman Cassidy several weeks ago were sentenced to from one and a half to three years in State prison and to pay a fine of $50 each. Barney Hagerdorn of Haledon, convicted of unlawful assemblage, was sentenced to six months in the county jail and to pay a fine of $50.

Four other men, who were found guilty of having assaulted Cornelius Van Hook of Hawthorne, were sentenced to from a year and a half to three years in prison and to pay a fine of $50 each. Van Hook is employed in the Weidmann dye shops. He was held up by the four men while on his way to work and was threatened with further violence unless he joined the strikers.

The strikers were much pleased when word came from Trenton that Supreme Court Justice Minturn had granted to the arrested strikers the right to trial before jurors drawn from Hudson County instead of from Passaic County. This right was extended to the indicted men some time ago.

A letter from Upton Sinclair to Scott, the editor of the Socialist newspaper who was convicted of defaming the Government in the Paterson strike, was made public by the strikers to-day. The letter was written as Sinclair was sailing with his bride for Europe. The writer called Scott's conviction the most outrageous legal persecution that had ever been recorded in our history.

NO SERVICE TO RETURN.

That Is Because Newark Never Gave Its Cruiser Namesake Any.

When one of the Newark city officials heard a few weeks ago that the cruiser Newark of the United States Navy was destined by department orders for the junk heap, he announced that he thought it would be a good idea for the city to ask for the return of a "magnificent silver service" that he was sure the city had given to the vessel at the time it was named. Every one else thought it would be a good idea also. The Public Library provided a place for its exhibition, and the Common Council passed a resolution calling on the Navy Department to restore the gift. The Mayor wrote to Secretary Daniels in regard to the service.

Yesterday he received an answer from Assistant Secretary Franklin D. Roosevelt. Newark never gave any silver service to the ship, said the Assistant Secretary. "A ship's bell, a silk flag, and a picture of the Mayor were presented, and are now available for return as a loan," the letter said.

SUCCESS FOR MISS MACBETH

London Critics Pay High Compliments to American Soprano.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, June 14.—The American soprano, Miss Florence Macbeth, made her public début in London at Queen's Hall yesterday afternoon. Several critics say that she confirmed the favorable impression she created when she was recently heard in private.

The Daily Telegraph says that she has begun a career which must lead to the very highest pinnacle of the singer's fame. The Times says her technique is perfection. The Daily Mail says she possesses a truly beautiful voice. The Daily News, on the other hand, says that she no doubt deserves to occupy a good place in the profession, but between that and what has been claimed for her a great gulf is fixed.

The audience was most appreciative and demanded several encores.

14 MILLIONAIRES SAVED.

Go to Convention in Lifeboat When Yacht Gets in Shoal Water.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 13.—Fourteen millionaires representing some of the largest railroad and car building interests in the United States trusted their lives to the skill of Martin Harris, swimming instructor of the Hygeia Pool, and Abe McCullen, city life guard, when the palatial steam launch Naushon, owned and manned by Col. John W. Hubbard of Pittsburgh, anchored in shoal water at 8 o'clock last night three miles off Rhode Island Avenue.

Drenched to the skin and supremely wretched, the millionaires huddled together in the none too roomy lifeboat, while Harris and McCullen tugged at the oars to bring them safely from the yacht to the breaker line and through the danger zone to the shore.

In the party were J. C. Coons, Vice President of the Illinois Central Railroad; C. W. McDaniels, New York corporation lawyer; A. F. Bedell, Pittsburgh steel capitalist; A. W. Hubbard of Kentucky, brother of the owner of the boat, and Robert Mason, steel car manufacturer of Pittsburgh.

Harris and McCullen left the beach in their boat at 8:30 o'clock shortly after the Naushon had begun to blow her whistle and flash her searchlight. At ten minutes to midnight they had the fourteen men safely ashore, having made two separate trips to the launch and rowed twelve miles through a choppy sea and a highly dangerous surf.

The Naushon put out from New York City at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. On board were eighteen passengers in addition to the owner and a crew of eight men. When a few miles from the bell buoy the lookout reported shoal water, and for fear of running aground the yacht anchored.

Several of the passengers had important engagements in connection with the convention, but Col. Hubbard had heard tales of Absecon Inlet and he refused to take chances with his yacht. Consequently distress signals were given.

Col. Hubbard, four of his passengers, and the crew remained on board the yacht and got into the inlet this morning.

WOULDN'T DRILL ON DAY OFF

Policeman Retired from Force Takes His Case to Court.

Both rank and file of the Police Department are watching with interest an action begun by Robert McNish, formerly a policeman attached to the Vanderveer Park Station, Flatbush, who was retired from the force on June 4, following his refusal to report for police drill on his day off. McNish, through his attorney, appeared yesterday before Magistrate Naumer in the Gates Avenue Court and filed a complaint against the Captain and the Lieutenant of his former precinct, saying that they had violated the three-platoon law by ordering him to drill on his day off.

The Magistrate issued sumonses for both officers, and fixed June 18 as the date for the hearing. It is the first test case brought under the three-platoon law since its passage in 1911.

BRIEFS IN ZIEGLER CASE.

Divorced Mother a Factor in the Abrogation of Adoption.

The lawyers representing the contending parties in the application of Florence Louise Brandt for the setting aside of the proceedings which abrogated her adoption by the late William Ziegler and his wife, filed briefs yesterday in the Surrogates' Court. Miss Brandt, who is a teacher in Davenport, Iowa, is a sister of William Ziegler, Jr., whose adoption was not abrogated and who has inherited the Ziegler millions.

The sister's lawyers argue that her mother, who had been a party to the adoption proceedings and who was subsequently divorced, was not a party to the abrogation proceedings. The lawyers for young Ziegler argue that the mother's consent was not necessary.

"Being divorced," the brief says, "her consent to the abrogation was expressly negatived by the statute at all times in force."

MUST PASS EXAMINATION.

English Solicitor Cannot Otherwise Practice Law Here.

Because he is only a solicitor in England and not a barrister, Charles P. Wray will have to pass the bar examinations before he can practice law in this State. That was decided yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The second of the rules of the Court of Appeals provides that any person may be admitted to practice here without examination if he has practiced for five years as a member of the bar in another country whose jurisdiction is based on the principles of the English common law.

"Membership in the bar," says the Appellate Division, "has a well-defined meaning, and a person admitted merely to practice as an attorney or solicitor is not within this definition. To entitle a person to admission under this rule, he must have been entitled to practice in the highest court of some part of the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland."

SWAY OF THE SHIP TRUST.

Representative Alexander Says Coast Competition is Dead.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Chairman Alexander of the House Ship Trust Investigating Committee, making public the first three volumes of the committee's proceedings to-day, said they contained evidence that competition between coastwise lines practically had been eliminated and that all established lines from American ports were in agreements.

"In the trade with foreign ports," said Mr. Alexander, "the committee found at least seventy-six agreements or understandings whose purpose was to fix and maintain rates, regulate the traffic, and in many instances pool the business. These agreements govern nearly all the regular lines operating in various branches of the American foreign trade to Europe, Africa, South America, and the Caribbean district.

"Practically all the lines serving both the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards of the United States are members of conferences or work in co-operation through written agreements or oral understandings."

SEES WIDE ADVANCE OF ALL WOMANKIND

Progress the Globe Over Observed by Miss Ackermann —Greatest in China.

MAKES EIGHTH WORLD TRIP

Finest Mothers of All She Finds in Australia—Fears Effect of Militant Methods.

After an eight years' absence from these her native shores, on her eighth trip around the globe, Miss Jessie Ackermann, writer and lecturer, has just returned to America fairly glowing with satisfaction at the advance of women the world around. Miss Ackermann, who has now traveled nearly 400,000 miles, covered on her last journey most of the countries of South America, Australia and New Zealand, China, Siberia, Russia, and other European countries. She stopped in England on the way home long enough to observe the militant situation there and landed here just in time to hear the news of the suffrage triumph in Illinois.

"Women have advanced along all the lines of cultural and social development far more rapidly than the most sanguine of us could have anticipated a few years ago," she said yesterday afternoon at the City Club. "Suffrage is just one phase of the change, and that, too, is moving fast. It will advance in the next year or so far more rapidly than most of us realize, hopeful as we have all become by recent events. A few more thunderclaps like Illinois will break in upon much slumber, or I am vastly mistaken.

"I have been through Turkey and Syria, I have been in the Russias and in the Far East, and have found no community where the evidences of woman's advance were not to be found at every hand. Perhaps the most spectacular change was in China. It all came swiftly and impressed me all the more profoundly, because when I was in China twenty years ago I saw and studied things there as they used to be. I remember so well when the Chinese women in the inland towns gathered around me, staring at my big feet and asking the interpreter why this 'old creature' wore cloth things on her hands. I am inclined to believe that it was the decree of the old Empress that the children's feet should be allowed to grow unbound that first started the women of China thinking. I am inclined to believe, too, that it was the missionaries, not by their teachings, but by their examples, who first led the Chinese women to consider what a home and family life might be and mean.

"Now the women are to enter the liberty of the new republic on the same footing as the men. That has been guaranteed to them. You know, they had their militants there, who were very active in the south. They stormed the houses and threw stones and kicked the legislators about a bit and made themselves generally annoying. I asked one of the men what they did about it. 'Oh,' he said, 'we moved the Assembly to the north.'

The Freest Country on Earth.

"I was more interested in Australia than in any other country I visited, with the possible exception of Argentina. Australia is the freest country on earth. They have the suffrage there now. The critics from afar have told how, in some of the States, the women took little interest in the ballot and its possibilities. That is because in those particular States the women had not been interested beforehand.

"They had not asked for the vote, which came to them, as it did to the rest of Australia, as a party measure, a political expedient. The suffrage is appreciated and used only where it has come to women as a result of their own work—where, in other words, the receiving of the vote has been preceded by a period of education such as is going on in Holland now, for instance.

"The women of Australia are the finest mothers in the world. That is because they have been unable to get domestic help and have been obliged to run their own homes. They are pioneer women, the Australians, working alongside their husbands in the felling and burning of trees in the bush. There are women farmers there, and in Victoria women solicitors.

Ignorance Under Russian Rule.

"I have said that there were no countries where the new age of women could not be seen dawning. That is true, but in such countries as Russia and Siberia the signs of development are confined almost entirely to the women of the upper classes. The lower-class women have not yet begun to think, so widespread is ignorance under Russian rule. Do you know, there was one very sizable little town in Siberia which I visited where the whole community was agog because one of the men had received a letter, the first ever received there by an individual. No one reads and writes in the rank and file, and each little town has to have its letter writer for the community."

It was evident that Miss Ackermann was not in sympathy with the militants in Great Britain, and that she held no brief for the wilder demonstrations of Pankhurstism. She was reluctant, however, to express her opinion, and sought to show that the temper of the British women could be understood only by one who has seen the development of the problem through the decades.

"You must know," she said, "that there are 5,500,000 women in England who work for less than $2 a week. You must know, too, that the Suffrage bill has been in Parliament for forty years, and that nearly always it has been held up by unfair tactics. You must know these things to understand the utter exasperation of the militants. Mind you, I do not say they are wise or right or shrewd. But I understand the old difficulties. I have watched the suffrage cause in its progress there. I have lived close to the workingwomen in London.

"I have peddled from a coster cart in the East End, where I lived among them. I have hawked shoestrings at Ludgate Hill and sold crockery for a man in Petticoat Lane. I made friends among the poorest and talked to them as one person who is hungry talks to another. When you have been through all that, you understand.

"I am not sure that the militant method has postponed the coming of the vote to women in England. I am afraid it has, for I have a vivid impression of the mule temperament of the British man, and know how he settles in his tracks when he thinks he is being battered to do anything. But most of the thinking folk in England realize that the militants are only the tiniest fraction of the movement for the advancement of women, and they will not long let the behavior of the militants prejudice the entire cause."

Praises Bank of England in Address at Ottawa Gathering.

White, Financial Minister of Canada, and Prof. T. H. Bailey of the New York State School of Agriculture. Mr. Padgett compared the currency systems of the United States and England, and said the American system was not sufficiently elastic. He pointed out the value of the Bank of England to British bankers, and deplored the fact that the banks of the United States had no such safeguard.

Mr. White expressed the opinion that the main cause of financial stringency and the high cost of living was war.

Robert H. Treman of Ithaca was elected president, James H. Perkins of Albany vice president, and T. W. Burdick of Gouverneur treasurer of the association.

DEFIES THE 13 HOODOO.

American Line Captain Takes His Ship to Sea Without Fear.

Capt. Arthur R. Mills of the American liner Philadelphia, which sailed yesterday morning for Southampton with a good number of passengers of all classes and mails, said he was not daunted at sailing on Friday, the 13th day of the month, in 1913.

"Friday is no longer considered an unlucky day for sailing from the home port," said the Captain. "Several of the big steamship lines from London and Liverpool to India, China, and Australia leave on that day. I fell from an upper topsail yard off Cape Horn in a sailing ship on a Friday, which was also Christmas Day, and luckily landed astride the lower yard, when we were aloft reefing sails. The worst thing about it was that a fellow-apprentice ate my share of plum duff because I was so slow in getting down to dinner." Capt. Mills added, after deep thought, that he believed it was unlucky to be shipwrecked on a Friday.

Laughs at Talk of Cabinet Friction —Urges Oleo Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Attorney General McReynolds, passing through Chicago to-day with James M. Beck, Paul D. Cravath of New York, and other lawyers who had been in St. Paul attending the Union Pacific proceedings, denied with emphasis all reports that there was any friction between him and other members of President Wilson's Cabinet. The idea that he might resign seemed to amuse Mr. McReynolds.

"That is all moonshine," said he. "I have no intention of resigning, and I know absolutely nothing of any friction in the Cabinet."

Regarding the oleomargarine cases the Attorney General said

"A thorough investigation of these claims of the Government against the oleo manufacturers is to be made. A plan for the investigation, which I favor, has been outlined by District Attorney James H. Wilkerson, but at this stage of the preliminary investigation it is impossible to say what course will be taken. One point, however, has been determined: If it is found that the oleo makers evaded the payment of certain revenues prior to the compromise, action will be taken to collect those amounts."

RAKING LICENSES IN "ADS."

Montclair Boys Called to Drink Whisky and Beer.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 13.—The attention of all Montclair has been attracted to the approaching hearing on the application for liquor licenses of seven saloons and three wholesale houses, by the appearance of some satirical advertisements in the local papers.

"Two hundred fathers wanted to teach their sons to drink beer and whisky" is a typical line in large capitals and Montclair is much mystified as to the identity of the person or persons paying for all this advertising space. The identity is concealed behind the advertising agency that is placing the insertions.

One of the advertisements says:

> Wanted—Raw material. If liquor licenses are granted in Montclair (and there is every assurance they will be) a new supply of raw material must be furnished by our residents in the shape of boys just from school—young business men. If 200 can be depended to start drinking beer and whisky it can be made a howling success. If you will assist, tell the Mayor.

Another reads:

> Wanted—Two hundred young men to learn to drink whisky and beer this year. Every patriotic resident should be ready to contribute one boy. If you are ready to assist, tell the Mayor and Town Council how glad you are to help support the cause.

Thus far the mail of Mayor Hinck has not been overburdened by letters from those who may have been inspired to write by reading the advertisements.

GIANTS' SPEED WINS GAME FROM PIRATES

Fast and Sensational Fielding and Base Running Stirs Pittsburgh Fans.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., June 13.—The Giants to-day won a game from the Pirates by the close margin of one run. They won, not because they outhit their opponents, but because they displayed remarkable speed in the field and on the bases. Red Murray, a worthy successor to Silent Mike Tiernan in right field, made the sensational catch of the game. In the second inning Wilson smashed the ball into right field and it threatened to go into the cheap bleachers. Murray backed to the screen, raised one hand, and grabbed the ball. It was a thrilling performance and Red was harassed with cheers when he went to the bench. Doyle and Shafer also furnished high-class stunts. Doyle backed into right field in the second inning and spun like a top before he caught a fly off Miller's bat. Shafer, in the third inning, ran against the grand stand and caught a foul fly from the bat of Adams. All these plays were cheered, although under their breaths the spectators referred to the players as "robbers."

Adams and Demaree were the opposing pitchers and the Giant pitcher had much the better of the Pirate centre piece. He did not give a base on balls and Adams issued only one free pass. The pass was given to Doyle in the eighth inning, but, contrary to all local traditions, Doyle did not score.

Pittsburgh had a new catcher in the person of a six-footer from the Davenport Club of the Indiana-Illinois-Iowa League, named Robert Coleman. Robert put in a pretty hard afternoon's work, accepting thirteen chances without a flaw. He threw out two frisky Giants who attempted to steal second, and came near throwing out a third, only Wagner dropped his throw.

Fred Clarke played in left field for the first time since the Fall of 1911. He got only one chance, catching a pretty difficult fly from the bat of Snodgrass in the seventh inning. He did nothing at bat, never reaching first base on his three times up.

The Giants punished Adams rather severely in the second inning, getting two singles and a double and scoring one run. They probably would have scored more runs had it not been for the pernicious activity of the new catcher. Doyle started off with a single, but was thrown out attempting to steal. Murray hit for two bases and scored on Meyers's first of four hits, a single to centre.

In the fourth inning they scored another run. Fletcher started off with a single, but, like Doyle in the second inning, was thrown out trying to steal. Merkle now hit to centre for two bases and ran all the way to third base when Carey fumbled. Murray dropped a short fly into centre field and Merkle came home.

The Pirates in their half of the fourth inning came abreast of the Giants by tallying twice. After Viox had been retired Wagner hit to centre for a single. Then Miller lifted the ball over Snodgrass's head for a home run, chasing Wagner over the plate ahead of him. These were the only two runs made by the Pirates, who during the remainder of the game got only two men to first base.

The Giants won the game in the ninth inning. After Murray had been thrown out by Wagner, Meyers hit for two bases. Herzog was sent to run for the Indian. Snodgrass smashed the ball through Viox for two bases and Herzog came home with the winning run. Snodgrass stole third, where he was left, Demaree going out on a liner to Wagner and Burns on a foul fly to Coleman. The Pirates did not reach first base in their half of the ninth.

A singular fact connected with the game is that Coleman, the new Pirate catcher, accepted thirteen chances on the 13th day of June in the year 1913. The score:

Knetzer Joins Outlaw Team.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., June 13.—Elmer Knetzer, the local boy who has been on the Brooklyn team for some time, has signed with the Pittsburgh Federal League team. He refused to accept a large reduction in salary submitted by Manager Dahlen on account of his having left the team last season to come home because of sickness in his family.

Manager Phillippe of the local Federal League team has been after the pitcher all season. Knetzer's chances of rejoining the Brooklyn team are slight, so he has accepted the terms of the Pittsburgh club and will join his new associates at Indianapolis to-morrow.

Two other Pittsburgh boys—Jack Lewis, who last year was a member of the Boston Red Sox until they farmed him to St. Paul, and Tom Murray, a catcher of the St. Paul team, who was sent home recently on account of trouble with the club—will join the Pittsburgh Federals with Knetzer to-morrow.

SUPERBAS DROP A PEG.

Chicago's Victory Places Cubs in Third Place in Flag Race.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Brooklyn played a ragged game in the field to-day and errors, coupled with bunched hits, gave Chicago the long end of an eleven-inning contest, 7 to 6, and also third place in the pennant race. The visitors bunched hits off Pierce in one inning; but throughout the game he pitched in fine form. Ragan became unsteady, and was displaced by Stack, who had the bases filled in Chicago's ninth inning when Allen took the mound and retired the side on strike-outs. The finish resulted from a base on balls and an error by Allen, who injured himself in attempting to field Evers's bunt. He was carried to the clubhouse. A single followed off Curtis and Leach scored the winning run.

Zimmerman argued with the umpire in regard to a decision at third base and Manager Evers ordered him to the clubhouse. Archer was hit on the finger by a foul tip and had to retire. The score:

White Sox Get Disputed Player.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 13.—The National Baseball Commission, in a decision handed down to-day, declared the transfer of Player John W. Beall from the Cleveland American League Club to the Milwaukee American Association Club to be null and void, owing to the neglect of the former club to ask for waivers on the player. The Cleveland Club is fined $25 for its failure to comply with the commission's rules relative to the asking of waivers, and the player is awarded to the Chicago American League Club upon the payment of the waiver price. The Boston National League Club also wanted the player. The decision was the outcome of Beall's application to be declared a free agent, his allegation being that he was not signed to a regular contract previous to March 25. This application was denied by the commission.

BASEBALL TO-DAY, 3 P. M. N. Y. Americans vs. Detroit. Polo Grounds. Adm. 50c.—Adv.

YANKS WIN 13TH GAME JUNE 13, '13

Second Victory of Detroit Series Comes as Result of Ford's Fine Pitching.

The Yankees procured waivers on the thirteen hoodoo yesterday, which happened to be Friday, the thirteenth, 1913, and then proceeded to pick up their thirteenth victory of the season. The Detroit Tigers were the victims, taking their second defeat in a row at the Polo Grounds, despite the fact that Ty Cobb ran wild on the bases and Hughey Jennings, restored to good standing after separating himself from a ten-spot, chewed his daily peck of grass on the coaching lines. It was Hughey's first taste of Polo Ground grass since he became a manager, and after the game he complimented John Murphy on the choice flavor. The score was 4 to 2.

It was a busy day for the redoubtable Ty. He grabbed off two of his team's six hits, stole two bases, and furnished another pair of sprints which are not classed as thefts. Finally, Tyrus almost unnerved Ed Sweeney into tossing the game away trying to catch him as he flitted around the bases. In the fifth inning Cobb punched a single into left field and it was his sprint from first to third on Gainer's single to right which started the Yanks on a career of weird pegging. Before the ball had been returned to Russ Ford both Cobb and Gainer were over the plate with all the runs that the Tigers scored during the fray. In the seventh inning Ty beat out a bunt, stole second, and repeated his performance to third base after Gainer had drawn a pass. Only a timely leap by Claude Derrick prevented Sweeney from throwing the ball away and letting in another pair of runs.

In the ninth Ty made his real big hit with the crowd of 7,000 fans. With Sam Crawford on first and Tyrus relied upon to start something, he fell victim to Russ Ford's slants and carried his bat back to the bench.

The Yanks were not alone in their error making, as three of their own runs were made possible by loose playing on the part of the Tigers. Wildness by Jean Dubuc, who curbed his customary tendency in this regard through seven innings, helped the Yanks to their final run, which came in the eighth inning. Both Ford and Dubuc kept their opponents from doing any damaging work with the stick, each allowing six hits, which were scattered over five innings.

One Yankee failed to escape the thirteen hoodoo, though the team hurdled the jinx successfully. Ezra Midkiff, the peppery third baseman, who is looking more like a real ballplayer in each succeeding game, got one of the fingers of his right hand in the path of Ownie Bush's spikes in the fifth inning and had to leave the game, Derrick taking his place.

The Yanks scored in the second inning on Hartzell's double to left and Crawford's muff of McKechnie's fly with two out. In the fourth Peckinpaugh reached first on Bush's fumble, advanced to second on Borton's sacrifice, reached third on Gainer's error of Hartzell's grounder, and scored while Vitt was throwing Midkiff out at first.

The Tigers tied the score in the fifth. Cobb singled to left and went to third on Gainer's drive to right. When Daniels tried to get Ty at third Gainer continued on to second, and Midkiff threw into right field trying to get the Detroit first baseman. Cobb scored on the poor throw, and when Sweeney let Daniel's return throw get away from him Gainer also counted.

In the sixth the Yanks went ahead with one run. Peckinpaugh forced Wolter at second after the latter's single and Borton's hit to right put Peck on third. When Hartzell fouled to McKee, Borton raced to second and McKee threw to head him off. Peckinpaugh hurried home and was safe when Bush threw poorly to McKee. Passes to Borton and Hartzell and Derrick's single to centre accounted for the Yankee run in the eighth inning. The score:

GIBBONS BOYS WIN IN RING.

Mike Knocks Out Young Ahearn—Tom Outpoints Denning.

The Gibbons brothers of St. Paul added another double victory to the family boxing record at Madison Square Garden last night, when they figured in the two feature bouts of the show. Mike stopped Young Ahearn of Brooklyn in the fourth round, and Tom gained the honors over Jack Denning of the west side in a bout that went the scheduled ten rounds. Tom almost repeated Mike's knockout performance in the seventh round of his bout with Denning, but the bell sounded while the New Yorker was in distress, and he came back strong in the next round.

The Mike Gibbons-Young Ahearn bout was put on first to conform with the 10 o'clock rule, but Mike rocked the Brooklynite to sleep so quickly that the contest was over before the hour designated for the start. Gibbons weighed in at 149 pounds, ringside, and Ahearn tipped the beam at 144¼ pounds, slightly above the high figure reached in his previous bouts. From the start Gibbons held the upper hand. He proved as elusive to Ahearn as to less speedy boxers, but the Brooklynite managed to land his light left on Mike's face often enough to raise a lump under Gibbons's left eye. Ahearn's jab was so light that Gibbons went in continually with guard down and made no attempt to block the punches.

Gibbons went at his work slowly, and the spectators yelled to him several times to get busy when he did not appear to put much energy in his work. During the first two rounds Mike did nothing but jab and duck. In the third he began to use his right and staggered Ahearn with a right uppercut to the jaw. Early in the fourth the same kind of a punch almost put Ahearn down. With the round about half completed Mike tore in with both hands, and soon had Ahearn floundering around the ring. A right uppercut ended the bout, knocking Ahearn out so completely that Referee Joh did not count over him.

Tom Gibbons did the forcing all the way in the final bout, and won by a comfortable margin. The first round was slow and even, and Denning also managed to get an even break in the sixth round. In the seventh Denning bounded around the ring under the impact of Gibbons's hard punches, and it seemed that every punch would floor him. The bell brought welcome relief. In the final round Denning had another stormy time, but managed to stay on his feet all the way. Denning weighed 158 pounds and Gibbons 159 pounds.

Kolehmainen Is Reinstated.

The ban has been lifted from Hannes Kolehmainen, the great Finnish runner who was suspended on Wednesday for failure to turn in his list of expenses incurred through journeying to the games of the Paterson Elks April 16. He is now free to compete in the games in Duluth, Wis., to-morrow, but he will be compelled to render his account in relation to the Paterson sports, for which it is stated he received the sum of $2.50. The Registration Committee has also temporarily lifted the suspension of the other four men who were set down as the result of Wednesday's session.

PRINCE EUGENE WINS THE BELMONT

The Belmont Handicap, run for the first time since 1910, and during the palmy days of racing one of the most coveted events on the turf calendar, attracted more than 6,000 persons yesterday to Belmont Park. Although the field was confined to four starters the race furnished an interesting contest. August Belmont's Rock View, a son of the famous stallion Rock Sand, was installed a 7 to 10 favorite, but a mistake of Jockey McTaggart in surrendering the rail at the top of the stretch to Harry Payne Whitney's Prince Eugene cost Mr. Belmont the race, as Troxler drew inside of Rock View and in a whipping finish landed Prince Eugene a winner by half a length in 2:18. This is the fastest time the race has been run over this course at the distance.

The event was the feature of a well-balanced programme of seven races, and the experiment of throwing the inner field open to the public was again a success, as about 2,500 persons availed themselves of the opportunity of witnessing horse racing without paying for admission. The field will be thrown open next Saturday for the renewal of the once famous Brooklyn Handicap, when it is expected that a big crowd will be on hand.

Lieut. C. K. Rockwell's clever riding brought him home first in the Military Steeplechase Handicap. He rode Kinnelon, with which he captured the Military Cup on Wednesday, while Lieut. Karl Bradford piloted his own horse, Zagg. The latter beat Kinnelon at the Piping Rock races on Monday by ten lengths under similar conditions, and in view of that victory was installed favorite at 8 to 5. After clearing the last hurdle Zagg had a lead of an open length and appeared to be a sure winner, but under the urging of Lieut. Rockwell Kinnelon joined issue with the leader and the pair fought it out neck and neck for the last one hundred yards, Kinnelon securing the verdict by a short head. Old Erin, ridden by Lieut. Surles, fell at the fourth hurdle, and the rider turned a complete somersault, but was unhurt. The horse followed the remainder of the field, and after clearing all the hurdles finished the race riderless.

The defeat of J. L. Holland's Gallop in the opening scramble of five and a half furlongs for two-year-olds was a severe blow to the talent. Gallop was quoted at 2 to 5 in the betting, but was never able to get within hailing distance of Wooden Shoes, which won easily by four lengths from the favorite. The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For two-year-olds, selling, purse $400; five and a half furlongs on the straight. Won by Quincy Stable's ch. g. Wooden Shoes, 106 pounds, (J. Hanover;) J. L. Holland's b. c. Veditz to Ride at Motordrome.

Ray Veditz, the Philadelphia motor cyclist, will make his first appearance at the Brighton Beach Motordrome to-night, when he will ride against Arthur Chappele in the Sweepstakes. Chapple will give the field a lap and a half in the six-mile event, and it is very doubtful if the daring rider will be able to overcome the big advantage which the other riders will have. Veditz has just returned from a trip around the Western motordromes, where he has met with much success with his fast machines. To win the sweepstakes to-night Chapple will have to hit up a terrific pace of nearly ninety miles an hour.

METROPOLITAN LIFE OUTING

3,000 Employes Attend Games Held at Celtic Park.

When the clock on the Metropolitan Tower struck 12 at noon yesterday 3,000 employes of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company scampered off to Celtic Park for a half holiday to either compete or witness the athletic prowess of fellow-employes in the fourth annual field day of the company.

The occasion is part of the wonderful welfare work encouraged by the company, and yesterday's sport was confined to those of the home office. Matt's Twenty-second Regiment Band furnished music, and during the intervals between races the merry throng filled in the time on the dance floor, and the affair did not conclude until after 9 o'clock.

No matter what the competition happened to be, whether for the young men or young women, there was no lack of enthusiasm, and departmental feeling ran high. From year to year it is part of the duty of the various departments to enlist winning material, and yesterday was the occasion for the decision.

Scattered about the numerous departments are family names, and as a result family supremacy was also a factor in the games. Of these the McIntyre family carried off the premier honors when two of its members, Miss Grace E. McIntyre of Policy A 2 Department and her brother, William McIntyre of the Claim Department, coupled as an entry, were the star performers. William, who is a member of the Twenty-second Regiment track team, took first place in the running broad jump, with a distance of 21 feet 6 inches, was a joint winner in the three-legged race, and a member of the championship relay team. Grace McIntyre won the coveted honors among the feminine members when she annexed the victory in the thread and needle race.

This was one of the novel events for girls and the winner dashed a distance of thirty yards, threaded a needle, and returned thirty yards to the starting point in the remarkable time of 0:17.

Miss Mae Powers of the Printing and Binding Department, who is conceded to be the best all-around female athlete of the company, lived up to her reputation when she accounted for the 75-yard dash for girls. Twenty-three starters toed the mark and it resulted in a free-for-all scramble, with a number coming croppers. Miss Powers showed her cunning by going around the field, which was bunched, and won handily in the time of 0:11 1-5.

Aubrey Meyerheim, who sports the silks of the Glencoe A. C., captured the quarter-mile run from the 15-yard mark, next to scratch. He won by three yards over Edgar Mellor, who was on the 25-yard mark, while William Nelson, the scratch man, was third.

NEW YORK WOMEN LOSE.

With Only 12 Players, They Are Easy for Boston in Griscom Golf.

WEST NEWTON, Mass., June 13.—A full team of Boston women golfers had no difficulty to-day in disposing of four-fifths of a team from the Metropolitan Association in the second day's play for the Griscom Cup. The home players won all the twosome matches in the forenoon, and four of the six foursomes in the afternoon play, making a total score of 19 to 2 for the day.

The final round for the cup will be played to-morrow between Philadelphia and Boston. Each association has a leg in the trophy for permanent possession of which three victories are necessary.

The feature match to-day was between Mrs. G. W. Roope of Boston, a former State champion, and Mrs. J. S. Rossin of New York, who played brilliantly in the recent metropolitan championship. The match went twenty holes before Mrs. Roope won, and each player had cards of several strokes under 100 in the first 18 holes.

Only twelve New York players appeared, and so the team started the day with a handicap of three defaults.

SURPRISES IN GOLF.

Favorites Defeated in First and Second Rounds at Sleepy Hollow.

As the result of the first and second rounds of match play in the invitation tournament over the links of the Sleepy Hollow Country Club yesterday, Charles H. Brown of St. Andrews, and B. T. Allen of Fox Hills, will play in one semi-final match to-day, while in the other, Gilman P. Tiffany of Powelton, the Hudson River champion, will oppose Harry V. Gaines of Wykagyl.

Surprises were the rule yesterday when Archie M. Reid of St. Andrews fell before Brown, 4 up and 3 to play; Percy R. Pyne 2d, of Princeton, former intercollegiate champion, was eliminated by E. M. Posey of Fox Hills, and B. S. Bottome of Fox Hills, the medalist, was beaten on the last green by A. H. Johnson of the home club.

New Cup for Metropolitan Golf.

Rather an unusual move has been made by the Upper Montclair Country Club, which recently became the permanent owner of the Chauncey trophy by virtue of the fact that Jerome D. Travers won the metropolitan amateur championship for the third time at Fox Hills recently. The club has decided to hold the Chauncey trophy, but has voted to present another of equal value to the Metropolitan Golf Association for its championship tournament.

Cooperstown Wins at Westbury.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTBURY, L. I., June 13.—Great Neck played with Cooperstown on No. 3 field at the Meadow Brook Club this afternoon before a good sized crowd of polo enthusiasts. Malcolm Stevenson took a turn at the game, freshening his form in the position of back for Cooperstown. The latter team gave Great Neck 6 goals handicap. They earned 4, of which Mr. Grace lost ¼ for a safety and Hamilton Hadden ½ for crossing. Cooperstown piled up 14 goals, of which ½ was forfeited for a foul, leaving the final score 13½ to 9¼ in favor of Cooperstown. The line-up:

Great Neck.—W. R. Grace, Watson Webb, Hamilton Hadden, and George Milburn.

Cooperstown.—F. S. Von Stade, C. C. Rumsey, C. P. Beadleston, and Malcolm Stevenson. Referee, H. H. Holmes.

RICE SHAKES UP COLUMBIA 'FOUR'

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 13.—Friday the thirteenth jinx called on Jim Rice at the Columbia quarters today and put in a whole day with the blue and white crews. Peterson and Naumr, Nos. 2 and 2 in the 'Varsity four, felt the effects first, when Rice told them to go to the second eight, and advanced Sanborn and Lauber of last year's freshmen crew to the seats in the four. The new combinations seemed to work pretty well and Rice determined that unless something serious happened he would keep the present boating in all the crews intact.

In the afternoon the unwelcome visitor got in its best work by thwarting the 'Varsity eight when it attempted to take a time trail over the course, rowing up stream from the finish to the start at Krum Elbow. The freshmen and four were stationed at the two-mile mark with orders to pick up the 'Varsity there and carry the pace on to the finish. The 'Varsity got away to a splendid start and was blowing along at a thirty-to-the-minute clip when it reached the bridge. There it ran square into a set of rollers from a passing steamer and had to come to a stop. That ended the trial there, and there was no more hard rowing for the Columbia squad, an easy paddle back to quarters finishing the day's work. Rice will try again to-morrow.

The University of Washington eight had a time trial up stream over the lower course in which, according to the time given out by Coach Hiram Conibear, the Seattle eight covered the full four miles in 19:28, or within three-quarters of a minute of the record. The Pacific champions started below Milton with the stroke up to thirty-five and held it there for the first quarter of a mile, when they let it down to twenty-eight. They covered the first mile in 4:50, two miles in 9:56, three miles in 14:51, and the full course in 19:28. It was the best time made over the course this year, and eclipsed by 22 seconds the trial made by Pennsylvania yesterday.

Glass, stroke of the Syracuse freshmen eight, who was called to his home in Duluth because of a death in the family, returned to Poughkeepsie this morning and took his place in the boat. The Orange crews had their first paddle over the course this morning. The 'Varsity four is one of the best crews on the river.

The Pennsylvania four-oared crew went out alone this afternoon and had a time trial which was said to be close to the record. The four rowed up stream with a strong wind and tide to help them along. When under the bridge they ran into a series of rollers from the ferry, but kept right at their task and finished the course with their boat partly filled with water.

Rough water played havoc with the Quaker 'Varsity and Freshmen eights this morning. The waves broke over the men in the shells and wet them thoroughly. The water soaked the handles of the oars and when the float was reached every man in the boat had a pair of badly blistered hands. They were bothered so much that Ward gave them a rest this afternoon.

Cornell finished its examinations this morning and had an easy day on the river, going down stream both morning and afternoon. Wisconsin, too, saw the last of examinations and beginning to-morrow the Badgers will know that they are here for rowing.

Miss Green and Miss Wildey, who hold the State championship in the doubles, will oppose Mrs. Robert Williams, the metropolitan champion, and Miss Mary Browne, national champion, in the final round of the doubles to-morrow.

In the doubles semi-final round Mrs. Williams and Miss Browne defeated Miss Helen Alexander and Miss Dorothy Disston, 6—1, 6—2, and Miss Green and Miss Wildey won from Mrs. Dixon and Mrs. Sands, 6—3, 6—4.

Hard Matches for Lovibond.

The women's championship singles of the Country Tennis Club of Westchester were started yesterday on the club courts at Hartsdale, the entrants including many of the best players in the metropolitan district. Miss Gertrude Della Torre, after winning the preliminary round, was defeated by Miss Marie Wagner in the first round in straight sets. The best contested match of the tournament was between A. M. Lovibond and J. P. Paret, in the fourth round of the men's championship singles, when the former won after three hard sets by the score of 7—9, 6—4, 7—5. Lovibond, with Dr. W. Rosenbaum, was compelled to play three sets in the men's doubles to win from A. Latimer and A. D. Britton.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

May Produce Potash Here.

Considerable interest was aroused in local chemical circles yesterday by the report of the incorporation of the American Trona Corporation at Dover, Del. The company was incorporated with an authorized capital stock of $12,500,000. Its object is to manufacture potash, borax, and other chemicals from the alkali deposits at Searles Lake, in the Mohave Desert, Cal. The impression prevailed that if the company had discovered a successful process for the manufacture of these chemicals it would be of material importance to the agricultural interests of the country. All of the potash used here at the present time is imported from Germany, where its manufacture is controlled by a syndicate. It is used extensively by fertilizer manufacturers. It was said that if competition with the German product could be furnished by an American-made potash lower prices for fertilizer would probably result. It was said also that several companies had been previously organized to manufacture potash here, but had been unsuccessful.

To Give an Extra Holiday.

Bloomingdale Brothers have posted in their employes' restaurant and luncheon rooms a notice to the effect that the store will be closed on Saturday, July 5, as well as on the holiday preceding. It is expected that many of the wholesale houses will also close from Thursday night till Monday morning. This was done by a number of firms over the Decoration Day holiday last month.

Dutiable Silk Imports Increase.

Dutiable silk imports at the Port of New York in the five weeks ended May 31 showed a substantial gain over those of the corresponding period last year. According to statistics compiled by the Silk Association of America, the total value of the dutiable silks brought in was $1,681,350 against $1,458,238 in May, 1912. Of these totals fabrics woven in the piece supplied $492,426 and $401,302, respectively. Imports of spun silks declined from $281,715 in May of last year to $239,376 this year. Artificial silk yarn imports, however, increased from $136,433 to $162,015. Evidence of the silk strike was shown in the decline in imports of raw silk for the month. In May, 1913, they totaled $1,162,570 in value, against $1,494,899 in the same month last year.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Printing Plates, Embossed Cards, and Tea Strainers Reduced.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained protests by A. D. Maclachlan of Boston regarding duty on engraved plates and dies and embossed cards and folders. The plates and dies were returned for duty under the Tariff act of 1909, at 45 per cent. ad valorem as manufactures in chief value of steel, while the cards and folders were taxed 35 per cent. as embossed under Paragraph 415. The metal articles were shown to be dutiable at 20 per cent. under Paragraph 166, as plates engraved for printing, and the cards and folders at 25 per cent., as printed matter under Paragraph 416. The Collector was directed to refund.

F. W. Woolworth & Co. gained a reduction under the present law on tea strainers made of round wire and metal held by Collector Loeb at 45 per cent. under the metal schedule. They were allowed entry at 40 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 135, as articles in chief value of wire.

The Jordan Marsh Company of Boston failed to secure free entry for secretary bookcases and oak bedsteads under Paragraph 717, act of 1909, as antiques. The tax of 35 per cent. ad valorem for furniture stood, Judge Waite decided.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The separate vest for women, as well as the vest that is incorporated in suits, will be an important factor in the lines shown here for the Fall season. Quite heavy silk brocades in Chinese and tapestry designs have been imported by some of the local manufacturers for the making of this garment. These fabrics are being brought over also by some makers of women's neckwear.

Among the latest novelties offered in tableware are salt and pepper shakers of glass with silver initial inlays. They are cut in the new square effect, and have tops of highly polished sterling silver. They retail at $1.50 to $2 a pair. The inlaid initial is n Old English, and is made of 999-1,000 pure silver.

Buyers have been in the dress goods market in the last few days looking for velour-finished Scotch plaids. The market is practically bare of these goods. Under existing tariff conditions the manufacturers have not yet thought it advisable to show new styles of these fabrics.

McNEIL, ADAMS & CO., Incorporated.—McNeil, Adams & Co., Incorporated, stock brokers in puts and calls, formerly at 90 Wall Street, against which a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Feb. 27, have failed to file their schedules. William Blau, the receiver, has made repeated efforts to get them to file schedules, but without result. He has caused a list of creditors to be prepared by an expert accountant from the books and records of the concern. The creditors number some 1,000, and their claims aggregate $154,991. Among them are Mrs. A. L. House, $6,073; Dr. W. B. House, $1,225; Mrs. Jane B. House, Springfield, Ohio, $908; A. B. Nolte, Springfield, Ohio, $1,900; Miss Jeanne Bayer, $1,000; J. E. Cohen, attorney for these creditors: American Hide and Leather Company, $721; Salomon & Phillips, $1,453, and William T. Charlesworth, $5,700, all of New York City. It was alleged that he was insolvent, and made preferential payments to Alice M. King, $479, and Harrison & Dally, $26. Mr. Cohen said that the liabilities were $35,174 and assets $23,600, mostly money due from fire insurance companies. Mr. King has been in business for fourteen years, and his factory was destroyed by fire on April 9, causing a loss, it is said, of more than $40,000. He carried $40,000 fire insurance.

MORRIS A. SHAPIRO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Morris A. Shapiro, dealer in silks and dress goods at 1,743 Madison Avenue, by these creditors: Ellis Bonime, $400; Ralph C. Rudinsky, $25, and Annie Maharan, $111. It was alleged that he was insolvent, and made preferential payments of $500. Liabilities are $9,000, and assets $1,500. He has been in business ten years, and his trade was mainly in dressmakers' and tailors' trimmings and supplies. Judge Hand appointed John L. Lyttle receiver under a bond of $750.

PETER A. PEKICH.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Peter A. Pekich, grocer, at 1,308 Boston Road, by these creditors: Austin, Nichols & Co., $534; Gude Brothers-Kiefer Company, $482, and Pinney & Geddes, $535. It is alleged that he is insolvent, and made preferential transfers of property to some creditors.

LOUIS KRAUS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Louis Kraus, dealer in dry goods at 164 Avenue B, by these creditors: Jacob Goetz, $200; Louis Koffle, $142, and Berlin Ladies' Tailoring Company, $185. Assets are estimated at $500.

MOSES BERNSTEIN.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Moses Bernstein, manufacturer of cloaks at 31 West Twenty-first Street, show liabilities of $26,112 and assets of $17,195, consisting of stock, $4,500; machinery and fixtures, $3,000; accounts, $8,100, and cash in banks, $1,595. Among the creditors are the Sherman National Bank, $9,000; Garfield Worsted Mills, $2,962; Bolany Worsted Mills, $1,136, and Bramson & Kutner, $2,225.

THE FISCHMAN LEATHER GOODS CO.—Judge Hand has appointed Charles I. McLaughlin and William Benedict receivers for the Fischman Leather Goods Company of 95 Fifth Avenue, bond $3,000, on request of a majority of creditors in amount. Among them are Jacob W. Riglander, $8,250; H. H. Kayton, $5,000, and John Fowler, $1,000. Liabilities are $24,000.

CHARLES PROSER.—Charles Proser, dealer in men's furnishing goods and clothing at 375 Sixth Avenue, 1,403 Broadway, and several other places, applied a few days ago for confirmation of a composition at 25 cents on the dollar, but it was opposed by one creditor, B. Rosenblatt & Son, on a claim of $3,605. Other creditors who favored the composition wanted the matter settled without delay, and Judge Hand has found a way by which it can be done. He has signed an order that the receiver deliver all the assets to Mr Proser upon the deposit by Mr. Proser of $10,943 to pay the 25 cents settlement and upon giving a surety bond of $2,000 conditioned upon the payment to B. Rosenblatt & Son of such sum as shall be found due them in case the composition be not confirmed after hearing. John J. Townsend, referee in bankruptcy, is directed to distribute the deposit of $10,943 to the creditors who accepted the 25 cents settlement and to hear the objections of R. B. Rosenblatt & Son, and if they win the referee is to determine the reasonable amount of the dividend which would come to them in case the assets were administered in the bankruptcy court. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against Mr. Proser on April 7 and his liabilities were $46,816.

RECTOR'S.—Judge Hand has appointed Francis B. Lund, Frank Gallagher, and Charles Bellows appraisers to appraise the stock of wines, liquors, foodstuffs, and other supplies at Rector's, Forty-fourth Street and Broadway, and has authorized Edwin C. Ward, the receiver, to sell them to the Hotel Rector Company for the appraised value as determined by the appraisers.

A. J. SCHOSSBERGER.—A. J. Schossberger & Co., Inc., importers of wines and liquors at 29 Broadway, has made an assignment to Daniel C. Evans. The business was started as a firm in April, 1911, and was incorporated on Sept. 4, 1912, with a capital of $25,000, which was increased in November, 1912, to $60,000. Arthur J. Schossberger is President and A. M. Woods Secretary.

THE NEW RAINCOAT COMPANY.—Sam Levitz and Jacob Seldman, doing business as the New Raincoat Company at 61 to 65 Stanton Street, have made an assignment to Leo Borches.

DRY GOODS OUTLOOK GOOD.

Chicago Merchants Report Increased Sales in West.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 13.—The firm of Marshall Field & Co., in its weekly review of the dry goods trade, says:

Total sales in dry goods show a gain for the first two weeks in June in comparison with those of the corresponding period of a year ago. Current business through the mails and from the men on the road has kept up remarkably well following the pre-inventory sale and in view of the low temperature during the early part of the week. Collections continue better than normal.

Orders manifest much interest in lines that are being shown for Fall delivery, especially silks and women's ready-to-wear garments. Our representatives traveling through the Southwestern States report very favorable crop prospects, and good business is coming from that section.

A judicious home investment is more profitable than a lifetime's savings. It has advantages over a savings bank in that your present rent as well as your savings are accumulated for your own benefit in an absolutely safe investment, returning interest in the form of increased value. Our plan entails no self-denial or stinting on your part. We simply ask that you make payments on your home as faithfully as you would pay rent to your landlord in the city.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Further Recovery Reflects a Change for the Better in Sentiment—Trading Lighter.

Despite the incentive which existed yesterday for profit taking after the violent advance which occurred on Thursday, the general level of prices made a further net gain yesterday. Short covering contributed to this result, but the day's record as a whole indicated pretty definitely that the change which had occurred in the situation on Thursday was still prompting absorption of stock. The news was again good, which helped to sustain the more cheerful sentiment which had been created the previous day. It was recognized that the broad underlying influence had not been changed, for the supply of capital cannot be increased overnight, nor can general credit readjustments be accomplished in a day. But there had been overtension in the money market, possibly through an excess of conservatism, and this tension has been broken. There had been tension, too, in the stock market, and with a freer movement of funds into loans came a realization that selling had been carried to an extreme. The release of a large amount of money by one of the principal lenders in Wall Street, followed by freer lending by other institutions, did much to clear the atmosphere which had become surcharged with a feeling of apprehension which had been overdone. Incidentally, one or two situations were cleared up which had weighed somewhat heavily on the market, and this supplied a special source of relief.

There was found further ground yesterday for the favorable inferences which had been drawn the previous day regarding the ultimate outcome of the efforts which the Union Pacific was making to arrive at an understanding with the court in respect to the liquidation of its Southern Pacific holdings. The news dispatches from St. Paul made it plain that the Attorney General was not entirely in sympathy with the proposals made by the Union Pacific, although he expressed tentative approval of the suggested exchange of Southern Pacific for Baltimore & Ohio stock. Nevertheless, the financial district felt quite confident yesterday that receivership for the Union Pacific's holdings of Southern Pacific would be avoided and that a more acceptable way than that would be worked out for disposing of the stock. In this connection some association was found between what was said to be the Administration's attitude toward this Union Pacific matter and the motives which prompted Secretary McAdoo's announcement regarding his willingness to issue emergency circulation under the Aldrich-Vreeland law. That was attributed to a desire to reassure the business and financial communities of the country. It was being inferred yesterday that the Administration was also desirous of avoiding any steps in the Union Pacific matter which would put unnecessary hardship on the holders of the securities concerned, for an enforced liquidation of such a block of Southern Pacific as the Union Pacific holds would harm not the Union Pacific alone, but the many individual holders of Southern Pacific who had no share in establishing the relationships which have existed between the Union and Southern Pacific systems. The hopefulness with which this situation had come to be regarded was one of the helpful influences yesterday, as it had been on Thursday.

Again, much interest was taken in banking circles in the news which was received from Wahington that Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo had receded from the position which he had taken in respect to the currency reform plan, and that the chances had been largely increased within the last few days of an agreement between the House and the Senate Committees, which are dealing with the currency question. It was recognized, however, that the passage of the Tariff act was a necessary preliminary to any action on currency reform, and in this connection count was taken of the indications that much difficulty was being encountered in the effort to bring about agreement by the Senate to the features of the Tariff bill which are under dispute.

It was surmised in some quarters yesterday that the Secretary of the Treasury's announcement regarding emergency circulation was not unconnected with a desire to help the market for Government bonds. The law requires that only those national banks which have Government bond secured circulation to the extent of 40 per cent. of their capital may profit by the provisions of the Aldrich-Vreeland law, and it was thought not unlikely that a certain number of banks which have not at present the required 40 per cent. would be desirous of increasing their circulation. This assumption seemed to find confirmation in the action of the Government bond market since Mr. McAdoo's announcement was made. Within the last two days several million dollars of Government 2s have been purchased by banks and at prices above the level recently generally prevailing. There was also a better market for the latest issue of New York City 4½s. They sold as high as 99⅞, compared with the previous day's low of 99½. New York State 4s, on the other hand, sold as low as 98.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Investigating the Frisco.

Protective committees for the St. Louis & San Francisco properties have found that the quickest way to learn what their roads require in the way of new money in the process of reorganization is to send experts over the lines. The accounts of the St. Louis & San Francisco have not proved to be of much assistance because of the difficulty of separating the figures of the various companies in the system. An agent of the Inter-State Commerce Commission who visited the headquarters of the Frisco in beginning an investigation for the commission found that no records useful for his purpose were kept in New York, so that most of the research will be made in St. Louis. Prince Poniatowski had a conference with B. F. Yoakum yesterday afternoon, but was non-committal when asked afterward for information in regard to his progress in finding the real position of the general 5s in the reorganization muddle.

Almost Too Much Money.

Call money threatened yesterday to become a drug on the market. After opening at 2¼ per cent. it fell to 1½ per cent., at which figure little was put out, and closed at 2¼ per cent. aftr most of the day's needs had been cared for at 2 per cent. A feature of the money market in the past two days has been the entrance of private bankers with large sums to lend. One house which is ordinarily a borrower lent $2,000,000 at 2 per cent. and 1¾ per cent. yesterday. This house is carrying few stocks for its customers and wanted to find employment for its surplus funds until the public again becomes a buyer. Another interesting indication of the tendency of the times, as seen by the brokers in money, is the prominent part taken by the odd-lot houses in borrowing for their customers' needs. Tuesday's break started an enormous volume of small buying orders into the houses which welcome the five and ten share business.

End of Drexel Building.

Wreckers are at work on the last remains of the Drexel and Mechanics' Bank buildings. In a few days the most valuable piece of real estate in the United States will be nothing but a vacant lot, surrounded by a board fence. On the heels of the wreckers the foundation contractors have begun their work preliminary to the sinking of the great caissons which will support the new home of the Morgan firm. While the bank building will be only four stories high, the foundation will be made to support a skyscraper, so that if it is ever decided to erect an office building on the site the old foundations can be utilized. The house-wreckers found the old Mechanics' Bank structure more substantial than had been expected, and its demolition has taken more time than was allowed by the contracts. The police refused to allow the work to be carried on on Sundays, which cost the wreckers seven full days.

A Shift of Market Attention.

Reading was the only member of the group of more active speculative stocks to end yesterday's session of the market with a gain in excess of a point on the day. The others, including Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Amalgamated Copper, Northern Pacific, and Steel, displayed net changes of fractional amounts in one direction or the other, and they did not occupy the centre of market interest to the extent they did when prices were fluctuating violently. Broadly speaking, the prominent shares appeared to be seeking a place to rest until others, which had been left in the rear in Thursday's rise, could catch up with them. Traders turned their attention to stocks whose speculative powers were not tested thoroughly in recent big market days, and where there was persistent buying substantial advances occurred. American Can and the Rock Island issues responded readily to professional operations and there were strong advances scored by the Republic Iron and Steel stocks, Southern Railway preferred, Utah Copper, Virginia-Carolina Chemical and Western Union. Numerous specialties also were in demand, rising quickly under small transactions.

Large Investors Active.

Investment houses report that institutions and individual possessors of great wealth have taken up many large blocks of new securities in the past fortnight, which insured a return of 5½ per cent. or higher on the money invested. To this movement was credited the quick absorption of several issues of railroad equipment trust notes put out since the middle of May. The notes were sold to mature serially at regular intervals within the next ten years, and for this reason made an additional appeal to buyers who did not want securities of shorter life, and yet were averse to buying the regular order of railroad bonds. Insurance companies have been some of the best customers of underwriting bond houses for notes of this class.

Copper Market in Doldrums.

The copper metal market appears to be suspended, like Mohammed's coffin, in the air between a lack of demand and a reluctance on the part of the larger producers to reduce prices. It was reported in the trade yesterday that the more important selling agencies had practically withdrawn from the market, and that what business was being done was in the hands of lesser companies who were willing to sacrifice quotations for the sake of getting orders. While copper was nominally quoted slightly above 15 cents, it was said that consumers could get supplies in small lots at a fraction under that price. According to advices from London, the market continues lifeless over there also, although in Germany the metal has been moving steadily into manufactures.

Tension in the Street Lets Down.

An easing of the tension incident to Thursday's feverish market was in evidence yesterday in the Street. The turnover of stocks was well in excess of 500,000 shares, but business was orderly and comparatively free from sudden spurts of activity, and a smaller attendance in brokerage offices showed that the public interest in securities had abated somewhat over night. Little discussion of Mr. McAdoo's assurance that plenty of the circulating medium would be available under any financial stress was heard. The money market did not supply a topic of eager conversation. At times an air of complete rest was noticeable in quarters where on other days of the week there was much excitement.

Essex Sells Its Bonds Privately.

Essex County, New Jersey, has sold $250,000 of 4½ per cent. park bonds to Julius S. Rippel of Newark at par, after trying in vain to dispose of the issue at auction. The original offering of $275,000 brought only one bid, for $25,000, from R. M. Grant & Co. of New York, who offered 100.14. These bonds were allotted, and the balance sold by the County Collector at private sale.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Trading in Greater Volume—Prices Continue Sharp Advance.

Transactions in unlisted stocks yesterday were in much larger volume, with substantial gains recorded in industrials. Tobacco stocks were again the feature of strength and activity, with the largest gain shown by Tobacco Products preferred, which closed at 90, a 5-point gain. Bonds were quiet.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Confidence Seems to be Returning to London and Berlin Markets—Paris Prices Firm.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 14.—The Times in its City article to-day will say:

"There was only a moderate demand for money, and quotations for it were unaltered. Discount rates again gave way, bills being scarce and rather wanted, owing to there being less uneasiness regarding foreign politics, while the Stock Exchange settlement passed off well. The Bank received £195,000 ($975,000) in sovereigns from Holland. Paris and Berlin checks moved against London.

"The Stock Exchange settlement, which was looked forward to with so much uneasiness a week ago, concluded in what may fairly be called a spirit of general cheerfulness. The feeling was chastened, it is true, but it was genuine and not much modifed by the announcement of two small failures or by the fact that prices in the American market showed a certain liability to fluctuations in the Street. As a rule, prices finished very near the best points, but consols relapsed at the close slightly from the level attained earlier in the day.

"The failures already mentioned are not unlikely to be followed by one or two more casualties of about the same degree of importance; but there is no longer any alarm regarding the outcome of what threatened to be a troublesome settlement. One member who failed, it appears, has been too precipitant in announcing that he could not meet his engagement. He 'hammered himself' because a check he expected had not arrived yesterday morning, but later in the day it reached him."

BERLIN, June 13.—Prices were very strong on the Boerse to-day on the firmness in New York and favorable Balkan news. Canadian Pacific advanced 4 points and Baltimore & Ohio 2.

PARIS, June 13.—Trading was quiet, and prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 84 francs 97½ centimes for the account.

ISSUE WITH GARY OVER T. C. & I. DEAL

Government Counsel Asks Why Corporation Didn't Lend Money to Save Moore & Schley.

FIGURES IT AS CHEAPER

This on Basis of Gary's Estimate That They Paid Double for T., C. & I. to Avert Panic—Back to Pools.

J. M. Dickinson, special assistant to the Attorney General in the suit for the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation, took issue yesterday with the explanation given by E. H. Gary of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company. Judge Gary had testified that he and Henry C. Frick had agreed that the Tennessee stock was worth not more than 50 cents on the dollar, but they and their associates had paid more than par for it to prevent the failure of Moore & Schley and a spread of the panic of 1907.

Judge Dickinson wanted to know if it wouldn't have been cheaper for the Steel Corporation to loan, or even to give, Moore & Schley the $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 needed to see them through their difficulties than to pay $35,000,000 for a property worth only half that and on which it had since found it necessary to spend $14,00,000 to put it on its feet. Judge Gary replied in the negative.

"We in the Finance Committee," he said, "had to give an account to the stockholders, and I doubt if they would have excused such action, even to relieve the situation existing at that time. We had to do business so as to work out of that situation and get a return on the investment. I believe we did the best and most prudent thing under the circumstances.

"Moore & Schley could not have given us good security for such a loan, and they gave us no opportunity to make such a loan. Lewis Cass Ledyard, representing Moore & Schley, was trying to sell the property, and that was the proposition that came to us. I will say, however, that if a loan had been proposed we would not have made it. It would not have been good business."

The contention of the Government is that the Steel Corporation took advantage of the panic conditions to acquire a competitor's business.

Judge Dickinson next took up the Jackson wire pools, the members of which were indicted and fined in 1911. Judge Gary had testified that he had ordered the Steel Corporation's subsidiaries out of all pools in 1904 and did not know of the American Steel and Wire Company's participation in the Jackson pools until 1908, when a stranger came into his office and told him of it, at the same time demanding a job.

Judge Dickinson asked what steps had been taken by Judge Gary in 1904 to inform himself that his orders had been carried out.

"None," said Judge Gary. "I hadn't been looking for burglars in my house, either. I assumed that our solicitor general's office had disposed of all the pools, and I have no doubt they thought so, too."

"What disciplinary steps did you take on learning, four years later, that your orders had not been carried out?"

"I did not discharge anybody. I used emphatic language, but I was satisfied that nothing of the kind would occur again. If these men had offended again the penalty would have been severe."

Judge Dickinson read extracts from trade papers reporting as late as September, 1905, meetings of various steel associations, at which, it was said, prices were agreed upon. At one, W. E. Corey, then President of the Steel Corporation, was reported as being present. At another it was stated that it was voted to investigate alleged price-cutting by members.

Judge Gary said he had never read these articles, and was surprised that such meetings were held at so late a date.

"I am surprised the Government didn't take notice of them," he added.

"Well," replied Judge Dickinson, "it takes the Government a long time to get started, but when the mills do grind they grind exceeding fine."

"And sometimes both the just and the unjust," remarked Judge Gary, with a smile.

Judgt Gary said he didn't recall giving out a statement that was published in the newspapers after a Gary dinner in 1908, saying "it was the consensus of opinion of the manufacturers present" that certain prices be reduced. Another statement was read purporting to have been made by Judge Gary after a Gary luncheon in 1911, that the Steel Corporation intended to meet reductions made by the Republic Iron and Steel Company, and that "it is believed these prices will be generally followed." He said he had made the statement, but someone else had inserted the prices stated.

"No one," he said, "was under the least obligation to follow these prices."

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF THE

COSMOPOLITAN BANK

at the close of business on the 4th day of June, 1913:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Underlying strength showed in the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange most of the day, although there was irregularity about price fluctuations. Business was active, the sales totaling 73,270 shares, including 6,180 shares in the half hour before dealings began elsewhere in Wall Street. The market opened lower compared with Thursday's closing, but a sharp rally ensued. Prices subsequently again moved off, with another rally in the afternoon. In view of the severe punishment they had received on Thursday's big advance, the bears exhibited much caution about operating aggressively.

GOOD AUTO ROADS IN HARLEM VALLEY

Route to Amenia Attractive—New Trunk-Line Highway from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia.

One of the road cars of the touring department of the Automobile Club of America has been investigating recently road conditions along the Harlem Valley route from New York to Amenia. The roads are all of macadam construction with the exception of a stretch of about two and a half miles between Lake Mahopac and Carmel. For the most part they afford good going. At several points between New York and the Croton Lake station, however, the road surface is worn and rough for short distances. From the station to Lake Mahopac the macadam roads make for comfortable driving. A good stretch leads around the lake and from it fine views of this attractive body of water may be had.

From this point to Carmel a fair macadam highway is followed for some two and a half miles. The rest of the drive is over poor dirt roads, thick with dust in dry weather and heavy with mud when it is wet. Fairly good macadam will be found from Carmel to Pawling. A detour is advisable between Pawling and Dover Plains, as this part of the State road is under construction. It is passable, but rough and very hard on tires, which makes the detour preferable, although it is over a narrow and poor dirt road. From Dover Plains to Amenia a fair dirt and gravel road will be found for the first five miles, then worn macadam to Wassaic and good macadam for the rest of the journey.

The department reports a lively interest in touring as indicated by the number of inquiries it recives each day, including many from women motorists.

Automobilists bound from points west of the Alleghany Mountains to the Eastern seaboard States will welcome the opening of a new Pennsylvania State highway from Pittsburgh to Bedford, Gettysburg, and Philadelphia. This trunk-line route, according to the Goodrich touring bureau, follows what is known as the old stage coach route between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, which was opened as a wagon trail as early as 1780. Along this highway many of the picturesque old stone and log houses of the Colonial days still stand. The trip through the Alleghanies is rich scenically.

The section of this highway between Philadelphia and Bedford has been a fairly good route for many years except for a stretch of seven miles near Gettysburg and one or two smaller patches, but until the State highway by way of Ligonier was built the better course was via Johnstown. The water bars on the Ligonier route have now been removed and an excellent macadam road built. This route is 97 miles long as against 117 by way of Johnstown. The total distance from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia over the new highway is 295 miles, and the run to New York adds another 97 miles. From Chicago to New York over this route the distance is 888 miles, as against more than 1,000 over the better known course by way of Buffalo, Syracuse, and Albany.

An unusual tire test was made recently by the Royal Automobile Club of London. A set of Lee tires were placed on a car weighing 2,500 pounds, which was then driven for 200 miles at an average speed of 43 miles an hour. The same car was then driven four times over four six-foot planks which had been studded at frequent intervals with sharp iron nails, whose points projected three inches. No punctures were caused by this process.

⁂

Motorists abroad are looking forward to the Austrian Alpine tour, which begins on June 29, as an opportunity to compare the operation of sleeve and poppet valve motors under the severe conditions of the contest, as an unusual number of the former type have been entered this year.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat prices closed near the bottom and ⅝ to ¾c net lower. Corn closed at net declines of ¼ to ⅜c after reaching new high figures. Oats final prices were ⅛ to ¼c net lower. Cotton closed generally 1 to 5 points net lower. Cottonseed Oil closed from 1 to 12 points net higher.

WHEAT.

A typical weather market prevailed in wheat, and during the day prices were subject to quick changes, closing near the bottom, with a net decline of ⅝c to ¾c. The weather map showed a more pronounced area of low barometer over the Northwestern Spring wheat States, and, as this was accompanied by scattered showers, there was a sharp selling movement around the opening, which resulted in a quick decline of ½c to ⅝c. The Modern Miller report indicated improvement in the Winter wheat section and said that harvest is well under way in the South. The foreign markets were rather heavy under continued offerings of cargoes and influenced by continued favorable weather and crop advices abroad. Indications pointed to world's exports for the week of 12,632,000 bushels, against 15,120,000 last week and 14,768,000 last year. Export bids were still generally out of line, and sales comprised only two loads at outports. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was nominal and No. 1 Northern Spring was quoted at $1.02½, free on board, afloat.

CORN.

New high records were again established in the corn market, owing to active buying by strong commission houses in the West, and influenced by further scattered complaints of backward conditions of the new crop. The receipts at interior points were again heavy, however, and late in the day the market developed an easier tone under profit taking and in sympathy with wheat, closing at a net loss of ¼@⅜c. In the local market export corn was quoted at 67¾c, nominal, free on board, afloat.

OATS.

The oats market followed the course of corn prices, closing at a net loss of ⅛ to ¼c. Reports in the crop situation were somewhat conflicting but in the main favorable, and weather conditions were considered generally satisfactory. The local cash market was steady, with standard white quoted at 46@46½c; No. 2, 46½@47c; No. 3, 45½@46c; No. 4, 44½@45c; ordinary clipped white, 45@46c; fancy clipped white, 46½@47½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was generally higher yesterday as a result of light receipts, firmness of live hogs, and commission house buying. Packers were also ready to offer support on the recessions. Total Western receipts were about 80,000 hogs, of which 17,000 were at Chicago, 5,500 at Kansas City, and 7,700 at Omaha. Chicago expected 11,000 hogs on Saturday.

COTTON.

After an opening advance the cotton market turned easier yesterday under realizing by old longs or scattered selling for a reaction on reports of rising temperatures in the South, favorable crop advices, and a feeling that the short interest had been materially reduced. Closing prices were steady at a net advance of 1 point on August, but generally 1 to 5 points lower.

The market met a good deal of cotton on the early advance and soon turned easier. Liverpool and New Orleans appeared to be selling here, while there was a good deal of scattered realizing, and as the market eased off there was some selling for a turn on indications for good weather over the week-end and reports from Memphis that a prominent statistician figured an improvement of over 2 per cent. in the average of the crop since the Government made up its June bureau. Closing prices were practically the lowest of the day.

Sentiment in some quarters has become rather more optimistic with reference to the trade outlook, as it is said that domestic mills are meeting a better demand for goods, while Western distributors report continued activity in the textile trade, with collections better than at this time last year. New Orleans was easy after the local close last night, while Memphis reported a decline of ⅛c and Augusta 1-16c on spots. Weekly statistics were without any special feature. New Orleans predicts that the Southwest will receive its first new bale this year about July 1. The local market for spot cotton was quiet, with prices 5 points higher, at 12.35c for middling upland. Sales nil. Delivered on contract, 700 bales.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

COTTONSEED OIL.

Trading in the cottonseed oil market was active and the day's operations were accompanied by considerable excitement, with values at new high records for the season. Total sales for the day were 37,300 barrels, making the largest day's business for many weeks. At times the demand was urgent, but near the close there was sufficient profit taking to bring about a moderate decline, and final prices were 1 to 12 points net higher.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

COFFEE.

Coffee rallied from a long decline, and closed at top with net gains of 14 to 28 points. Havre closed at a net advance of 1¼ to 1½ francs, while Hamburg, after an early decline of ¼ to ½ pfennig, rallied and closed net unchanged to ¼ pfennig decline. There was no apparent change in underlying trade conditions. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were again at a somewhat lower basis, and the day's developments brought the markets closer together and toward the readjustment of values which will be necessary before business can again be resumed on a normal basis between the producing and consuming countries.

Spot coffee dull, steadier; 9⅝c for Rio 7.

STAYS A MELON CUTTING.

Old Dominion Copper Restrained from Paying Out Bigelow Funds.

Vice Chancellor Howell filed in Trenton yesterday a temporary injunction restraining the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company from distributing as dividends the proceeds of decrees against Albert S. Bigelow. Godfrey H. Hyams of Boston, who obtained the injunction, was formerly manager of the company and the holder of 3,156 shares of its stock. In his bill of complaint he set forth that Mr. Bigelow had made large secret profits out of the organization of the company, and that the Massachusetts courts had ordered him to return $1,400,000, most of which had been paid.

Mr. Hyams contended that this money was part of the capital and not a surplus, and that it could not be legally distributed as a dividend. The court said that the company had a large surplus aside from the Bigelow funds, from which a dividend could be paid, but that difficulties would arise in recovering moneys that might be paid from the Bigelow funds, if it should be shown that these funds were part of the capital.

Argument on making the injunction permanent was set for Sept. 23. It had been planned to declare a dividend of $10 a share in July.

Excepting and reserving, however, the coal and minerals beneath the surface of the said above described lots, pieces or parcels of land, with the right to mine and remove the same in such manner and to the same extent as excepted and reserved in the original deeds from the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company for said lands, to the Dickson Manufacturing Company, and its predecessors in title.

Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances and franchises of the Company thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining, and the reversions, remainders, rents, issues and profits thereof, and all the estate, right, title, interest, property, possession, claim and demand whatsoever, as well at law as in equity, of the Company, of, in and to the same, and any and every part thereof, with the appurtenances.

There shall be included, as a part of the property to be sold, all machinery, tools, articles of a permanent character or appliances acquired by the Receiver of the Allis-Chalmers Company, up to the date of the said sale, which property shall during the said receivership have been attached to or used in connection with the operation of any of the manufacturing plants situate in the Middle District of Pennsylvania and directed to be sold by the terms of said decree, all of which property is adjudged to be and shall pass as appurtenant to the real estate and manufacturing plant to which it is attached or in connection with the operation of which it is used.

The Special Master Commissioner will offer the said property for sale as an entirety. The Special Master Commissioner will receive no bid for said property from any one offering to bid, who prior to said sale shall not have deposited with him, or delivered to him, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid, in the event of its acceptance, the sum of Fifty thousand ($50,000.00 Dollars, or One hundred thousand ($100,000.00) Dollars, in face amount of the bonds issued under and secured by the deed of trust of July 2, 1906, made by ALLIS-CHALMERS COMPANY to AMERICAN TRUST and SAVINGS BANK, Trustee.

Any deposit of money required to be made with the Special Master Commissioner may be made either in cash or in a certified check therefor on some bank or trust company, having a paid up capital of not less than one million dollars ($1,000,000.)

Upon the conditional acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the Special Master Commissioner, in addition to the money so deposited with said Special Master Commissioner, prior to making such bid, or in addition to the bonds so deposited with said Special Master Commissioner, a further additional sum equal to the amount so hereinbefore required to be deposited as a condition of making such bid.

Any bidder or purchaser, in lieu of delivering to the said Special Master Commissioner said bonds, either for the purpose of qualification as a bidder, or on account of the purchase price, in the event of the acceptance of his bid, may deliver to the said Special Master Commissioner a certificate or certificates of any bank or trust company in the City of New York, in the State of New York, or in the City of Scranton, in the State of Pennsylvania, which bank or trust company shall have a paid up capital or not less than one million dollars ($1,000,000), that such bank or trust company holds, subject to the order of said Special Master Commissioner, said bonds, to the amount aforesaid.

In case any bidder shall fail to make good his bid, upon its acceptance by said Special Master Commissioner, or shall fail after such acceptance to comply with any order of the Court relating to the payment thereof, or the consummation of the purchase, then the money or bonds deposited by such purchaser or purchasers as hereinabove provided shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses of the resale, and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property purchased by him shall be sold at a less price on such resale, or shall be applied to the payment of any deficiency remaining upon account of the bonds secured by said mortgage, in the event that any resale had under the terms of said decree shall not pay the full amount herein found to be due upon such bonds, together with all costs and expenses of this proceeding.

If such sale shall not be confirmed by the Court, such deposit shall be returned to the bidder. The purchaser, on confirmation of the sale by the Court, shall make such payment or payments in cash on account of the purchase price as Court may at the time of the confirmation of such sale or from time to time thereafter direct, and shall pay the entire balance of the purchase price so bid at such time or times and in such manner as the Court shall direct.

Any purchaser who shall purchase the property herein directed to be sold shall be bound by the terms of any contract which Otto H. Falk, as Receiver of the Allis-Chalmers Company, shall have entered into, at the time of such sale, for the sale and delivery of machinery or merchandise from such manufacturing plants, where the completion of such contract shall require the use of the manufacturing plant so purchased; and any such purchaser, at the time of the confirmation of such bid, shall enter into such written agreement with the said Receiver, upon such conditions as the Court shall hereafter direct, providing for the completion and carrying out of such contract, upon such reasonable terms as may be fixed by the Court; provided, however, that any such purchaser may apply to the Court, at the time of the confirmation of such bid, or at any time subsequent thereto, to be relieved from the obligation of any specific contract covered by the terms of this decree, upon such terms as may be deemed proper by this Court; this provision in said decree being intended for the protection of the Receiver heretofore appointed by the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Wisconsin, and this provision shall not be construed as vesting any right of action in any person not a party to this suit as against such purchaser, and the Court in said decree reserves the right to require of any such purchaser or purchasers security in such amount and of such form and character as the Court may require, for the fulfillment of any contracts which the Court shall direct that the said purchaser shall assume, under the terms hereof.

Any purchaser, at the sale, may satisfy and make good the balance of his bid above the amount of the amount required to be paid in cash, by the terms of said decree, or by any decree or order of said court, entered in accordance with the provisions of said decree, by delivering to the undersigned Special Master Commissioner bonds duly certified and issued and outstanding under the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust, dated July 2, 1906, made by Allis-Chalmers Company to the American Trust and Savings Bank, trustee, with all unpaid coupons, with interest thereunto belonging, which bonds, if registered, shall be duly assigned or endorsed by the registered holder thereof. Such bonds, whether delivered to the Special Master Commissioner at the time of the sale or subsequently, shall be received at such price or value as shall be equal to the sum which would be payable out of the net proceeds of said sale, if made for money, to the holder or holders of such bonds for his or their just share and proportion in such character, upon a due accounting and apportionment of such net proceeds; provided, however, if it shall appear that any bond or bonds so presented to the Special Master Commissioner have been theretofore presented to the Special Master Commissioner making sale under the order of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Wisconsin or in and for the Northern District of Illinois, and that any such bond or bonds have been used in the purchase of any properties situate in the Eastern District of Wisconsin or in the Northern District of Illinois, then such bonds, when presented to the Special Master Commissioner, shall be received at such price or value as shall be equivalent to the sum which will be payable out of the net proceeds of such sale, if made for money, to the holder or holders of said bonds, or his or their just share and proportion in such character of such net proceeds, after the amount applied upon such bonds, in connection with the purchase of any property sold under the decree of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Wisconsin or for the Northern District of Illinois, or applicable thereto, out of the proceeds of such sale, shall have been endorsed upon said bonds or charged as the pro rata payment thereof against the amount due upon the said bonds by the terms of the said decree.

For a more particular description of the property to be sold and the terms and conditions of the sale reference is hereby made to the decree entered by the District Court of the United States for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, in the above-entitled cause, on the 28th day of May, 1913.

Special Master Commissioner.

With the Northern and Southern Divisions there will be included and sold as part thereof one-half in value and as nearly as may be one-half in kind and description of the supplies and materials in the possession of the receiver at the time of sale (supplies and materials, if any previously turned over by the Receiver to the purchaser of the Ohio Southern Division under Foreclosure Decree in favor of Central Trust Company of New York, to be taken into account in ascertaining the supplies and materials in possession of the receiver at the time of the sale hereunder), division to be made by the Receiver subject to the supervisory order of the Court; and with the property sold hereunder there will be included and sold as part thereof the cars and equipment generally belonging thereto, to wit: the cars and equipment included in the General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage to The New York Trust Company, hereinbefore described, and the five hundred cars purchased by the Receiver from the Central Car and Locomotive Works under order of this Court, entered November 8, 1912, subject, however, to the terms of the Receiver's contract therefor; and also one-half of the locomotives, cars, and equipment purchased under authority of the Court during the receivership; cars, locomotives and equipment, if any, turned over or to be turned over by the Receiver to said purchaser of the Ohio Southern Division to be taken into the account.

The identity of the equipment will in all cases be determined by the Receiver, in accordance with the records in his possession, and subject to the supervisory order of the Court. In any event, the purchaser of any equipment which at the time of the sale shall be held under Equipment Trust Agreement or Agreement for Repairs or for Purchase shall take the same subject to all the terms and conditions of such Trust Agreement or Agreement for Repairs or Purchase, including all provisions for deferred payments; and such purchaser shall by such purchase be held to have assumed and to have agreed to carry out and fulfill the terms and conditions of the said agreements affecting the equipment so purchased by him.

The equipment, or parts thereof, is subject to the following equipment trust agreements or agreements for repairs or purchase:

Agreement with American Locomotive Company, dated September 15, 1909, for purchase of eight locomotives, numbered 100 to 107, inclusive, requiring periodical payments to September 15, 1913; amount due after December 1st, 1912, $27,911.25.

All receiver's obligations and indebtedness incurred after September 1, 1912, and any indebtedness which, pursuant to the provisions of the said amended decrees or the further order of the said court, shall have priority over the said Ohio Southern Division Mortgage and said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage, or either of them, shall be divided between and charged upon the Ohio Southern Division on the one part and the Northern and Southern Divisions on the other part in accordance with the principles established by the report of the Master filed in the said Court in the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division, December 9, 1912, subject to the further supervisory order of the said Court.

The said Master Commissioner will accept no bid of less than $1,650,000 upon the Northern and Southern Divisions upon a sale thereof. The said minimum sum was fixed by the Court in the said decrees in order to prevent a sacrifice and to protect the interests of all concerned as the least sum for which the said property should be sold. The Master will not accept any bid unless the bidder shall place in his hands at the time of the bid, as a part of his bid and a pledge to make the same good if accepted and the sale confirmed the sum of $100,000. Such sum may be placed with the Special Master Commissioner by certified cheque or certificate of deposit approved by the Master. The sum deposited shall be forfeited in case the bidder, if successful, shall fail to make good his bid and comply with the terms of the said decrees and any orders hereafter made as to future payments or otherwise; but said deposited sum shall be applied on the purchase price of the property in respect of which the deposit is made in case of such compliance by the purchaser or returned in case the bid in question is not successful or the sale in question shall not be confirmed by the Court.

The Court reserves the right to reject any bid and to resell the property in respect of which the bid shall have been made or any part thereof upon failure of the purchaser to comply with any order of the Court as to payment of the remainder of the purchase price or any part thereof.

There shall be paid in cash of the price at which the said property shall be sold, in addition to the amounts paid at the time of the sale, such further portions of the purchase money as the Court shall direct. The remainder of the purchase money may be paid as follows:

Wholly or partly in cash and in claims payable under article 3 of said amended decree, or in receiver's certificates payable under article 3 of said amended decree, to the extent and proportion that such claims and receiver's certificates are by said amended decree charged upon the Northern and Southern Divisions; and also in said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage Bonds, with overdue coupons thereon, or in said Consolidated Bonds, with overdue coupons thereon, at such proportion of value as the holders thereof would be entitled to receive thereon on distribution of the proceeds of such sale in case such price were wholly paid in cash.

All taxes and assessments upon the property sold and all said receiver's certificates and all claims payable under article 3 of said amended decree, will be allowed out of the purchase money where the purchaser produces proofs of such liens and claims and receipts for the payment thereof or surrenders such certificates. The Special Master will in his discretion accept temporarily instead of the actual delivery of the said bonds and coupons and receiver's certificates, the certificate of any trust company satisfactory to him that it holds the said bonds and coupons or receiver's certificates subject to the order of said Master, and will deliver them to him on demand for cancellation or other disposition.

Included in the upset price of the Northern and Southern Divisions is the sum of $105,059.20, with interest accrued thereon, being items set forth in subdivision 2, in Schedule A, of a certain Master's report filed in said cause December 9, 1912, and the purchaser or purchasers in lieu of depositing in the Registry of the Court said sum with interest, may, as part of the purchase price, give a bond therefor as provided in said decree.

The said Special Master, in pursuance and by virtue of the second amended decrees of foreclosure and sale in favor of Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant, made and entered by the said District Courts of the United States in this advertisement of sale first mentioned, dated and entered on the same days and in the same places as the said decrees in favor of The New York Trust Company, complainant, will also at the same time and place offer for sale and in separate parcels all other lines of railway and additional mileage of the defendant Railway Company and other property of any kind and nature which has been constructed or acquired in whole or in part by means of said Consolidated Bonds or with the proceeds of the sale or disposition thereof; subject only to purchase money liens thereon as in said Consolidated Mortgage set forth, not including in said property, however, any property which is subject to the prior lien thereon of the said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage (all of which said property subject to said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage, is to be sold under and pursuant to the preceding provisions of this notice); one hundred shares of the stock of the Toledo Southern Railway Company and ten hundred and fourteen shares of preferred stock of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, being certain property of the said Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railway Company included in the mortgage or deed of trust from that company to Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant herein, dated May 2, 1905, to secure certain bonds designated as Consolidated Bonds. The Master will accept no bid for the said shares of stock from any bidder who shall not place in his hands or deposit with him at the time of making the bid, as a pledge that the bidder will make good his bid if accepted by the Court, the sum of twenty-five dollars per share in cash, certified cheque, or certificate of deposit approved by the Master, which sum shall be forfeited in case the bidder if successful shall fail to make good his bid and comply with the terms of the said decrees, and any orders thereafter made as to future payments or otherwise, but which said sum shall be applied on the purchase price of the said stock in case of such compliance, or will be returned in case the said bid is not successful or the sale shall not be confirmed by the Court. The right of the Court is reserved to reject any bid and to resell the said stock or any part thereof, upon the failure of the purchaser to comply with any order of the Court as to the payment of the purchase price or any part thereof, in cash or otherwise, as may be directed. If either the said properties, not, as aforesaid, subject to the General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage or the said shares of stock, shall be purchased by or on behalf of the holders of the said Consolidated Bonds, the remainder of the purchase price over and above the amount in cash required to be paid at the time of sale, may be paid either in cash or in receivers' certificates, or in claims payable under Article 3 of the aforesaid decree of The New York Trust Company, or in said Consolidated Bonds and overdue coupons thereon, at such proportionate value as the holders thereof will be entitled to receive thereon, respectively, on distribution of the proceeds of such sale, in case such purchase price were wholly paid in cash.

Any person proposing to purchase at the said sale either the said railway properties or the said stock, is referred to the said second amended decrees in this notice specifically mentioned, for a more full and complete description of the property, rights, and franchises therein directed to be sold, which it is proposed to sell in accordance with the foregoing notice, and also for the terms and conditions upon which the sale of the said properties, rights, and franchises shall be made.

The said three second amended decrees in favor of The New York Trust Company, complainant, are exact duplicates of each other, and the said three second amended decrees in favor of Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant, are exact duplicates of each other, and all of the said decrees may be found filed and recorded in the offices of the Clerks of the United States District Courts at Detroit, Michigan; Toledo, Ohio, and Columbus, Ohio, respectively, and are subject to the inspection of the public generally. Certified copies of the said amended decrees will be in the possession of the said Special Master at the time and place of sale, and may be inspected by interested persons or bidders.

Bankruptcy Notices

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of UNITED STATES HAIR COMPANY, Bankrupt.—In Bankruptcy.—No. 17,945.

Upon the annexed petition of Benjamin W. B. Brown, Trustee, herein, and upon all the proceedings had herein, and on motion of Parker & Aaron, attorneys for the Trustee Petitioner, it is Ordered that all creditors of the above-named bankrupt, and all other persons claiming specific chattels, securities, sums of money or other assets or the proceeds thereof, or asserting any alleged preferential claim against special or general assets of the estate herein which are in the possession of the Trustee, be and they hereby are required to show cause before this Court at a Stated Term thereof, to be held in Room 66 of the Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, State of New York, on the 23d day of June, 1913, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why an order should not be made directing said creditors and persons to file within such time as the Court may direct verified statements of claims which they may have against specific chattels, securities, sums of money, or other assets or the proceeds thereof, and of all preferential claims which they may have against special or general assets of the estate in the possession of the trustee, such claims to be filed with Peter B. Olney, Esquire, the Referee in Bankruptcy, at his office, No. 68 William Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, and why the said claims so filed, if any, should not be referred to said Peter B. Olney, Esquire, as Special Master for hearing, testimony, and report, and why, in default of filing and proving such claims at the time and place and in the manner in which this Court may direct, said creditors and persons should not be forever barred from making or asserting any such claim.

And sufficient reasons appearing therefor, it is Ordered that service of this order with the petition upon which it is granted be made upon all the creditors and other persons interested herein, whether such persons have appeared herein by attorney or have filed claims with the Referee or Trustee, or have instituted reclamation or other proceedings against the Trustee herein, by mailing a copy thereof to such of them as have filed claims or appeared herein to the address given in the claim or appearance, and to others by mailing a copy thereof to each of them at their respective addresses as the same may appear upon the list of creditors and persons interested in the estate filed herein on or before the 9th day of June, 1913, and by publishing a copy thereof in The New York Times once a week for two successive weeks, the last publication to be not later than the 16th day of June, 1913, which mailing and publication shall be deemed sufficient service of this order, and it is

Further ordered that all persons who have commenced proceedings in the nature of reclamation or otherwise against any specific chattels, securities, moneys, or other assets in possession of the Trustee, and which proceedings are now pending before the Court or the Referee herein, and all persons who may hereafter commence such proceedings, be and they are hereby stayed from further proceeding therein until further order of the Court.

GEO. C. HOLT,
Judge of the U. S. District Court.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of UNITED STATES HAIR COMPANY, Bankrupt.—In Bankruptcy.—No. 17,945.

In the matter of the determination of claims to all chattels, securities, sums of money, and other assets now in the possession of the Trustee herein:

To the honorable, the Judges of the District Court of the United States, for the Southern District of New York:

The petition of Benjamin W. B. Brown respectfully shows and alleges:

First—That the above-named bankrupt was, on or about the 4th day of April, 1913, duly adjudicated bankrupt by the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, and the proceedings duly referred to Honorable Peter B. Olney as Referee, and that on the 8th day of May, 1913, your petitioner was duly elected Trustee of said bankrupt; his bond fixed at $25,000, and he thereupon duly caused his bond to be approved and filed, and qualified as Trustee herein, and is now acting as such Trustee.

Second—That immediately upon qualification as Trustee herein there came into the hands of your petitioner, various chattels, securities, sums of money, choses in action and other assets belonging to the above-named bankrupt or in its possession at the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy herein.

Third—That your petitioner is informed that many persons allege to have claims against certain of said chattels, securities, sums of money or other assets or proceeds thereof now in his hands, and that other persons claim to have preferential rights against the general funds now in his possession: that your petitioner believes it necessary for the proper administration of the estate, and before the distribution of the proceeds thereof, that the rights in, and claims to the same, of all such persons shall be ascertained and determined.

Fourth—That your petitioner is unable to determine the nature or validity of said alleged claims, and it is necessary in order that a just, equitable and complete determination of such claims may be made that all of such claimants be cited into court in one proceeding.

Fifth—That of said claimants who have filed claims with the Referee herein, or with your petitioner, some have brought proceedings in this court to compel your petitioner to deliver securities or other specific assets to them.

Sixth—That the said bankrupt herein has not filed his schedules in bankruptcy in this court, and that criminal proceedings are pending against certain of the officers of the said bankrupt, and it has not been practicable hitherto to procure the filing of proper schedules, but that there has been prepared and filed herein a list of the names and addresses of all the known creditors of the said bankrupt, which has been prepared from the books and papers of the said bankrupt, on which list appear the names of thirty-eight creditors, the addresses of most of whom are also given, but as to a number of them the addresses are stated to be unknown.

Seventh—That the reason an order to show cause is asked for is that it is desired to have the court specify a time within which all claims against chattels, securities, sums of money, choses in action or any other assets or proceeds thereof and all alleged preferential claims against either special or general assets of the estate herein shall be presented, and that it determine the nature, extent and validity of all such claims when the same are presented.

To the end that this court shall determine the method of the service of said order to show cause, your petitioner respectfully suggests that service thereof be made by publication for the following reasons:

(a) That the bankrupt herein has creditors or persons interested in his estate who may be creditors, or may have claims against the estate as appears by the list filed herein in excess of thirty-eight in number, and probably there are a considerable number of persons not appearing on this list who may assert claims;

(b) The business of the bankrupt has been international in scope and covered large territories, and its creditors are distributed naturally in such way that service other than by publication, except as to those whose addresses are specified, is impracticable.

(c) In order that the purposes of said order to show cause may be fully carried out, and all of the creditors of the bankrupt and persons who might have claims against the estate herein receive notice thereof, whether or not they have as yet appeared herein by attorney or have filed claims with the Referee herein, or have instituted reclamation or other proceedings against your petitioner.

Eighth.—That no previous application for an order to show cause for the relief herein sought has been made to the Court or any Judge thereof.

Wherefore, your petitioner prays for an order to show cause directing all creditors of the above-named bankrupt, and all persons interested herein, to show cause before this Court at a time therein stated why an order should not be made herein:

(1) Directing said creditors and all persons to file any claims they may assert herein against any specific chattels, securities, sums of money or other assets or the proceeds thereof, or any preferential claims that they may have against special or general assets of the estate herein, and why such claims should not be filed at such time and place as the Court may direct;

(2) Directing that said claims, if any, be referred to Peter B. Olney, Esquire, Referee herein as Special Master for hearing, testimony and report;

(3) Directing that any and all creditors and persons having or asserting any such claims, who have not filed the same at such time and place as the Court may direct, be forever barred from making any such claims;

(4) Directing that all creditors and persons who have brought proceedings before the Court, or before the Referee in the nature of reclamation or to enforce their claims against any specific chattels, securities, sums of money or other assets or proceeds thereof in this bankruptcy be stayed from further proceeding or from bringing any further action or proceeding until further order of the Court.

(5) Granting the petitioner herein such other and further relief in the premises, as to the Court may seem just and proper.

TRY WOMAN ENIGMA FOR CHURCH THEFT

Miss Fisk Tells of Losing Gold Bag While at Communion in St. Bartholomew's.

CASE PUZZLES THE POLICE

Mrs. Fitzhugh, the Defendant, Told Them a Man Who Sought to Injure Her Gave Her the Bag.

Miss Dorothy Fisk, daughter of Pliny Fisk, the banker, who lives in Plainfield, N. J., testified before Judge Swann, in General Sessions, yesterday, against Mrs. Randolph Fitzhugh, whose strange actions have puzzled the police. She was on trial for stealing a gold mesh-bag worth $550 from Miss Fisk in St. Bartholomew's Church, in this city. Mrs. Fitzhugh told the police that the bag was given to her by a man who would do anything to ruin her, and that she had returned it to St. Bartholomew's Church when she learned it had been stolen. In telling of the theft yesterday, Miss Fisk said:

"On Feb. 2 I attended communion service at St. Bartholomew's Church and carried my gold bag with me. When I went to the chancel to receive communion I put the bag inside my muff and put my coat over that. When I returned to my pew all appeared to be as I had left it until I reached for the bag, which contained $2, and found it missing. I reported the matter at once, but heard nothing of the bag until March 11, when I received a letter from a woman living in the Hotel Flanders, in Forty-seventh Street. In this letter I was told that a Mrs. Fitzhugh had the missing bag."

Miss Fisk said the bag was returned to her after the defendant's arrest.

Mrs. C. W. Esch of 1 West Thirtieth Street, the next witness, testified that she met Mrs. Fitzhugh in the Hotel Flanders, where her daughter, Mrs. Edward Ero, lives. She said that since the defendant's arrest she had learned that Mrs. Fitzhugh had a baby, which the management of the Flanders was holding for an unpaid rent bill. A Mrs. Powers, according to the witness, asserted that Mrs. Fitzhugh had told her that she, Mrs. Fitzhugh, was not the baby's mother, but that she had rented the child because of trouble she had had in Washington, D. C. In telling of her meeting with Mrs. Fitzhugh Mrs. Esch said:

"One day when I was visiting my daughter Mrs. Fitzhugh came in and after saying that a detective with a beard was following her, asked if she could borrow a sealskin coat. My daughter let her have a coat and Mrs. Fitzhugh departed. She was carrying a gold bag at that time. Later on Mrs. Fitzhugh returned the coat, which had been mutilated by some one. A big gash had been cut in the back. Mrs. Fitzhugh said it must have been the work of her enemy."

Policeman James Oswald testified that after a complaint had been made against the defendant he had gone with her to St. Bartholomew's Church and had searched for the missing bag. He was unable to find it, but he said that Mrs. Fitzhugh then searched the pew, and took the missing bag from under the seat. Assistant District Attorney Press then closed his case for the prosecution, and the trial was adjourned until Monday, when, according to Abraham Levy, Mrs. Fitzhogh's counsel, she will take the stand and unravel the many strange circumstances which surround her.

It was said at the Hotel Flanders last night that the baby which Miss Fitzhugh had with her in that hotel had never been held for any reason whatever, and that immediately after Mrs. Fitzhugh's arrest, it was removed to Brooklyn, where it was being taken care of by friends of the defendant. The hotel management said that all of Mrs. Fitzhugh's personal effects had been sent to her, and that nothing had been held by the hotel for her rent.

AFRAID OF HER MOTHER.

Girl Says Rather Than Go Back She Would Kill Herself.

Magistrate House in the Jefferson Market Court a week ago told Ida Forman, 16 years old, that she had been the victim of the worst case of parental cruelty that had ever come to his attention. At that time the girl's mother, Mrs. Jennie Forman of 223 West Twenty-seventh Street, was before him on a charge made by Mrs. Thompson, a dressmaker of 20 East Forty-sixth Street, who employs Ida, and who had noticed the marks of a beating administered by the mother to the girl.

Yesterday the girl was put for six months into the custody of Mrs. Mortimer M. Menken, wife of an attorney living at 791 West End Avenue, who had taken an interest in the case. Mrs. Forman came up for sentence and the Magistrate put her on probation for the same length of time after she and her husband had signed an agreement not to molest the child. When the time came for her to bid good-bye to her parents they knelt in front of her, showing some emotion, but the girl ran crying in fear from the room and was found hysterical in the Magistrate's chambers. She had told him that if she were sent back to her mother she would commit suicide.

PUPILS HONOR THE FLAG.

Former Gettysburg Chaplain a Speaker at One Public School.

In Public School 73, at 207 East Forty-sixth Street, the Flag Day exercises were made more than usually impressive by the talk of the Rev. W. H. Thomas of Connecticut, who was a Chaplain on the Gettysburg battlefield. He gave a graphic account of the battle, and related an incident that showed the importance of the flag.

"In the din of battle," he said, "the flag is the rallying point toward which all aim. On the second day of the battle of Gettysburg, when the vantage point of Round Top was discovered, the Union flag was shot away and lost to sight. The soldiers, bewildered, fell back. Then a young man picked up the fallen flag. It rallied the men, but the lad was killed. I found his body after the battle with the shattered flagstaff clenched in his hand. I took that remnant of a flag, which I have kept to this day, and I count it the dearest of my treasures."

Flag Day exercises were held yesterday in all the public schools.

GETS INTO OVEN TO DIE.

George F. Mason, Former Official of Northern Bank, a Suicide.

George F. Mason, formerly a minor officer of the Northern Bank, who had been despondent since the failure of that institution, was found dead in his home on the second floor of the building at 110 West 109th Street, yesterday, with his body resting on a couch and his head in the oven of the gas stove. The gas in the oven was fully turned on, and a pillow had been jammed between his shoulders and the top of the opening to prevent any escape of the gas. The police find the motive for suicide in his melancholy condition aggravated by the absence of his wife, who went to her parents' home in Perth Amboy on Monday suffering from blood poisoning. She had cut her hand with a pair of scissors, and it was thought best that she go to her parents, where she could have good care if her condition became serious.

Herbert Stavely Sammond will be the accompanist. During the evening the Corinthian Male Quartet will sing two new songs by Prof. Thayer.

THREE ENVOYS NAMED.

President Fills the Cuban, Nicaraguan, and Costa Rican Posts.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Wilson to-day made the following nominations:

Minister to Cuba, William E. Gonzales of South Carolina.

Minister to Nicaragua, Benjamin L. Jefferson of Colorado.

Minister to Costa Rica, Edward J. Hale of North Carolina.

Assistant Treasurer of the United States at St. Louis, Willard D. Vandiver.

Mr. Jefferson lives at Steamboat Springs, Col., is a physician, is now Register of the Colorado State Land Board, and was for several years State Senator. He and the President are friends.

William E. Gonzales is the editor of The Columbia (S. C.) State and the son of Ambrosio José Gonzales, a distinguished Cuban patriot.

Major Hale was formerly Democratic State Chairman in North Carolina and was once Consul at Manchester, England. He has been active in North Carolina politics and is a close friend of Mr. Bryan.

The Senate to-day confirmed the appointment of William H. Berry as Collector of Customs at Philadelphia. Mr. Berry's nomination was made early in President Wilson's Administration and had been pending in the Senate with a favorable report from a committee since May 1. Confirmation had been opposed until to-day by Senators Oliver and Penrose.

Frank Holcomb Mason, formerly a Cleveland newspaper man, in the Consular Service since 1880, and Consul General at Paris since 1905, has resigned. Secretary Bryan to-day made the announcement.

WARNS AGAINST TYPHOID.

Holiday Makers Should Be Vaccinated, Says Dr. Lederle.

Health Commissioner Lederle issued yesterday a warning to all about to leave town for a vacation against typhoid. They should be vaccinated against it, he urged, and the department will treat free of charge those unable to pay a physician. A large proportion of the typhoid cases are contracted out of town and brought back to swell the statistics of the disease here.

"It would be well," said Dr. Lederle, "for those who seek rest and recreation in the country to pay more attention to their sanitary surroundings and less to the scenery. Typhoid fever derived from an infected well, from flies, from polluted milk, or from contaminated shellfish is a heavy price to pay for a moderate temperature and pleasant elevation.

"Fortunately typhoid vaccination is proving to be as successful a preventive as is vaccination for smallpox. Should its use become general, typhoid fever will undoubtedly occupy eventually the almost negligible position held by smallpox in civilized communities. The process is unaccompanied by danger, but as it is best performed by means of successive inoculations a week apart, no time should be lost by those who intend to avail themselves of its benefits."

Dr. Lederle also says that we may have plenty of ice water, and that iced tea and iced coffee are harmless enough. "Eat and dress lightly" is the burden of his advice.

DISCUSS SOCIAL WORK.

General Convention of Representatives of New York Societies.

A conference of social workers was begun last night at the Church of the Ascension with almost 300 persons present, representing many of the 2,000 social relief societies of New York, to whom invitations were sent to attend the sessions, convened for the purpose of discussing the professional status of social workers, as well as their relations to one another, to philanthropy, to economic and political progress.

After the "Pertinence of the Conference" had been discussed by John Collier, Vocational Secretary of the People's Institute, the subject, "When Should Political Action Replace Social Work?" was considered, in turn, by Abram I. Elkus, counsel for the New York State Factory Investigating Commission, from the viewpoint of the Democratic Party; Francis W. Bird, representing the Progressives; Sol Fieldman, representing the Socialists, and Abraham Gruber, speaking for the Republicans. There was also a general discussion of the subject by Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, Graham R. Taylor, and others.

The conference will be continued this afternoon and to-night, and the concluding session will be held to-morrow night.

Rival's Employe Tells of Shoe Machinery Manager's Overtures.

BOSTON, June 13.—Charles H. Wilson, general manager of the United Shoe Machinery Company, suggested a strike among the employes of a competing company and offered to back the employes, according to a witness in the dissolution proceedings, against the company in the United States District Court to-day.

The witness was Frank Morrison, a shoe worker of East Weymouth, formerly in the employ of the Thomas G. Plant Company of Boston. He testified that after some wage trouble at the plant factory he met Eddie Johnson, an agent of the United Shoe Machinery Company, who sent him to Mr. Wilson.

After explaining the trouble the witness said Wilson asked: "Why don't you go out on strike? We will back you." Wilson then suggested, he testified, a union of the plant employes, and offered to pay the expenses of organization and give the witness $2,000 in cash.

Charles G. Ross of Lynn, another shoe worker formerly in the employ of Plant, corroborated Morrison and explained that $1,500 had been spent trying to organize the Plant shop, and that Wilson refused to reimburse the organizers.

Mr. Fowler for the prosecution announced this afternoon that practically all the Government's verbal testimony was in, and the court adjourned until June 25, when the prosecution is expected to close. It is understood that the defense will ask for a delay until Fall.

FISHKILL LANDING, June 13.—Oscar Berg, 45 years old, chauffeur for Eben E. Olcott, President of the Hudson River Day Line, was killed this afternoon at a sharp curve two miles north of Wappinger's Falls. In the automobile with him were two young sons of Mr. Olcott. Berg was hurrying to Poughkeepsie to meet Mr. Olcott, who made the trip north on a steamboat of his line. The car turned turtle.

The boys were only slightly injured. Berg, however, was pinned in by the steering wheel and crushed to death. The car made the turn at forty miles an hour. Berg was ignorant of the road and did not see the curve in time.

MORE ICEBERGS SIGHTED.

One Seen at 43.2 North Latitude and 43.20 West Longitude.

NEWPORT, June 13.—A relayed message from the steamer Cestrian, dated June 7 and received here to-day, said that an iceberg 400 feet long and 30 feet high was sighted at 43.2 north latitude and 43.20 west longitude.

A message from the steamship Adriatic gave the following undated message from the revenue cutter Seneca, which is patroling the steamer lanes.

"Several icebergs reported between 48 and 49 north latitude and 46 and 47 west longitude. The Seneca cruised to 45 north and 46 west, but saw no ice."

CAMP FIRE GIRLS IN GRAND COUNCIL

Throng 69th Regiment Armory and Squat in a Circle with Candle Light.

CAMP FIRE DANCES, TOO

Show Themselves in a Work of Rescue from Drowning—Blue Birds with Them.

The Wohelo cry of the Camp Fire Girls resounded through the big Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory last night, where 900 young maidens were gathering for a grand council meeting. The Indian dress is the ceremonial costume of the Camp Fire Girls, and their call, "Wohelo," is formed by the first syllables of the three words which represent the fundamental principals of their organization—work, health, love.

There are now nearly 50,000 members of the council, of which Dr. Luther H. Gulick is President, the name of Miss Jane Addams heading the list of electors. These electors are residents of all parts of this country and Canada and the different groups of girls who form the camp fires are as representative.

The council meeting last night was made up of girls from New York and vicinity. Five hundred were expected, but 900 were present, including the Blue Birds, a juvenile organization now in the process of formation, the little sisters of the Camp Fire Girls, who can join the Blue Birds at 6, while a Camp Fire girl must be 12 at least.

It was lights-out last night and the 900 little camp fire squaws sat in a big circle in the dusk in the armory around the three lighted candles representing their three foundation principles and groups of lights representing real camp fires, one of the camp fire ceremonials which is performed to the music of "Burn, Fire, Burn."

There were sunrise and sunset calls by Miss Zahrah Preble, who carried a $100 Indian blanket, and the different camp fires did different dances while the council altogether gave the "Camp Fire Law." The girls do much practical work. They couldn't trim hats and make bread in public last night, but they did other things.

"Help, I'm drowning," called a voice from one corner of the armory about the middle of the programme. A band of Camp Fire Girls dashed to the rescue, brought the comrade to the centre of the group in such bad condition that it took several minutes of artificial respiration to revive her, and in the meantime others of the girls had bandaged her wounded ankle.

A lively group of girls gave an exhibition of camping, putting up the tripod for cooking, going to the spring for water, and going to sleep on their blankets, which they had brought in big military rolls over their shoulders. There were moving pictures of the Sebago-Wohelo Camp Fire Girls, which called forth much applause, as they were seen doing fine team work in paddling and in making first-class dives into the lake from a springboard. "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was sung before the Statue of Liberty, represented by Miss Violet Glover in white, with an upraised torch in her hand.

WED FREE? NOT FRIDAY, 13th

Pastor's Offer Aimed at Superstition Goes Begging.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, June 13.—The Rev. Charles H. Reynolds, pastor of the North Congregational Church of this city, who announced several days ago that any couple applying to him on Friday, June 13, 1913, could have the marriage ceremony performed free of charge, remained at home all day today, but no one came to claim his offer. He thought the chance of escaping the fee would induce some brave ones to cast aside superstitition, but it didn't.

He had several engagements to perform marriage in the near future, but he could not induce any of the couples to change the date and start upon the matrimonial voyage to-day.

Fall in Dark Kills Nonagenarian.

George W. Fraprie, 95 years old, a retired watch manufacturer, died early yesterday morning in the Hotel Beresford, 1 West Eighty-first Street, from injuries sustained by a fall. He left his bed to get a glass of water about 2 o'clock yesterday morning and in the dark fell over a chair, fracturing his right thigh. He was unable to arise and lay on the floor for several hours until he was found by one of the servants.

JOBS FOR RAILWAY EXPERTS.

Commerce Board Needs Many Men for Physical Valuation Task.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Confronted with the gigantic task of appraising the physical property of the railroads of the United States, the Inter-State Commerce Commission issued applications to-day for expert assistants. Through the Civil Service Commission dates have been set for the examination of men acquainted with railroad operation and construction who desire to enter the Government service.

The commission wants a large staff of structural, electrical, mechanical, railway signal, and civil engineers, Inspectors of car equipment and motive power, and architects. The salaries will range from $1,080 to $4,800, but as the work mainly takes them away from Washington expenses will be allowed while on duty.

The Civil Service Commissioners expect a general response to its call, and have fixed July 21 as the closing date on which applications will be received.

KILLED ON MOTOR CYCLE.

Second Rider Badly Hurt—Ran Into Horses Head-On.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., June 13.—Two boys riding a motor cycle crashed into the pole of a grocery wagon in which a party of young men and women were riding on the turnpike between North Branch and Somerville last night. One of the boys, Edward McCarron, died this morning from internal injuries. His companion, who was on the front seat of the wheel, was Edward Cook. He has a fractured right hip and his collar bone is broken. He is also thought to be hurt internally.

Cook was running the machine. He sought to stop and swerve, but too late, and the motor cycle dashed into the pole of the wagon. McCarron was thrown under the horses, and one of them stamped on him. Two of the three young women who were in the grocery wagon fainted, and one of them was not revived until this morning. It is said there was no light on the wagon.

Twenty Years' Telephone Growth in New York City

IN NEW YORK CITY TO-DAY
502,449
Increase Since January 1st
19,078

This familiar card, shown in all of our offices throughout the City, with its numbers increasing every day, tells the story of telephone growth in New York City. We are now adding to the system an average of 125 telephones each day. In twenty years we have added more than 488,000 telephones. The following table shows in steps of five years each, how we have grown:

1893	14,253	Telephones.
1903	117,345	"
1908	308,705	"

Today - 502,449 Telephones.

This great increase in the number of telephones has been made possible by foresight in providing telephone plant and equipment more than adequate to keep pace with the public needs. We plan twenty years in advance so that the public is never compelled to wait while our traffic problems are being solved.

A rational and logical rate plan, by which charges for telephone service are distributed with equity among the several classes of users has contributed to this splendid growth. As a subscriber's use of the telephone grows, the plan provides easy stages for the increase in his telephone equipment.

The unusually large proportion of telephones in New York City connected to Individual Lines and Private Branch Exchanges, promotes the efficiency of the service, as this class of equipment is better adapted to the heavy traffic of the city than are Party Lines.

The everyday usefulness and popularity of the service is due in no small measure to the fact that no matter how heavy the demands upon the service may be, it is quick and reliable at all times.

New York City leads the world in the convenience, general excellence and dependability of its telephone service.
